CABINET CHANGES SAID TO BE LIKELY

But President, It Is Understood, Will Not Require Any Member to Resign.

TALK OF SOME RETIREMENTS

DANIELS'S POSITION SECURE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The information was given today, with some show of authority, that President Wilson had decided that no member of his Cabinet need retire, with the beginning of the President's second term, unless it suited his purpose to do so. Nothing has occurred to indicate that any general desire exists in the Cabinet circle to give the President an opportunity to appoint a new set of advisers.

Thomas Watt Gregory of Texas, the Attorney General, is credited with having arranged to resume the practice of law, but confirmation is lacking of this report, which has been in circulation since before the election.

In official circles the rumor is persistent that William G. McAdoo of New York, the President's son-in-law, who is Secretary of the Treasury, is being urged by some of those closest to him to quit official life next March. Mr. McAdoo is in the early fifties. The story has it that he may decide to re-establish his law practice in New York or become connected with some large financial enterprise.

Already the selection of a new Secretary of the Treasury is being discussed in quarters where the purposes of the Administration with regard to possible Cabinet changes probably would be known. The name of Representative Carter Glass of Virginia is being mentioned in this connection. Mr. Glass is Chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, and as such drafted the original bill which was ultimately molded into the Glass-Owen law for the revision of the currency and the establishment of the Federal Reserve banking system.

That President Wilson thinks highly of Mr. Glass has been shown on several occasions. It was at the President's urgent importunity that Mr. Glass became Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, a position he now holds. It had been arranged that this place should go to W. B. Hollister of Missouri, ex-secretary to Senator Stone of Missouri, but President Wilson upset the plan by picking Mr. Glass. The latter was reluctant to accept and did so only upon the friendly insistence of the President.

Morgenthau Also Mentioned.

Henry Morgenthau of New York, ex-Ambassador to Turkey, who was Chairman of the General Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee in the political campaign just ended, is being mentioned as a possible successor to Mr. McAdoo. Mr. Morgenthau had luncheon with the President at the White House today. He is quoted in an interview as saying that he had heard on good authority that some of the present members of the Cabinet had expressed a desire to leave, and that it was a logical inference that the President would recognize the West in filling Cabinet vacancies. Mr. Morgenthau was quoted as saying also that he was convinced that no changes in the Cabinet would take place "at present." He declined to say what members of the Cabinet wished to retire.

During the Presidential campaign the rumor was persistent that Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, would not remain in the Cabinet—this on the assumption, of course, that Mr. Wilson would be re-elected. With the election over, the information is furnished that the President has no intention of displacing Mr. Daniels. In fact, what was said today in well-informed circles leads to the conclusion that the President prefers that Mr. Daniels should retain the Navy portfolio. The reason given for this disposition of the President is interesting. He realizes that Mr. Daniels's administration of the Navy Department has been severely criticised, and it has not been forgotten in Washington that, when Charles E. Hughes, in the campaign which closed last Tuesday, argued that Mr. Daniels was inefficient, he was applauded loudly. But the criticisms of Mr. Daniels have inclined the President more strongly in his favor.

One of the main considerations understood to have influenced the President in his desire that Mr. Daniels should remain in the Cabinet is the feeling that if he should retire the contention would be set up that he had been forced out on account of the strictures on the naval administration by Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, ex-Aide to Operations in the Navy Department.

Admiral Fiske was an ardent advocate of naval preparedness on a large scale. He and Secretary Daniels disagreed as to what should be done in that direction, and their differences led to the retirement of Admiral Fiske from his position as aide. It became known today that President Wilson was very angry over the attitude of Admiral Fiske and would be inclined to refuse to accept the resignation of Mr. Daniels if the latter's retirement would be construed as a Fiske victory. It is also suggested here that in his reported desire to retain Mr. Daniels in the Cabinet the President may not be unmindful of an ironical article on Mr. Daniels in The North American Review written by Colonel George Harvey.

McCormick to be Consulted.

That Vance C. McCormick of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will ask to be consulted in regard to Cabinet changes is taken for granted here. Should the report prove true that Attorney General Gregory will resume law practice, Mr. McCormick, in the opinion of politicians here, will urge that ex-Representative A. Mitchell Palmer of his State be offered the Attorney Generalship. Mr. McCormick and Mr. Palmer are close friends, and the selection of Mr McCormick as the Democratic campaign manager this year is attributed to the suggestion of Mr. Palmer.

When President Wilson was forming his Cabinet in the interim between his election in November, 1912, and his inauguration in March, 1913, he asked Mr. Palmer to become his Secretary of War. Mr. Palmer declined on the ground that he was a Quaker and opposed to things that had to do with hostile operations. It was understood at the time that Mr. Palmer desired to be Attorney General, but the President offered that portfolio to James C. McReynolds of Tennessee, now a member of the Supreme Court of the United States.

New Austrian Food Bureau To Have Increased Powers

VIENNA, Nov. 12, via London, Nov. 13.—Within a few days all questions regarding food in Austria will be placed in the hands of a new Central Food Bureau, according to a statement made today at the offices of Premier von Koerber.

The new bureau will have full powers on all questions and will depart in many ways from the methods thus far employed. The chief of the bureau has not yet been named.

CALIFORNIA ERRORS ARE ABOUT EQUAL

SOLDIER VOTE VERY CLOSE

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 13.—Attorneys, members of the Republican State Central Committee, the Democratic State Central Committee, checkers, expert accountants, and a host of Registrar's clerks took part today in the opening session of the official canvass of the Presidential election returns before the Board of Election Commissioners.

The net result of the Presidential count for the day was a gain of six votes for Wilson, according to the admission of the Republican counters. So far as the canvass went there was no evidence of anything but petty clerical errors disclosed, which would have no material effect upon the semi-official count as announced.

Cameron H. King, Jr., Chief Clerk of the Department of Elections, said tonight:

"The few vote changes made as a result of the count today came within about five votes of balancing, and these were in Wilson's favor."

Chairman Van Wyck of the Democratic State Executive Committee received the following county reports tonight: Alameda, Wilson gains 10; Solano, Wilson gains 11, Del Norte, Wilson gains 3; Monterey, Wilson gains 5; Marin, Wilson gains 1, Amador, no change.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 13.—The official canvass of the vote cast last Tuesday in the Presidential election is being made by the fifty-eight counties of the State. It is expected that within a week or ten days at the latest this will be completed in the larger centres and the returns in the hands of the Secretary of State here for the final canvass. While it is impossible to state positively when the final returns will be ready, it is estimated that totals will be known before Dec. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 13.—Fifty errors or discrepancies, some of five votes, others of more than a score, were revealed when the Board of Supervisors began the official canvass of the vote of last Tuesday's election in Los Angeles County today. None of these errors or discrepancies was recorded because of the absence of the tally books from four missing precincts. Subpoenas were issued, requiring the presence of the election boards from these precincts tomorrow morning. According to the California law the Board of Supervisors may not begin its canvass within six days until all the tallies have been received.

Some of these errors may make a difference of a few hundred votes. In other cases the count will be delayed for technical reasons, and it is hardly probable that the official count of the vote can be completed within the week.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 13.—Charles E. Hughes's lead over Woodrow Wilson tonight was cut down to 233 by added soldiers' votes and a net gain of 44 over previous returns from Sibley County. The latest count is: Wilson, 178,758; Hughes, 178,991. The soldiers to date have favored Wilson slightly, the difference in his favor tonight standing at two—727 for Wilson and 725 for Hughes.

Reports from the County Auditors reached the office of Secretary of State Schmahl today, but had little bearing on the result. More are expected tomorrow, and representatives of the Democratic National Committee will be on hand until the State Canvassing Board, which begins its duties officially Nov. 28, has finished its work. Dan W. Lawler, who opposed Frank B. Kellogg for United States Senator, received word today that the National Committee had appointed him, ex-Governor Lind, and Judge F. C. Brooks of Minneapolis to watch the counting.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 13.—The official canvass of the vote of Delaware last Tuesday was completed today and is as follows: Hughes, 25,794; Wilson, 24,521; Hanly, 694; Benson, 480. Hughes's plurality, 1,273. These figures do not include the soldier vote from two companies cast in New Mexico.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 13.—A falling off in the vote for the Presidential candidates of the Socialist and Prohibition Parties is shown in official figures announced today. The State gave Benson, the Socialist candidate, 1,319 votes this year, as compared with 1,980 for the head of the ticket four years ago. The vote for Hanly, the Prohibition leader, was 296, while the head of the ticket four years ago received 535.

TO KEEP CHICAGO 'LID' DOWN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—For the first time in many years Chicago is to have a quiet New Year's Eve, and this primarily because it falls on a Sunday. Mayor Thompson announced today that the Sunday closing ordinance would be strictly enforced. Consequently, there is much gloom in the big hotels and restaurants.

The city's Chief Executive indicated that it would be useless for hotel and restaurant men to appeal to him to be permitted to operate their places for the sale of liquor. The turning back of clocks or other subterfuges will not be permitted. The Mayor said he believed it would be a good thing if the people would go to church on that day instead of celebrating in the manner which heretofore has been the custom.

"I am not responsible for the law and I don't see what choice the Mayor has in the matter," he said.

EARLIER CHARGES QUASHED

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Nov. 13.—General Sir Sam Hughes and the Government have finally broken. As the culmination of long continued and steadily increasing friction between the Minister of Militia and Defense and his Cabinet colleagues over questions of appointments, patronage, political expediency, and joint Ministerial responsibility, General Hughes today acceded to Premier Borden's request that his resignation be tendered, and a little after noon it was placed in the Premier's hands. The writing of the resignation followed an exchange of letters containing charges and countercharges.

Although it was suspected in the capital that the resignation was coming, it was thought right up to the last moment that the quarrel might be again patched up. Finally, however, Sir Sam took the plunge, wrote the letter, and sent it by a trusted friend and official to the Prime Minister's office. Sir Robert Borden accepted it, and his first official business with the new Governor General, the Duke of Devonshire, this afternoon was to place before him the resignation of one of his advisers.

No new Minister of Militia and Defense has been appointed to succeed General Hughes. Premier Borden, aided by F. B. McCurdy, Secretary to the Minister of Militia and Defense, will administer the Militia Department. The formal announcement by the Government of General Hughes's resignation reads in part:

"The retirement of Sir Sam Hughes is in part the outcome of the establishment of the Ministry of Overseas Forces and in part is due to assumption by Sir Sam of powers which in the judgment of the Prime Minister can be exercised only by the Government as a whole. It is anticipated that the correspondence which brought about the request for the Minister's resignation will be made public immediately. It must first be submitted to the Governor-General."

Hughes Expresses Relief.

"It is true I have resigned, but not for the reasons assigned in the report given out this afternoon. Accompanying my resignation was a report to the Prime Minister asking that all the correspondence in connection with the affair might be published promptly. I would like to say that I feel quite happy. A great load is off my back.

"In leaving the department I feel I have nothing special to regret in regard to its work or management. In Britain in the first year of the war Canada had practically no control of her forces. The British system was followed. Last year for nine straight months our soldiers had no rest from the trenches. This year I have planned extra divisions, so that fully one-quarter of our troops could be resting at a time; but perhaps the most important accomplishment of all has been the perfect harmony with the War Office.

"I conceive it my duty to give every assistance I can still to help in the cause. I do not know who my successor may be, but whoever it is can count on my assistance in every legitimate way to help in the great cause. It is my intention to go ahead precisely as I intended and to get out and help recruiting. I part from my colleagues with more or less regret, but in the future, if they pursue proper lines, I will be ready to give them or any one else my cordial support."

"The correspondence will show that Sir Robert Borden asked for the resignation of the Minister of Militia on account of the tone of a letter written by him on Nov. 1, showing that the Prime Minister had made misstatements which the Minister of Militia promptly proved to be incorrect and criticisms which were unwarranted when all the facts were considered."

One of the points over which differences arose between Sir Sam and his colleagues was the supplying of the Canadian forces with the British Army rifle. General Hughes, it is reported, advocated instead the use of a Canadian weapon.

Some time ago General Hughes returned from a three months' visit to England with a plan to have a Canadian War Council organized in England, with a Deputy Minister of Militia at its head. The Canadian Government, however, held that with more than 200,000 Canadian troops in the trenches in France or in training in England there should be an Overseas Minister of Militia. General Hughes opposed this, as it would deprive him of a great deal of authority.

When the Government insisted upon its plan, it is reported, General Hughes suggested that Sir Max Aitken should be appointed to the new post. Premier Borden, however, appointed Sir George Perley, although there is said to have been lack of harmony between the latter and General Hughes. This took from

Bill to Call Out New German Reserves Expected at Special Reichstag Session

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 13, (via London.)—The Telegraaf quotes German newspapers to the effect that an extraordinary sitting of the Reichstag is to be convoked, supposedly to pass a bill calling up all civilians fit for "service in the interest of the Fatherland." The newspaper says it is not intended to extend the age limit for military service.

Berlin newspapers also announce that there will shortly be brought forward a bill for compulsory labor on the part of civilians of Germany.

This report has not been confirmed officially.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—A new measure is under consideration by the Government under which home auxiliary services for the army may be organized throughout Germany, according to announcements in various newspapers. It is proposed that the new organizations shall include factory employes and persons who are now drawing an income without working.

In order to swell the ranks of Francis Joseph's armies and also for the purpose of increasing the industrial efficiency of the empire, the Austro-Hungarian authorities have deprived the Hungarian gypsies of the freedom of locomotion and have forced the able-bodied men of the tribes to join the colors. German newspapers, in announcing the issuing of the orders effecting this radical change in the life of the nomads, say that the "gypsy question" had been worrying the Austro-Hungarians ever since the beginning of the war, and express satisfaction at the way in which it has been settled.

The order of the Minister of the Interior, which is aimed merely at the wandering gypsies who have no permanent abode, first of all forbids them to wander about, and takes steps to see that this order is obeyed. These gypsies are conscripted at the places where they are found, and after the fighting men have been enrolled in the army the rest of the tribe is prevented from exercising its "wanderlust" through the process of having its horses placed at the disposition of the military authorities and being forbidden to buy any draft animals in the future without the special permission of the police.

All the men between 18 and 50 years of age not fit for military service, as well as the women of the tribe, are enrolled for work at furnishing supplies.

EXPECT AGREEMENT TO RECALL PERSHING

NEW MOVE AGAINST VILLA

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 13.—After the conference today of the American-Mexican Joint Commission, it was intimated that an agreement providing for the withdrawal of the American punitive expedition might be reached before the close of the week.

For seven hours the Commissioners studied the various problems involved in a settlement of the international difficulties, the greater part of the time being devoted to an effort to get into concrete form that part of the general agreement referring to the withdrawal of the American troops.

The Mexicans informed the commission that probably General Carranza would deprive General Trevino of his command in the State of Chihuahua and that General Murguia might be chosen to replace him. It is known here that the campaign against Villa has not met with great enthusiasm on the part of the Americans, and the appointment of Murguia, who has shown more signs of activity, is considered as intended to impress the Americans with the sincerity of the Carranza government in its efforts to "get Villa."

Luis Cabrera, Chairman of the Mexican Commission, displayed at the close of the forenoon session the greatest optimism he had yet shown when he said he believed a settlement would be reached within a few days. It was intimated that an agreement on the withdrawal of troops would be sent to the respective Governments for ratification before the other and minor points in the general agreement were adopted.

Mr. Cabrera today notified the American Commissioners that General Carranza had extended the time limit for the resumption of work in Mexican mines, under penalty of expropriation, for sixty days from Nov. 14. He said that it was not the desire of the Carranza Government to confiscate properties by trying to force the owners to work them under impossible circumstances, and intimated that the decree might be extended again, either for the entire country or for certain districts, should conditions warrant at the expiration of sixty days.

Reports from Mexico today were that all foreigners in Parral, which was taken by Villa some days ago and later reoccupied by the Carranza troops when he had evacuated it, were safe and had suffered no depredations at the hands of the rebel chieftain. The death of Dr. Fisher at Santa Rosalia has been confirmed.

MURGUIA REPLACES TREVINO.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 13.—General Francisco Murguia is to succeed General Jacinto B. Trevino as commander of the northeastern military zone as soon as he arrives in Chihuahua City from the south with his reorganized division. Murguia is a General of equal rank with General Trevino.

The announcement of General Murguia's appointment was made here today from a source which is considered absolutely reliable. No reason is given for Trevino's transfer, but it is understood the failure to overcome the growing Villa movement is probably responsible.

General Murguia is now advancing from Torreon as a base toward Chihuahua City with a large force of troops, and is expected to arrive there within the next two days. Villa troops are again concentrating in the vicinity of Santa Ysabel, west of Chihuahua City, according to reports received here by American Government agents.

A special train left Juarez today, carrying General Francisco Gonzales and an escort of 100 men and 500,000 pesos in silver, to Chihuahua City, Andres Garcia, Inspector General of Carranza Consulates, announced. The money was to pay the Carranza troops under Trevino's command, Mr. Garcia added.

Mr. Garcia also declared he had received word from General Obregon, Minister of War, that 5,000 Yaqui Indians of General Obregon's old command were being sent north from Mexico City under General Talamantes to Torreon, and would take the field aginst Villa in the State of Chihuahua. An equal number of Yaqui and Maya Indians from Sonora also were marching across the mountains to Chihuahua State on orders from General Obregon, Mr. Garcia said. He asserted there would be 40,000 Carranza troops participating in the campaign against Villa before Dec. 1.

Mr. Garcia has taken in hand the investigation of charges made against Benjamin Brahan, a scout of General Pershing in Juarez, and Joseph Williams, formerly a clerk in a store at Colonia Dublan, Chihuahua, which sold supplies to the American expeditionary forces. Both Americans are in Juarez jail.

Brahan is said to be charged with being a Villa spy. The charge against

STRIKE ORDER HOLDS, RAIL UNIONS ASSERT

Brotherhoods and Employers Unable to Agree on Application of Adamson Law.

MILEAGE SYSTEM A BLOCK

Unions Insist Provisions of the New Meacure Shall Go Into Effect Jan. 1.

If the railroads of the United States affected by the Adamson eight-hour law attempt to evade in any way the provisions of the statute, the four railway brotherhoods by whose dominance Congress passed the law stand ready to whip the roads in line by the strike order, still effective notwithstanding that the controversy was presumably settled.

The brotherhoods' representatives announced that regardless of the decisions of the courts to which some of the railroads are carrying their appeals against the Adamson law, the brotherhoods would go out on strike if the law did not become effective on Jan. 1, as provided by the measure.

This was disclosed here yesterday, when representatives of the railroads and the four brotherhoods, comprising 400,000 employes, failed to reach an agreement as to the application of the new law. The stumbling block, both sides admitted, was the existing mileage system of compensation.

The announcement of the latest deadlock between the railroads and their employes came at the conclusion of an all-day conference between the National Conference Committee of the railways and the brotherhood chiefs, which had been arranged in September.

"We met," said Elisha Lee, Chairman of the railroad managers and the conference, "for the purpose of exchanging ideas on the application and operation of the Adamson law. We failed to reach an agreement and we are not certain that another meeting will take place."

William G. Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, spokesman for the employes in the absence of A. B. Garretson, of the Order of Railway Conductors, declared in a statement that in the event of evasion by the railroads of the Adamson law, summary action would be taken by the brotherhoods. He said that the strike order, which was directly responsible for the law, was still in effect, and the brotherhoods would not hesitate to enforce it if the occasion warranted it.

"The brotherhoods asked for this conference," said Mr. Lee. "At the morning session we discussed the application of the law and found that there was no basis upon which we could possibly agree. Another setback, besides the elimination of the mileage system, was the determination of the railroads to continue their suits to determine the constitutionality of the law."

The mileage system of compensation, the basis of which is the number of miles traversed by a train crew and not the actual hours of work, is the crux of the problem that, a railroad authority said, may result in the development of a situation similar to the one which brought into being the Adamson law.

"Frankly," said Elisha Lee in discussing this phase of the situation, "the trouble lies in the fact that neither the railroads nor the men know definitely how the law should be applied. We have our own ideas as to how the law shall be applied if at all, as suits to test its validity are now pending; while the brotherhoods have their own ideas."

Mr. Lee added that he could not predict the probable outcome of the difficulty. He said, however, that negotiations might be resumed by calling another conference. This possibility was strengthened by the announcement of the brotherhood chiefs that they, with the exception of President Lee of the trainmen's organization, proposed to remain here for several days. President Lee left for his home in Cleveland last night.

Besides William G. Lee, the brotherhood chiefs at the conference were Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, W. S. Carter, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and F. L. Sheppard, acting President of the Order of Railway Conductors in the absence of Mr. Garretson, who is on an extended vacation.

HEARS SWITCHMEN'S DEMANDS

While the conference between representatives of the four railway brotherhoods and executives of the railroads was in progress at the Grand Central Terminal yesterday, the demands of another railroad employes' union were being heard by a board of arbitrators in the Chamber of Commerce Building, at 65 Liberty Street. The demands were made by the Switchmen's Union of North America, an organization with about 10,000 members, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, but not with the railway brotherhoods, and the members of which are therefore unaffected by the Adamson eight-hour law.

The members of the Switchmen's Union first presented their demands last March, and at that time threatened to strike if they were not granted. G. W. W. Hangar, Assistant Commissioner

MERCIER APPEALS FOR LABOR EXILES

MEN PENNED IN TRUCKS

ASSAILS VON BISSING

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, has issued a protest to the civilized world against the deportation of Belgians to Germany for forced labor.

The protest is dated Nov. 7, and is signed by Cardinal Mercier in behalf of all the Belgian Bishops, except the Bishop of Bruges, with whom he was unable to get in touch.

Among the principal passages contained in Cardinal Mercier's protest are the following which the Echo Belge will publish tomorrow, according to a Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam:

"The military authorities are daily deporting thousands of inoffensive citizens in order to set them to forced labor.

"As early as Oct. 19 we sent a protest to the Governor General, a copy of which was also sent to the representatives in Brussels of the Holy See, Spain, the United States, and the Netherlands. The Governor General, in reply, refused to take any steps.

"Like Slave Gangs."

"At that time the ordinances only threatened unemployed men. Today all able-bodied men are carried off pell-mell, penned up in trucks and deported to unknown destinations, like slave gangs.

"The enemy proceeds by regions. Vague reports have reached us that arrests have been made successively at Tournai, Ghent, and Alost, but we were unaware of the circumstances.

"Between Oct. 24 and the beginning of November the enemy operated in the regions of Mons, Quiévrain, St. Ghislain, and Jemappes, from 800 to 1,200 men being rounded up daily. Tomorrow and the following days he intends to fall on the Nivelles Arrondissement.

"A poster orders all males to present themselves at Nivelles on Nov. 8, provided with identification and registration cards. They are permitted to bring only a small handbag. Clergymen, doctors, barristers, and schoolmasters are exempt. Burgomasters are held responsible for the execution of the order. There is an interval of twenty-four hours between the posting of the order and deportation.

"Under the pretext of the necessity to carry out public works on Belgian soil, the occupying power had tried to obtain from the communes lists of unemployed workmen, which the majority of the communes proudly refused to give.

How Governor Paved the Way.

"Three decrees of the Governor General paved the way for the blow which was struck us today. The first, issued Aug. 15, 1915, ordered forced labor for the unemployed under pain of imprisonment and a fine, but it stated that it was only a question of work in Belgium. The second, issued May 2, gives the German authorities the right to provide work for the unemployed, any unauthorized person giving work being liable to three years' imprisonment and a fine of 20,000 marks. The third decree, issued May 13, authorized the Governors and military commanders to issue orders for the unemployed to be forcibly taken to places for work.

"It was already a matter of forced labor for Belgium. Today it is no longer a question of forced labor in Belgium, but in Germany for the Germans' benefit.

"At first the Germans tried to give their measures an air of plausibility by alleging that the unemployed people in Belgium were dangerous to public order and a burden to official charity. I replied to Governor von Bissing that he himself knew well that public order was in no way endangered and that the unemployed made no demands on official charity.

"In his answer von Bissing abandoned his previous argument and alleged that, first, the mere fact of widespread unemployment tends to burden finances, and, second, prolongation of unemployment will result in the workers losing their technical skill.

"To this I replied: 'There are other ways of protecting Belgian finances. For example, spare us the war levies which have reached a total of a milliard of francs, and continue at the rate of 40,000,000f. monthly; also spare us requisitions in kind, which have already totalled several milliards.

"'There are other ways of maintaining the professional skill of workmen. Belgian industry could have been allowed to keep its machines, accessories, raw material and manufactured products, which have been transferred to Germany.'

"The whole truth is that each deported workman means another soldier for the German Army. He will take the place of a German workman, who will be made a soldier.

Sums up the Situation.

"The situation which we denounce to the civilized world may be summed up as follows: Four hundred thousand workmen are reduced to unemployment through no fault of their own, and largely inconvenience the German occupation. Sons, husbands, fathers, respectful of public order, bow to their unhappy lot. With their most pressing

FIERCE FIGHTING ALONG RUSSIAN FRONT

PETROGRAD, Nov. 13.—A spirited artillery battle is in progress in the Narayuvka region in Galicia, southeast of Lemberg, where hard fighting for important ridge positions has been continuing for several days, the War Office announced today. In the Carpathians, both in the wooded district and to the south of Dorna Watra, heavy fighting is also going on, the Austro-German forces in the former region suffering great losses when one of their attacking columns was swept back by a bayonet charge. The official statement reads:

> Western Front—Yesterday, in the region of Garbuzov-Gukalov, Major General Remezov, the gallant commander of a brigade, was killed by an explosive bullet while inspecting our position.
> On the River Narayuvka, in the region of the villages of Lipnicadolna and Svistelniki, our artillery bombarded enemy trenches. This bombardment was answered with mine-thrower, bomb and mortar firing. The battle is still proceeding.
>
> On the River Bystritza, our scouts made successful reconnoissances in the region of the village of Bogorodhan and, after having cut through two rows of wire entanglements, attacked the enemy's ambuscade and captured several prisoners.
> In the wooded Carpathians enemy attacks southwest of the village of Dembrona were repelled with great losses by a vigorous bayonet attack. South of Dorna-Watra persistent enemy attacks still continue in the region of Hollo and Tolesh.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—There was nothing of military importance to report in yesterday's operations along the battlefront from the Baltic Sea to the Carpathian Mountains, says today's German official statement. The text reads:

> Eastern War Theatre—Front of Prince Leopold: Between the ocean and the Carpathians there were no important events.

BRITISH AIR FLEET ATTACKS OSTEND

LONDON, Nov. 13.—A squadron of British naval airplanes yesterday dropped a large number of bombs on German works in the harbor of Ostend and on war vessels there, according to a British official statement issued this afternoon. The bulletin reads:

> At noon yesterday a squadron of naval airplanes attacked the harbor of Ostend.
> A considerable number of bombs was dropped on the atelier de la marine and on the war vessels in the harbor.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The French War Office bulletin today has this to say of aerial operations:

> Nine bombarding airplanes and seven escorting planes of the British Royal Naval Air Service bombarded blast furnaces and foundries at Saint Ingbert, northeast of Saarbrucken, in the basin of the Sarre. All the machines returned.
> Two German machines last night dropped bombs on Belfort. Five civilians were killed.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—An official statement today reports successful attacks on Friday night by German airmen on Lunéville and Nancy and an aviation depot near by and the dropping of numerous bombs on military objects behind the lines of the Entente forces in the Somme region, following which large fires were observed. The statement reads:

> Hostile airplanes on the night of Nov. 10 attacked villages and factories in the Saar district. As the bombs fell in part on open fields and in part did not explode, only small damage was caused. There was no military damage, but several dwelling houses were hit. One inhabitant of Burbach was killed and another was badly and two inhabitants were slightly wounded. At Dillingen two persons were slightly wounded. At Saargemünde one airman, who had lost his way, destroyed one house, in which two inmates were killed and six wounded.
> An attack against Lorranian villages and factories on the same date, shortly before midnight, was entirely unsuccessful.
> On the same night our airmen dropped bombs of about 1,000 kilograms' weight on Luneville, Nancy, and the airplane station at Mazeville. On the Somme, our bombing squadron on the same night dropped bombs weighing about 6,000 kilograms on stations, ammunition depots, troop encampments and airplane stations. Conflagrations which lasted a long while were observed.

AMERICAN ON ARABIA SAW NO SUBMARINE

Paul R. Danner of Cambridge Says He Was on Deck When Vessel Was Hit.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Paul R. Danner, the only American on board the British steamer Arabia, which was sunk Nov. 6 in the Mediterranean, supposedly by a submarine, sends to The Associated Press the following signed statement from Malta:

"I am an American citizen and was a second-class passenger on the Arabia, bound for Marseilles. At 11:20 on the morning of the sixth of November I was sitting on the port side of the afterdeck when a tremendous shock to the ship occurred, immediately followed by an explosion.

"There was absolutely no warning whatever, not even one second. It appears from the statements of certain passengers who were on the starboard side that immediately they saw the periscope of a submarine appear out of the water about 300 yards distant on the starboard side the torpedo was fired.

"It was only thanks to the good fortune of a calm sea and that the boat floated evenly for a considerable time that we were all saved. There was certainly no warning of any character."

Paul R. Danner is a Harvard graduate who has been engaged in Young Men's Christian Association work in India. He was returning to his home in Cambridge, Mass.

The Arabia, according to a statement issued by the British Admiralty on Nov. 8, was sunk without warning. All of the 437 passengers and the crew, with the exception of two engineers, were saved by vessels which went to the rescue. The engineers were killed by the explosion. The Arabia was bound from Australia.

MIRAUMONT IS MENACED

LONDON, Nov. 13.—By a terrific attack north and south of the Ancre River the British troops broke the German line on a front of nearly five miles today, and advanced at some points for a distance of 2,000 yards.

Beaumont-Hamel, a very strong position north of the river, and the village of St. Pierre Divion, close to the southern bank, have been captured by Haig's forces, according to unofficial advices reaching London, but the official bulletin, issued from British Headquarters in France late tonight, makes no mention of the first place, although specifically stating that St. Pierre Divion is in British hands.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 prisoners, including 70 officers, have been reported already.

Severe fighting continues before Beaucourt-sur-Ancre, just north of the Anre, on the high ground about midway between Beaucourt-sur-Ancre and Serre, west of the road linking those villages, and around Serre. The latter place, according to the Reuter correspondent, is "the only place not captured in the first assault." Another unofficial dispatch says that "most of the British objectives have been gained."

This latest British drive was mainly directed against positions which the Germans had held for two years. There had been no serious fighting in the sector north of the Ancre since the opening of the British push on the 1st of July. Then the British line of attack extended five miles north of the river to Gommecourt, but when, after a few days, no progress was made in this region, efforts were confined to the area to the southward.

Miraumont Is Menaced.

Today's successes north of the river, taken in conjunction with the gains of three weeks ago on the Schwaben-Le Sar's line, south of the Ancre, threaten the envelopment of Miraumont on the Albert-Arras railway.

The British attack was begun in the early morning in the midst of mist and darkness. Unofficially it is stated that the operations extended from the Grandcourt-Pozières road to a point above Serre.

The attack appears to have been largely a surprise to the Germans, little resistance being offered at the first and second line trenches, except before Serre.

The mud, caused by the long spell of bad weather with almost continuous rains, had dried somewhat in the last two days, so the advancing British made good progress in No Man's Land. The onset was not hindered seriously by the German machine-gun fire.

The barrage fire, accompanying the assault, and the subsequent bombardments of the next line of works were described by German survivors as the most terrific experienced by them on any front.

South of the Ancre the British line swept in a northeasterly direction to the river bank opposite Beaucourt, cutting off the remaining fragment of the German position around St. Pierre Divion. Simultaneously Beaumont-Hamel was attacked from the opposite bank.

The positions of the Germans north of the Ancre were a part of the original German main line and were of exceptional strength, Beaumont-Hamel equaling Thiepval in the extent and security of its labyrinth of dugouts, while the German engineers had been laboring constantly for more than two years to make impregnable the defenses of which this was an important part.

There was a profusion of connected machine-gun redoubts, elaborate telephone and electric light systems, and great caverns, capable of sheltering companies of infantry. Prisoners say that the higher officers believed that Beaumont-Hamel could not be taken by the British.

Dispatches which state that this semi-fortress was captured by the British also report the taking of "valuable trenches" north of Serre.

Official Story of Successes.

Tonight's bulletin of the British headquarters gives this brief account of the day's operation:

> We attacked this morning astride the Ancre, and have succeeded in penetrating the German defenses on a front of nearly five miles.
>
> The strongly fortified village of St. Pierre Divion has fallen into our hands.
>
> Severe losses have been inflicted on the enemy; over 3,300 prisoners have passed through our collecting stations already, and more are coming in. The fighting continues.
>

The day report of the British War Office says:

> This morning we attacked on both sides of the Ancre, capturing a considerable number of prisoners.
>
> Hostile artillery activity continued during the night on our positions in the neighborhood of Les Boeufs and Gueudecourt. Gas was successfully dischaged by us against enemy trenches opposite Rans.
> The enemy's trenches were entered by us southeast of Armentières.

The day was comparatively calm along the French front, according to the bulletin issued by the War Office in Paris tonight. The day report likewise chronicles nothing of importance. It reads:

> There was nothing to report on the

Reports Allied Attacks Repulsed.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—Attempts of Entente troops to advance between the Ancre and the Somme yesterday were broken up by German artillery fire, the War Office announced today.

In the town of Sailly-Saillisel, according to the statement, the German forces continue to hold the east edge of the town. The bulletin reads:

> Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—Between the Ancre River and the Somme River there was intermittent strong artillery fighting.
>
> Our fire dispersed hostile infantry on the terrain before our positions south of Warlencourt, and it was effective against troops assembling in the British trenches to the west of Eaucourt l'Abbaye.
> In Sailly-Saillisel we hold the east ridge of the town. On both sides of the village the French attacked in the afternoon with strong forces. They were repulsed.
>

LONDON SEES GOAL REACHED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—The news of the resumption of the British offensive and its successful results is welcomed by the morning newspapers as the most important received from the Somme for several weeks. The Times says:

"The capture of Thiepval and of Schwaben Redoubt and of Stuff and Regina trench were steps to a goal which has now been attained. It is a goal well worth all it cost to win, for we have now annihilated the whole system of German defenses along twelve miles, which we originally set out to carry.

"The Germans, we are told, deemed this section impregnable. They devoted all that science could devise and labor accomplish during two whole years to make it impregnable. It went down before British attack as Thiepval, another fortress of the same character, went down before that resistless onrush in September.

"Those who think of such feats in the terms of former wars utterly fail to grasp their significance. Those who do not read history for the most part think of Combles, Morval, Thiepval, and St. Pierre Divion as they think of English villages they happen to know best. These villages in the German lines are the strongest points in an elaborate system of fortification, equipped with means of defense and offense more powerful than the most famous fortresses of former times and held in force by large forces of troops.

DESTROY TURKISH SHIPS.

Russian Submarines Sink Three Near the Bosporus.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 13.—Russian submarines have been active in the Black Sea near the Bosporus. One steamer was destroyed, a schooner was sunk, and another schooner, according to the Russian official statement issued today, was taken to Sebastopol. The text reads:

> Caucasus—Enemy attacks from the west of and from Gumishkan (northwest of Erzerum) and south of Kighi were repulsed.
> Black Sea—A Russian submarine near the Bosporus destroyed a ship which ran ashore after it had been torpedoed. A submarine also sank a sailing steamer and escorted another to Sebastopol.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—An official statement issued today regarding military operations in Mesopotamia says: Two British airplanes successfully dropped bombs on Turkish irregular troops on the Euphrates River.

NORWAY'S REPLY PACIFIC.

Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger Sees Hope of Agreement on Submarines.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via London.)—Although the Norwegian answer to the German note with respect to the submarine question has not yet been made public, the Lokal-Anzeiger learns that it is couched in a conciliatory spirit even though it does not concretely offer enough to warrant its being called satisfactory. Verbal explanations, which accompanied the note, says the Lokal-Anzeiger, were such that it is not impossible that an understanding will be reached.

The paper points out anew, however, that the solution of the difficulty and the future relations between the two countries depend wholly on Norway and the further explanations it may choose to make, and not upon Germany, which "is watching developments with calmness."

LIEUT. JABOULET KILLED.

Brother-in-law of H. D. Gatty Lived Here Several Years.

Sous-Lieutenant Vercherre H. C. Jaboulet of the Third Colonial Regiment of the French Army, a brother-in-law of H. D. Gatty of 448 Riverside Drive, was killed in action Sept. 4 at Barleux, France. He was a member of the firm of Vecherre et Cie., Burgundy importers, and lived here for several years, later returning to this city for frequent visits. At the beginning of the war Lieutenant Jaboulet, who was in his thirty-first year, enlisted, and soon afterward was sent to the front.

His death took place after a brilliant action, in which he led his men in taking a German trench. While the men were consolidating the position and placing machine guns, Lieutenant Jaboulet went forward to reconnoitre and was killed. His gallantry was emphasized in dispatches of the day and the War Cross was awarded him. His wife, who was Miss Rose Pauline Gatty, and his baby daughter are now in London.

"Now, suddenly, parties of soldiers begin to enter by force these peaceful homes, tearing youth from parent, husband from wife, father from children. They bar with the bayonet the door through which wives and mothers wish to pass to say farewell to those departing. They herd their captives in groups of tens and twenties and push them into cars. As soon as the train is filled the officer in charge brusquely waves the signal for departure. Thus thousands of Belgians are being reduced to slavery.

"The Germans are not only enrolling the unemployed, but they are also recruiting a great number of men who have never been out of work."

The Cardinal then gives examples of how various high German authorities have repeatedly given formal assurances that Belgian liberty would be respected. He closes with an appeal to all persons, allied and neutral, even of the enemy countries, who respect humanity, to aid him in opposing the deportations.

PREDICT A JOINT PROTEST.

America, Spain, and the Pope Will Unite, Rome Asserts.

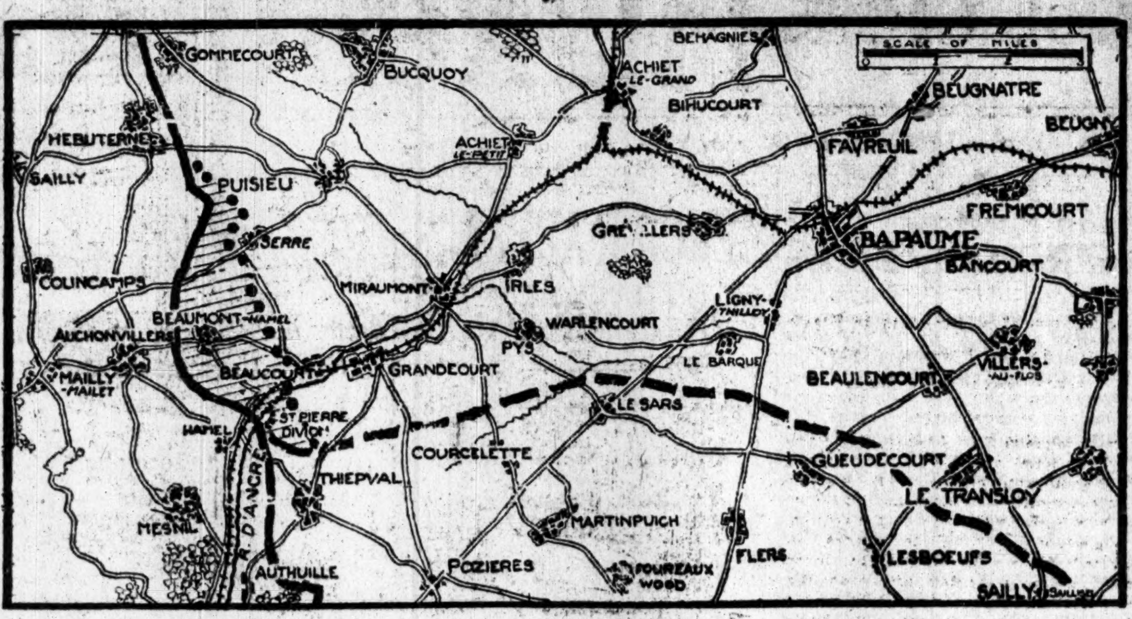
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—It is authoritatively stated here that the Pope, Spain, and the United States are preparing to take urgent joint action to stop the German deportation of Belgian laborers.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Dispatches from Rome say that the Pope is about to send a note to Germany protesting strongly against the reported wholesale deportation of Belgians.

The dispatches say that this decision of the Pontiff has become known semi-officially in Vatican circles.

Scene of Yesterday's British Successes.



A drive by the British troops at the inviting salient resulting from the recent gains north and northeast of Thiepval has long been inevitable, and, as it now seems, has only waited on favorable weather conditions. By means of yesterday's stroke Haig has materially sharpened the salient, and thus made easier the task of crushing it in from both sides, as was done by the Allies at Combles.

The solid black line here represents the approximate British front on July 1, when the great Somme offensive began. The dotted line shows the extent of yesterday's gains, assuming that the unofficial report of the capture of Beaumont-Hamel is correct. The broken line indicates the present British positions south of the Ancre.

Miraumont is the chief objective, it would seem, of the British operations which are now being developed, and may prove another Combles.

BERLIN CONFIDENT RUMANIA WILL FALL

Falkenhayn Said to be Forcing His Way Slowly but Surely to Bucharest.

RUSSIA CALLED IMPOTENT

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via Sayville.)—A slight, but when you know the terrain, significant, increase in the tempo of Field Marshal Falkenhayn's offensive, coupled with the seeming powerlessness of Russia to prevent the advance of the troops pouring through half a dozen wide open passes into Rumania, and the success of the heavy artillery in blasting mountain after mountain some 7,000 or 8,000 feet high and slowly clearing the track to the nearby plain for the bulk of Falkenhayn's infantry and cavalry, has caused the war correspondents to make preparations for another journey to that front.

Falkenhayn, still taciturn and declining to prophesy, as a staff officer who recently returned from his headquarters reported to me, is still plugging along through the principal passes with the steady, relentless slowness of a steam drill, using mainly picked veterans of the German storming formations against the rock front of the Rumanians, which begins to show signs of crumbling in some places under the merciless pounding of the heavy German mortar batteries.

The driving power of Falkenhayn's offensive is being cunningly and bafflingly varied from pass to pass to keep the Rumanians guessing as to where the main blow is coming, and consequently in a state of doubt as to where to throw their reserves. The operations in the Transylvania Alps are in fact a mixture of lightning fast body blows and feints applied to the whole Rumanian front with the cleverness of a scientific boxer, the idea being for the present to send the Rumanian defending army reeling back to the plain and pounding it to grogginess for a final knockout.

Falkenhayn's progress through the snow-covered mountains has been particularly noticeable in the last few days, particularly beyond the Rothenthurm Pass, where I am advised that General Krafft von Nellmensingen has gained nearly thirty kilometers since I was with him, pushing ahead to both sides of the Alt River into Wallachia, with the important railroad base of Ramsea Valzeat as his immediate objective, the easier downhill going enabling his Alpine troops to accelerate their pace.

Synchroneously the German divisions which were making no appreciable progress toward the important railroad centre of Campulung when I was with them have at last succeeded in breaking down the stubborn Rumanian resistance, and are now holding the heights dominating Campulung while gaining further valuable ground to the north, their creeping offensive being directed toward the important railroad junction Pitesci in the hope of cutting off one of the main strategic rail connections with Bucharest, the operations north of Campulung and beyond the Rothenthurm pass being closely connected.

Nor have the Rumanians, though fighting desperately and more successfully than at the start of the offensive, been able to stop Falkenhayn's columns pouring through the Predeal and Altschanz passes south of Kronstadt, the German storming formations still continuing to gain ground at both points of attack with the important railroad junctions of Ploesci and Buzeu as their penultimate goal.

In view of Falkenhayn's continued progress, particular importance attaches to recent happenings on the Russian front, where Generals von Bothmer, Linsingen, and Woyrsch have served notice on the Russians on the Narayuvka, Stockod, and at Baranovitchi that they are on the watch for any withdrawal of Russian troops to the hard-pressed Rumanian front, while the mystery in which Mackensen has shrouded himself is arousing the liveliest expectations. Major Moraht in the Tageblatt says: "In the offensive spirit that has always and everywhere animated Mackensen's army we may further have confidence."

Berlin Review of General Situation.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The military critic of the Overseas News Agency, commenting on the recent activities of the armies of the Central Powers, says:

"The German successes at Skrobowa, in Russia, near Baranovichi, and on the Narayuvka River, in Galicia, as reported Nov. 10 and 11, are of more than local importance. At Skrobowa the Russians were thrown from strong positions, which they had been fortifying for many months, while on the Narayuvka they were driven to the east bank of the river, with heavy losses. Rapidly concentrated reserves and counterattacks tenaciously repeated could not change these results.

"After a pause, the armies of the Central Powers have again taken the offensive, in spite of attempts made by the Entente to defeat them on the Somme, the Isonzo, and Macedonian fronts, and although Rumania has appeared as a new adversary in the arena. The armies have pushed back the enemy, who had advanced in East Transylvania, until he had reached the line of Ratosnya-Szekely, a distance of about 80 kilometers, and now the vanguards are standing in the Trotus and Uza Valleys, on Rumanian territory.

"On the northern line the connecting troops of General Koevess's army on Nov. 5 and 6 rapidly overcame the advantages which the Russians for the moment had obtained in the Tulges sector. The Russian enterprises of the last few days at Dorna-Watra came to a standstill on the Bistricioria.

"On the Narayuvka our successes of Nov. 5 and 6 were further extended for a considerable length and maintained against five counterattacks.

"In the district of Vladimir-Volynski, west of Lutsk, the German front is as firm as ever, while the Austrian successes of Nov. 6 east of Kirlibaba and on the Jedul are still fresh in the memory."

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

After a long period of comparative inactivity, or better, perhaps, futile activity, the British have launched a major attack in an entirely new section of the Somme line. This section is in part the line that received the first shock of the British offense in July. At that time the British advanced beyond the village of Serre, but the Germans, pivoting on their strongly fortified position at Thiepval, swung back and regained most of the ground lost in this section. Now after several months the British have again struck, and this time have made serious inroads in the German lines.

There is subject matter in this for serious consideration. Three months ago this position was practically impregnable. Today the British swept over it for a depth of more than a mile, capturing a large number of prisoners and many defensive guns. The question is, why the difference then and now? No better proof could be asked, if, indeed, further proof were needed, of a fact frequently stated in this column. German numbers have suffered to such an extent that they are not sufficient to defend more than a comparatively short section of their line. A blow at any other section during the last month has always gained materially and with comparative ease.

It is noticeable that during the last month the heaviest fighting has been before Les Boeufs and Gueudecourt and for the village of Sailly-Saillisel. But two isolated attacks at the extremities of the Somme line, one at Chaulnes and the other that of the British yesterday, delivered while the fighting in other quarters has been at its height, have been entirely successful.

This may not mean an insufficiency of German numbers. But if it means anything else the cause is not apparent. Certainly the German reserve is not sufficient to feed into the firing line at a rate sufficient to overcome the rate of wastage. Consequently such reinforcements as are thrown into the firing line come from other sections of the line which are denuded to the last degree of safety in order that the threatened point may not be forced to give way.

It is not to be expected that the German line will eventually be broken or forced into a general giving way. At the came time, the present situation, as revealed by the success of these isolated attacks, gives ground for the theory that this is a possibility to be considered. The fear of it is apparently in the mind of the German High Command also, otherwise there would not be so many and such positive protests from the Germans that it cannot be done. If it were not in their minds, they would not speak of it. As a matter of fact, no one can speak with authority as to what can or cannot happen. The development of trench warfare is a development of the present war. Such a situation as that which now exists has never been seen before in the history of war, and there is nothing to guide us as to what it may bring forth.

Details of just how far the British have advanced their lines and what the present position is, are not available as yet. It appears, however, that the British have taken St. Pierre Divion and Beaumont Hamel, and as well the scattered houses of Beaucourt which lies between.

The spread of the attack north of the Ancre brook is significant. The ground between the present British lines north of le Sars is strongly held by the Germans, and is such that the advantage of terrain is against the offense. The Butte de Warlencourt affords gun positions and a point of observation which have proved a barrier to the British advance.

If, however, the British are able to advance up the Ancre Valley two important objects will have been achieved. In the first place, the familiar double salient will have been created, but in two ways. South of the Ancre the Germans will be taken in rear and almost surrounded, while north of the brook a similar situation will have arisen, although in a form not so exaggerated. The German positions south of the brook, which have been giving the British such a great deal of trouble, will be turned, and, taken from the rear, will have to be evacuated as the British north of the brook push forward.

In other words, the situation now is that with every advance north of the river not one, but two sections of the German line will be affected. If the Germans south of the Ancre can be dislodged by a flanking operation in the north, then will come a situation very much to the British liking. The salient of which Beaucourt has been the apex is almost a right angle. The sides of this angle are too far apart for the guns on one side to reach to the other. Unless this can be done there is nothing necessarily weak in this form of battle line. At present there is nothing weak in the German position, and will not be until the salient can be sharpened into an acute angle. As this angle is produced the length of German lines which can be reached by the British artillery increases, so that with each blow a greater front is affected. This is the principal danger to the Germans in this last attack.

When the British are able to gain good gun positions north of the Ancre (and it may be that this last attack has brought them this advantage) the German line which stretches north from Beaumont-Hamel will be doubled up on short sections at a time. The situation about Combles will then be duplicated. A continuation of this process and the line will then be straightened out from Arras south.

By a roundabout way there comes a report that the Russians have crossed the Danube behind Mackensen in Dobrudja, and, by the threat against his line of communications, have compelled his retreat. It is not apparent that this report is authentic, but it creates an interesting possibility which has not escaped comment.

Mackensen bases his entire campaign in Dobrudja on the theory that his flanks were safe and could not be turned—that is, the Danube could not be crossed in his rear and troops could not be landed by the Black Sea route behind his right flank. It will probably prove that so far his assumption is correct. But there is no reason to doubt that a movement across the Danube is within the bounds of possibility.

The situation is entirely different from that which existed when the Rumanians tried this expedient some time ago. Now it is recognized that Mackensen is under severe pressure in front, pressure which has driven him back for thirty miles. If an attack is threatened against the single thread upon which all his supplies come, he must turn a part of his forces to meet it. A weakening of his present front in the face of the reverses which it has so far met would be dangerous in the extreme.

The Russians need not cross in great force. A heavy raiding body would be sufficient. Mackensen would then have to fall back or send sufficient troops to the rear to ward off the blow. The effect in either case would be the same—giving up the cherished railroad to the Rumanians.

While he was in England General Hughes, after investigating the Canadian Army Medical Corps, relieved Surgeon General Guy Carleton Jones of his command. The Government promptly replaced him.

Criticism by General Hughes of action taken by British authorities both in regard to the handling of Canadian army supplies and of the Canadian forces, it is said, has been resented.

It has been stated that there was a lack of cordiality between General Hughes and the Duke of Connaught, who has just left Canada, after five years' service as Governor General. The accumulation of differences has led to the breach which has come today.

It is unofficially admitted that Sir Sam really consented to resign "in view of the public criticism which has been made against him undermining general confidence in the war administration," and in the interests of national unity. However, when this excerpt from the "unofficial" statement, which was obviously inspired from the Premier's office, was shown to Sir Sam, his comment was: "Sam Hughes did not say that."

Sir Sam intimates that he would like to have the full correspondence made public, but evidently each side is waiting for the other.

Long at Odds With His Colleagues.

A difference over Canada's war policy is said to have caused the resignation of General Sir Sam Hughes from his post of Minister of Militia and Defense, yet "differences" over matters of policy and other things have occurred with unusual frequency in the career of the man who has been known as Canada's military idol and, heretofore, they have seemed to provide only opportunities for Sir Sam to increase his power and his repute. He has been compared, in speech, manner, and appearance, to General Leonard Wood, and in speech, some times to General Bingham, once New York's Police Commissioner. Again he has been called Canada's own Rough Rider, with the obvious intent of comparing him with Colonel Roosevelt.

Probably Sir Sam is like all these men, at least in the force of character which he has disclosed whenever the occasion has required it, and, according to his political opponents, sometimes when it hasn't. He has never been accused of dodging a fight, and he has been in many, notably the recent "difference" with his fellow-Conservatives in the Canadian Government when his resignation was demanded in connection with a graft scandal rising out of the award to American companies of war contracts. Sir Sam returned from England, demanded a full investigation, and received complete exoneration. Nevertheless there are those now who see in his present resignation a reflection of the difficulties which he seemed to have conquered last Summer.

The Canadian Minister was at odds with others in authority over the letting of ammunition contracts as long ago as October of last year, when D. A. Thomas, the Welsh mine owner and agent of Lloyd George, charged that Canadian ammunition production facilities and deliveries were poor and prices higher than those demanded for the same product by manufacturers in the United States. The trouble came to a head last March, when the Conservatives, the party in power, demanded that the Premier dismiss the General after charges against him had been made by G. W. Kyte in the Dominion Parliament.

Mr. Kyte introduced documentary evidence to support his accusation that middlemen's profits of more than $1,500,000 had been obtained and divided by Colonel J. Wesley Allison, who was connected with the Militia Department and a close friend of Sir Sam; B. F. Yoakum American railway man and financier, and Eugene Lignanti, former leader of a hotel orchestra in Montreal, and also a friend of General Hughes. It was charged that Sir Sam indorsed the issuance of contracts to "mushroom" munition enterprises in the United States, these being the American Ammunition Company and the International Arms and Fuse Company.

At the demand of the General the Meredith-Duff Royal Commission was appointed to try these charges, and, on July 21, the commission filed its findings holding Sir Sam innocent of responsibility for these negotiations. In part the commission found that, in reference to the agreement between Allison and Yoakum to divide the profits of whatever business Allison might bring to Yoakum:

"The transaction was but the carrying out of what is the common practice of promoters. But for Allison's connection with Yoakum and the position Allison occupied in relation to General Hughes and the Shell Committee, the transaction would have been a matter which concerned only the parties to it and persons who should become shareholders in the company."

Of General Hughes's indorsement of the contract, the commission said:

"It was suggested that the presence of an indorsement on the American company's contract of a memorandum of its ratification by General Hughes as Minister of Militia indicated that General Hughes had taken part in the negotiations which led up to the making of the contract and gave support to the view that the contract was his contract, and not that of the Shell Committee, and was forced upon the committee in order that Allison might obtain a commission. There is, in our opinion, no ground for that suggestion."

Sir Sam was appointed Minister of Militia and Defense in 1911. He was knighted by King George last year. He was born in 1853 in Ontario, went to Australia and South Africa in his youth, taught school and edited a newspaper for a living, and played at soldiering for fun. He grabbed the chance offered by the South African war, and returned to Canada as a Colonel. He continued to advocate a democratic army and the training of all men in the nation, and kept up his interest in the militia.

He found time to play politics as hard as he had played at soldiering and had been a member of the Canadian Parliament since 1892, when his appointment came as Minister. With the outbreak of the war he became Canada's Man of the Hour, a sort of Kitchener of the West. His work of organizing armies in Canada has been as successful as was the work of Lord Kitchener in England, and, until the first charges were brought against him, it seemed that he would employ this particular "difference" between nations to lift himself to still higher posts.

AMERICAN SKIPPER U-BOAT'S PRISONER

THREE FELLOW-CAPTIVES

Shipmaster's Statement Contradicts Report That Vessel Was Held Up for Two Days.

CORRUNA, Spain, Nov. 13, (via Paris.)—Captain Frederick Curtis of the American steamer Columbian, who arrived here with the rescued crew of this steamship, told a representative of The Associated Press today that he was a prisoner on board the German submarine U-49 for six days after the destruction of his vessel.

All of the 109 members of the Columbian's crew were saved, Captain Curtis said. Captain Curtis said the Columbian was warned before she was torpedoed and sunk. The crew was left in lifeboats, but the Captain was taken on board the submarine.

Captain Arthur Patterson of the British steamer Seatonia says that he also was a prisoner on board the U-49 for eight days, during which time he heard the guns of the submarine in action and also heard distinctly the explosion of the torpedo which, he learned later, blew up the Norwegian ship Balto.

"My ship, registered at New York," said Captain Curtis to the correspondent, "carried a cargo of about 9,000 tons and a crew of 109, all of whom were saved. I stopped on the command of the submarine, whose commander ordered me to abandon ship, with the crew, immediately, which we did without other baggage than two satchels with documents and money.

"Submarine U-49 fired at once two torpedoes at the Columbian, which immediately sank. The crew was left in lifeboats, while I was taken on board the submarine, which plunged immediately after I was taken into the small Quartermaster's cabin, where I found the Captains of the Seatonia and the Balto. After me came Captain Yelugsen of the Fordalen. The cabin was very small. It contained a little folding table, a folding chair, and three bunks. Everything was permeated with the odor of benzine. There was no communication with the exterior and the cabin was absolutely dark, night and day. We were fed in the morning with a few morsels of black bread, a cup of coffee, and a small portion of bad butter; at noon with a stew of canned meat and soup, and at supper, at 10 o'clock, with coffee or tea and black bread, with butter or marmalade. The hours spent in this narrow prison were very long and disagreeable."

The Captain of the submarine, said Captain Curtis, was about 36 years of age, while his crew of forty sailors were all very young. All were attired in clothing of glossy leather.

Captains Curtis and Patterson said that they were allowed at intervals, between the operations of the submarine, to go on deck to smoke. They were watched by members of the crew, armed with revolvers, but when they went below the crew put aside their weapons. There was only one chair in the cabin, which the Captains used in turn; otherwise they had to lie on the bunks.

The submarine signalled to the Swedish steamer Varing thirteen miles off the Spanish port of Camarinas toward noon of Nov. 9. The steamer stopped and was ordered to take aboard the Captains and land them. She was also ordered to take aboard the crews of the Columbian and Norwegian steamers. All were welcomed aboard the Varing.

The submarine watched the operation, and then ordered the Varing to make for the coast, six miles from Camarinas. The Varing was directed to set out lifeboats and embark the shipwrecked men in them. This was a long and difficult operation, and an American from Columbia fell into the sea and narrowly escaped drowning. He was slightly injured during his rescue.

A dispatch from Madrid printed in THE TIMES yesterday said that the Columbian was held up for two days by the submarine before being torpedoed, because of the bad weather.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A wireless dispatch from Madrid says that 109 persons from the American steamship Columbian, which was reported to have been torpedoed on Nov. 8, arrived yesterday on sailing vessels at the small port of Camurinas. Twenty-five men from the Norwegian steamship Balto and twenty-five from the Norwegian steamship Fordalen also were taken to Camurinas on the sailing boats, of which there were four. The dispatch says all three vessels are reported to have been sunk by torpedoes from a German steamship.

A Paris dispatch yesterday said the Columbian, Balto, and Fordalen had been sunk by a German submarine. The crew of the Columbian was reported to have carried at Corunna, Spain, in lifeboats.

MADRID, Nov. 13, (via Paris.)—The American Ambassador, Joseph E. Willard, has instructed the American Consul at Bilbao to proceed to Corunna for the purpose of interrogating the officers and crew of the steamer Columbian.

GERMAN RAIDERS SUNK IN GULF OF FINLAND

PETROGRAD, Nov. 13, (via London.)—An official statement issued here today says that a majority of German vessels which took part Friday in a bombardment in the Gulf of Finland were sunk. The German warships, the statement says, were 36-knot torpedo craft.

> Baltic Sea—On Friday night a flotilla of the enemy's 36-knot torpedo craft entered the Bay of Finland. A dense fog hindered discovery of the enemy's vessels in good time and in consequence the enemy succeeded in bombarding the Baltic coast for several minutes.
>
> About 100 shells, mostly shrapnel, were fired. Seven civilians, including five children, and two rank and file were killed. One woman and four soldiers were wounded. Several houses were damaged, and twelve horses were killed.
>
> The enemy retired hurriedly, but we sank a majority of the torpedo craft. Further pursuit of hostile units was abandoned in consequence of dense fog and the timely discovery of the enemy's traps.

The Gulf of Finland is an arm of the Baltic Sea, between Finland and the Russian Baltic provinces. At the eastern end of the bay is Kronstadt, the outer port of Petrograd. The entrance to the gulf is guarded by the fortresses of Helsingfors, Hango, and Reval.

Most of the German naval activity in the war with Russia has been in the vicinity of the Gulf of Riga, and on one occasion the Germans effected a landing in the rear of the Russian line. The fact that only light German warships were employed on Friday indicates that the purpose of the German Admiralty was merely to make a quick raid.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via London.)—German torpedo boat forces on Friday entered the Gulf of Finland and effectively shelled the Russian naval base of Baltic Port, at short range, according to an official statement issued today by the German Admiralty.

Baltic Port is near the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, thirty-eight miles west of the Russian naval station of Reval. The port is the terminus of the Baltic Railroad.

The text of the Admiralty announcement says:

> German torpedo boat forces on Friday night while reconnoitring pushed into the Finnish Bay as far as Baltic Port and effectively shelled the harbor and buildings of this Russian naval base at short range.

THE L-1 OFF BLOCK ISLAND.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 13.—There was considerable excitement in naval and shipping circles this afternoon because of reports that a vessel had sighted a German submarine in the vicinity of Point Judith.

Later reports from Coastguard Life-Saving Station 56, at Green Hill, six miles south of Point Judith, said that a submarine flying the American flag had been sighted off that station this afternoon. The submarine was identified later as the L-1.

Submarines have been operating about Block Island waters close to Point Judith for some time. It is supposed they are doing neutrality patrol work.

THREE BRITISH SHIPS SUNK.

Captain of the Morazan Taken Prisoner on German U-Boat.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Lloyd's announces that the British steamers Caterham Morazan, and Kapunda have been sunk. The crew of the Morazan has been landed, but her Captain was held prisoner.

The Caterham was a vessel of 1,084 tons net. She was last reported as having sailed from the Tyne, Oct. 20, for Rouen, France.

The Morazan, a vessel of 3,486 tons gross, was owned by the Liverpool Shipping Company. She sailed from Calcutta Sept. 18 for Dundee, and was last reported as arriving at Suez Oct. 19.

The Kapunda, of 3,097 tons gross, was 330 feet long and was built at West Hartlepool in 1908. The vessel was owned by the Melbourne Steamship Company of West Hartlepool.

GERMANS SEIZE DUTCH SHIP.

Batavier VI. Was Carrying Contraband, Says Overseas News Agency.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via Sayville.)—German sea forces attached to the Flanders naval station on Nov. 12 stopped the Dutch steamer Batavia VI. off the mouth of the river Thames, according to the Overseas News Agency. The steamship was taken into port by the German warships. The Dutch vessel was carrying great quantities of contraband, the news agency adds.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 13.—There were no passengers on board the steamer Batavia VI., which was captured by the German sea forces off the mouth of the Thames.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—A dispatch from Reuter's from Malmo, Sweden, says the Swedish steamer Rhea, bound from Malmo for Stockholm, with a general cargo, has been seized and taken into a German port.

JAPANESE SUBMARINE LOST.

KOBE, Japan, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—The superdreadnought Ise was successfully launched today.

While in the inland sea returning from the ceremony a gasoline explosion destroyed submarine No. 4. Six officers of the under-water boat were seriously and eight seamen slightly injured. Two of the crew are missing.

THE DEUTSCHLAND LOADED.

Undersea Freighter Nearly Ready to Sail—May Start Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 13.—Sixty of the eighty negro stevedores who have been loading the German submarine Deutschland are still at work at the State Pier, the remainder of the gang having been paid off. The work of loading the undersea boat ceased at 11 o'clock tonight, and it is reported only an hour's labor tomorrow will be required to have all freight on board.

One hundred tons of crude oil have already been siphoned into the Deutschland's tanks and twenty-five tons more are on the wharf. The Deutschland's machinery has been carefully inspected and overhauled since her arrival here and pumps and other parts of the ingenious mechanism have been tested.

Many of the Deutschland's crew are ashore tonight, notwithstanding the report that last Saturday night was the final liberty leave. Those who have gleaned news about the submarine's berth predict that the Deutschland will leave port not later than Wednesday. A report was in circulation this evening that the submarine would not get away before Friday or Saturday.

The rule to allow no visitors aboard the Deutschland is strictly adhered to. A woman who owns a small house on the bluff north of the State Pier has reaped a harvest charging twenty-five cents for a peep at the submarine from the second story, binoculars being furnished gratuitously. Her receipts up to date total $95.

ALLIES HONOR GREEK KING.

Russian Minister Dines Him, and Other Envoys Attend Reception.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Prince Elim Demidoff, the Russian Minister to Greece, gave a dinner to King Constantine and members of the royal family at Athens today, says a Havas dispatch from that city which adds that all the Ministers of the Entente powers attended a reception which followed the dinner.

The correspondent at Saloniki of the same agency sends the following speech, delivered by former Premier Venizelos in presenting a flag to the Fourth Regiment of the Seres Division in the presence of all the Ministers and Generals of the Venizelos Government, as well as high officers of the Entente Allies.

"I am sure the regiment to which I present this standard as a symbol of the old and new history of the Hellenic race will always march to victory. We must beat once for all the Bulgars, whose ambition it is to be the Prussians of the Balkans.

"Soldiers of the Seres Division, the eyes of all Greeks are turned toward you. Yo go to deliver anew Macedonia, which is sullied by the enemy."

The Colonel of the regiment in reply said:

Saloniki Withdraws Gift to King.

ATHENS, Nov. 11, (via London, Nov. 13.—The municipality of Saloniki, in which was launched the movement to take Greece into the war in opposition to the wishes of King Constantine, has formally revoked its gift of Villa Alatini and Niaousa Forest, made to the King after the Balkan war. The reason assigned is the "ingratitude" of the King.

REPORT MACKENSEN IN HURRIED RETREAT

TEUTON SUCCESS IN NORTH

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Russians have crossed the Danube into Dobrudja at two points south of Cernavoda, and the Russian fleet has renewed the bombardment of Constanza, according to Petrograd advices received today by wireless by way of Rome. Field Marshal von Mackensen is reported as continuing his retreat with demoralized forces and with one-third of his effectives lost. The ravages of disease and the reverses suffered are declared to have seriously affected the morale of von Mackensen's army, while the reinforcements he requested to make good his losses are said not to have been provided, his retreat, therefore, being conducted under disastrous conditions.

The Russian official bulletin contains merely this reference to the Dobrudja operations: "On our left flank our troops have made a slight advance to the southward."

Regarding the situation on the Transylvanian front Petrograd announces that Austro-German forces are directing violent attacks against the Rumanian positions in the region of Campulung, says a Russian official statement issued today. The Rumanians, after being pushed back in the region of Oituz Valley, attacked the Teutons north and south of Tolvenoling and captured a series of heights. Bucharest reports that in an all-day battle in the region of Dragoslavele, northeast of Campulung, the Rumanians maintained their positions, but that on the right bank of the River Alt the Rumanian forces were compelled to yield ground.

> Rumanian Front—In Transylvania the enemy, after having launched an attack in the region of Oituz Valley, pushed back the Rumanians, who in turn launched an attack north and south of Tolvenoling and occupied a range of heights.
>
> The enemy is launching fierce attacks in the region of the Rumanian town of Campulung.
>

The Rumanian statement reads:

> Northern and Northwestern Fronts—On the western frontier of Moldavia and as far as Predelus there was nothing new.
>
> In the Prahova Valley there was an artillery bombardment in the whole sector west of the river. We repulsed two enemy attacks in the direction of Cerbural Valley, northwest of Busioni.
>
>
> In the Valley of the Alt we repulsed all enemy attacks on the left bank of the river. On the right bank under pressure of the enemy we yielded ground in the region of Saracinesti.
>

Germans Take 3 Towns and 1,000 Men.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—On the Transylvania front yesterday Austro-German troops captured three towns and repulsed numerous Rumanian attacks, the War Office announces. More than 1,000 prisoners were taken. In Dobrudja, Field Marshal von Mackensen's forces repelled troops which were advancing on the west bank of the Danube. Following is the official statement:

> Front of Archduke Charles Francis—In the Gyergyo Mountains German and Austro-Hungarian battalions captured Dicta and Arsuriler. There and on the heights east of Belbor, and also on the east bank of the Putna, the Rumanians made several attacks in a futile effort to dispute with us the ground gained. Hostile advances in the mountains, on both sides of Oituz Pass, were repulsed.
> Northwest of Campulung our troops captured Candesti. Southeast of Rothenthurm Pass, on the Szurduk Road, and north of Orsova, Rumanian forces made counterattacks without success. In addition to their sacrifices in killed or wounded, the Rumanians lost more than 1,000 prisoners.
>

A Prince of Hohenzollern, with the German troops fighting against Rumania, said in a speech during a dinner at the headquarters of the Ninth Army that by his presence with the army he desired to express as a German his feeling of indignation against Rumania's breach of faith.

GREECE BLOCKED ALLIES.

Petrograd Believes Operations in Rumania Are Now Only Local.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 14.—Operations in the Rumanian theatre of war must for the time being be regarded as of merely local importance, according to the Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post. The correspondent writes:

"The Allies' whole plan of campaign in this quarter fell through as soon as it became evident that the forces at Saloniki were unable to devote their undivided attention to their task, owing to the attitude of Greece.

"If the adhesion of the Rumanians had been accompanied by similar action by Greece—which it is believed here could have been brought about by the use of a couple of warships at the proper moment—matters would now be very different, and joint action from Saloniki and the Dobrudja would by now have cut off Germany's supplies of men from Turkey.

"The Turks have always been among the finest war material in the world, and under German Sergeants they must be considered extremely formidable. Greece has been allowed to prevent the allied scheme of cutting off Germany, or at any rate to postpone the scheme for another year."

HARDEN RIDICULES EDICT TO POLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 13, (Dispatch to The London Daily Express.)—In Saturday's Zukunft Maximilian Harden, himself of Polish descent, makes the following scathing comment on the Polish question:

"On Nov. 5 the Governors of Poland expressed the will of Emperors William and Francis Joseph about the creation of a Polish State without a King and without frontiers, yet Poland is not yet conquered. A wish has been expressed which can only materialize after the triumphant victory of Germany's cause, after a victory allowing the two empires to dictate their peace. Many hearts will rejoice that the two Emperors last Sunday were cocksure that that victory is in sight, and it is their right to express confidence; but Article 17 of our constitution requires the Chancellor to sign any imperial decisions if they are to have any value.

"As to the Polish affair there is no decision but merely an expression of the wish of the Chancellor, who has not [illegible] Therefore the German Federated Governments [illegible]"

Harden's remarks naturally caused consternation in Berlin. Meanwhile every possible Pole is to be forced into the army to fight against Russia. This appears to be due to Hindenburg's latest move.

U-BOAT CHAMPIONS IN BERLIN SILENCED

South German Radical Leader Says Agitation Against Chancellor Has Passed Flood.

WILL NOT ANNEX BELGIUM

Reichstag Committee Expected to Reach Agreement on Future Relations with Kingdom.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via London.)—The Executive Committee of the National Radical Party concluded here today a two days' session devoted to a discussion of the party policy in the past and outlining tactics for its representatives in the Reichstag in the future.

The committee adopted, with one dissenting voice, a resolution approving the action of its Reichstag representatives who supported the Imperial Chancellor almost solidly during the recent crisis and condemning intrigues against the Chancellor.

A feature of the meeting was a long report by Friedrich von Payer, the South German Radical leader in the Reichstag, on the Parliamentary activities of the party in the last year. Herr von Payer discussed the submarine crisis without mincing words. He arraigned the Conservatives and Pan-Germans for their attempt to get rid of an "inconvenient" Chancellor by means of an ostensibly patriotic agitation. He said the Government had displayed no lack of force in combating the movement for unrestricted submarine warfare, although this was supported not only by the Conservatives and Pan-Germans, but also by volunteers from other parties, including individual Radicals, who patriotically believed that it was necessary to wage war against England with all available weapons, even at the cost of provoking a crisis in the Chancellorship.

The agitation against the Chancellor, and in favor of unrestricted submarine warfare, said Herr von Payer, had passed the flood and had lost much of its interest, now that two candidates for Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg's shoes, Admiral von Tirpitz and General von Falkenhayn, had been eliminated through their own fault and the course of fate. The Reichstag had decided to place the submarine policy in the hands of Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

Concerning the discussions on Belgium in the Reichstag committee last week, Herr von Payer said:

"Nobody now desires to annex it; nobody even desires to seem to have ever wished to annex it. It will therefore probably remain a sovereign State. On the other hand, nobody desires conditions to remain as before the war. The danger that Belgium will become a stamping ground for British domination must be counteracted.

"The Socialists are inclined to the view that materially no propositions should be made which Belgium would be unable to accept with honor, and that the regulation of Belgian relations must occur through agreement, not one-sided dictation. The Conservatives and Pan Germans, on the contrary, wish to make use of the land for Germany's naval position. Many practical possibilities and solutions lie between these antipodes.

"The peace debate showed that everybody desires peace, desires an open statement that no effort at a rapprochement will be repulsed, and that a great effort should be made toward the organization of institutions on an international basis to prevent or render difficult future wars."

AIR RAIDERS KILL 60.

Women and Children Slain by Austrian Bombs, Rome Says.

ROME, Nov. 13.—Sixty women and children were killed in an air raid on Weadova carried out by an Austrian squadron on Saturday, the War Office announced today. The statement reads:

Trentino and Carnia fronts: The artillery was very active. In the Terragnolo Valley rapid enemy movements are continuing, although hindered by the fire of our batteries.

On Saturday afternoon a squadron of enemy airplanes dropped bombs on Weadova. A building in which numerous women and children had taken refuge was destroyed. The greater part of the inmates were killed. The number of dead already accounted for is sixty.

VIENNA, Nov. 13.—The official communication today says that there is nothing to report from the Italian theatre. The communication adds:

During the night of Nov. 12 and 13 our seaplanes dropped bombs on manufacturing establishments at Ponte Lagoscuro and railway buildings at Ravenna. Splendid results were achieved. At the former place two direct hits were made on a sugar refinery, one direct hit on a sulphur refinery, another on an electrical works, and still another on a railroad bridge. Several fires were observed. The station building at Ravenna also received a direct hit. All the machines returned unharmed.

Canadians Arrive in England.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 13.—It was announced officially today that the following troops have arrived safely in England: The 110th, 114th, 133d, 142d, 159th, 161st, 162d, and 168th Ontario battalions, 184th Manitoba battalion, 195th and 209th Saskatchewan battalions, 131st British Columbia battalion, and 196th Western Universities battalion, together with drafts of the 192d Alberta battalion, army medical corps, engineers and naval ratings.

SERBS GAIN 7 MILES IN TWO-DAY BATTLE

ENEMY'S CENTRE SMASHED

Bayonet Charge Completes Work of the French Artillery—Three Airplanes Also Bagged.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Official dispatches from the Macedonian front show that the victory won by the Serbs, supported by French infantry and artillery, in the bend of the Cerna River was a brilliant and a smashing one. The battle lasted two days and resulted in an advance of nearly seven miles beyond the village of Polog, the occupation of which was reported yesterday, and the capture of the village of Iven, sixteen more cannon, and upward of 1,000 Bulgars and Germans. The allied troops are now twelve miles beyond the Serbian border.

Army of the East: In the Cerna region the battle which has been proceeding for the last two days continues with violence. It is increasingly apparent that the engagement is a brilliant success for our arms.

Supported by intense fire from the French artillery, Serbian troops in the loop of the Cerna gained a fresh victory over the Bulgar-German forces, who were obliged to abandon, after a sanguinary fight, the village of Iven, (five miles north of Polog,) and to fall back for a distance of three kilometers to the north of that place under the victorious pressure of our allies. Five counterattacks were delivered by the enemy, who, defending himself obstinately, was unable to check our advance.

Smashed by our artillery fire in the centre and attacked with the bayonet by Serbian infantry, the enemy was obliged to fall back in disorder, having sustained considerable loss. Further to the west Serbian forces, to which had been added contingents of French infantry, extended their progress to the north of Velyeselo, (in the Cerna River bend.) More than 1,000 prisoners so far have been counted. Sixteen more guns were captured on the ground abandoned by the enemy.

Since Sept. 14, when our offensive began, the Germans and Bulgarians have left in the hands of the (Entente) Allies 6,000 prisoners, 72 cannon, and fifty-three machine guns.

The Serbian official communication as received here says:

Yesterday, in co-operation with the French, we continued the pursuit of the enemy northward and captured the village of Iven, on the Cerna, northeast of Polog.

Our booty consisted of 16 field guns, 21 caissons, 14 limbers, and a large quantity of artillery and infantry ammunition, rifles, and other material. The number of prisoners is not yet known. Enemy dead strewed the battlefield.

The British War Office reports that three enemy airplanes have been shot down within the allied lines.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (via Wireless to Sayville.)—Serbian forces yesterday launched attacks against the Bulgarian and German positions south of Monastir and in the bend of the Cerna River, but, according to today's German official statement, they were repulsed, with heavy losses, and the Bulgar-German positions were maintained. The text reads:

Macedonia Front—On the plain of Monastir there was a strong artillery fire. In the face of hostile attacks near Lazec and Kenali and northeast of Brod, on the Cerna River, the German and Bulgarian positions were completely maintained. The losses of the enemy were heavy.

SOFIA, Nov. 12, (via London, Nov. 13.)—An advance for the Serbians in the Cerna Bend is admitted in the official statement issued by the War Office today. The text of the statement follows:

West of the Monastir-Florina Railway there was lively artillery action. Eastward and in the Cerna Bend there was a desperate battle throughout yesterday and part of last night. All enemy attacks were broken, but the enemy succeeded in holding the heights and making a salient before our positions northeast of Polog.

In the Moglenica Valley there was weak artillery fire. West of the Vardar vigorous cannonading took place.

CAR FAMINE STIRS FRANCE.

Government Wins a Vote of Confidence After a Stormy Debate.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A spirited debate in the Chamber of Deputies over the responsibility for the freight car shortage in France resulted today in a proposal of a cote of confidence, in which the Government was sustained, 415 to 86.

The Minister of Public Works, Marcel Sembat, replying to interpellations, said that there were three problems: First, railways considered as means of transport; second, the problem of ports and navigation, and, last, that of direction. The Government's first order was given in June, 1915, for 5,000 cars, but a delay in delivery occurred owing to the congestion in American, as well as French, ports. Now, however, he said, parts of cars were arriving regularly and were being assembled in factories in the neighborhood of Paris. To withdraw the direction of this matter from the military authorities, he said, could not be thought of.

As the debate continued it became stormy. Deputy Jean Bon severely criticized the French railroad organization, comparing it with that of Germany. M. Sembat replied that the question of labor shortage was partly responsible for the situation. Deputy Hesse, in a resolution which he proposed, declined to express confidence in the Minister of Public Works because of what he termed his lack of initiative, which might lead the country into the worst of dangers. Deputy Bouisson thought it was not M. Sembat to whom confidence should be refused, but the Government, which he said was entirely culpable and responsible.

These criticisms brought a spirited response from Premier Briand, who depreacated what he termed eulogies of Germany and referred to the difficulties confronting the country, as well as other nations, even the United States.

Numerous other resolutions were proposed, but the Government announced that it would accept only one—that of Deputy Rabier, which provided that the only solution of the transportation problem was in better organization, single direction, undivided control, and the adoption of a central plan, counting on the Government to bring this into effect. That part of the resolution involving confidence in the Government was adopted by the vote previously recorded.

Emperor Francis Joseph Better.

BERLIN, Nov. 13, (by Wireless to Sayville.)—The condition of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, who has been suffering from a slight attack of catarrh, shows improvement, and his physicians declare that his health has been restored, according to dispatches from Vienna. Today the Emperor received several persons in audience, among whom was the Prime Minister, Dr. von Koerber.

$40,000,000 for Berlin Dependents.

With the payment during the month of August of 10,250,000 marks in cash to the needy relatives of soldiers in the field, the City of Berlin brought its total expenditures for this purpose since the outbreak of the war up to 170,000,000 marks, ($40,460,000,) according to a report issued by the municipal council.

REBEL SULTAN KILLED.

British Expedition Easily Conquers All Dinar's Forces.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Ali Dinar, the rebellious Sultan of Darfur (a province of the Egyptian Sudan) has been killed, and the main body of the rebels which he headed badly defeated by a British expeditionary force, it is officially announced today. The campaign was carried out by 300 men detached from the Egyptian Army for the purpose of catching up with and disposing of Ali Dinar's force, which fled after the British victory in the Darfur region last Summer. The statement giving the details of this operation says:

"In the Province of Darfur, a small force, 300 strong, from the Egyptian Army, was dispatched from El-Fasher during October to round up a band of rebels headed by ex-Sulton Ali Dinar. From Dibis, a sudden move was made to Kulme, which was reached, but on our arrival we found the main body of the rebels had retired in a westerly direction toward Sugai.

"The few tribesmen left made little opposition, and booty was captured. Our mounted troops, pursuing, caught the main body of the rebels. As the result of our attack Ali Dinar was killed and the captures and surrenders reported to date include 200 prisoners and other booty, including 6,000 cattle. Our casualties were none."

DEFENSE COUNCIL MEETS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Council of National Defense, created by the National Defense Act signed last June, held a preliminary meeting today and arranged to meet for organization Dec. 4 in the office of Secretary Baker at the War Department. The Civilian Advisory Commission of the council, headed by Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, will attend the session, at which definite plans of procedure will be mapped out.

The council is composed of the Secretaries of War, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor. All were present today except Secretary Lane of the Interior Department, who is at Atlantic City with the American-Mexican Commission.

Co-ordination of all activities in the country to play their part in war time is the object of the council. It is thought probable that army and navy officers will be regularly assigned as aids in carrying out projects which may be approved.

Woman Tells of Death of Entire Family Near Tampico.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Nov. 13.—The murder of an entire American family on the Gulf Coast near Tampico was reported here today by Mrs. Eva Hanson, a refugee from that place. She was unable to give details of the affair.

Mrs. Hanson said there are about 300 Americans in Tampico. Only six of them are women. All of these were leaving Tampico as rapidly as possible, she said.

BRITAIN EXPLAINS TO MEXICO.

Denies Authorizing Submarine Note Sent from Washington.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 13.—Great Britain has sent an explanation to Mexico denying authorship of a note sent here signed by Secretary Lansing, who gave warning that expected arrival of German submarines in the Gulf of Mexico would be regarded as unfriendly if the submarines were to use Mexican waters. The Mexican Foreign Department today announced it had received a note in which England explained that she had not authorized Washington to send the note or use the terms as indicated. The statement was sent through the British Consul here. It is understood that Washington professes to have acted on an oral request from the British Minister.

General Pablo Gonzales will command Mexico City on the departure of General Carranza for Queretaro to open Congress. Carranza plans to ride on horseback from Mexico City to Queretaro, a distance of more than 100 miles, using the military road followed by Maximilian.

A dispatch from Mexico City, Nav. 5, said Mexico had been notified by the British Ambassador at Washington of the presence of German submarines in the Gulf of Mexico and had been warned that the Entente Allies would take "drastic measures" if the submersibles received aid from Mexican ports or sources. Foreign Minister Aguilar announced that the note has been sent through Secretary of State Lansing and Chargé d'Affaires Parker. At the State Department in Washington it was denier that a warning has been forwarded to Mexico, but that a suggestion had been offered that Mexico take precautions against a violation of her neutrality through German submarine operations.

BISSING ORDERED BRITISH SOLD OUT

Decreed Liquidation of Belgian Banks, &c., in Which They Had Interests.

ENGLAND MAY RETALIATE

But Germans Make Strong Protests Against Like Legislation Proposed in Parliament.

Strong protests have recently been made in the German press against the attempt in England to force Parliament to liquidate those corporations or companies, banks or agencies, in which Directorships are held by Germans or in which Germans hold a controlling interest. But in Belgium, a country which Germany still designates officially as merely under "military occupation," as early as Aug. 29 last, General von Bissing, the German Governor General, undertook to order the liquidation "of any concern of which the greater part of the capital belongs to British subjects, or of any concern of which the Directorate or management has at present, or had at the outbreak of war, its headquarters in British territory."

In the text of the von Bissing order, which is printed in the "Bulletin Officiel des Lois et Arrets" (Official Bulletin of Laws and Decrees) of Sept. 13, a "concern" is described as "branches, agencies, depots of merchandise, estates, and properties of all kinds," and a fine of $25,000, with imprisonment for five years, is threatened in the case of any one who contravenes the order, the full text of which is as follows:

"1. The liquidation may be ordered of any concern of which the greater part of the capital belongs to British subjects, or of any concern of which the directorate or management has at present or had at the outbreak of the war its headquarters in British territory. The same applies to any British participation in any concern. A concern is considered to be, as regards the application of the present order, the branches, agencies, depots of merchandise, successions, estates and properties of every description.

"The persons who are empowered to order the liquidation are:

"1. The chief of the civilian administration (Verwaltungschef) with the Governor General in Belgium, as regards concerns which in Belgium work a trade, carry on a business, or undertake insurances, whether in regard to depots of merchandises or estates.

"2. The Commissary General of the Banks in Belgium (Generalkommissar fur die Banken in Belgien) in all other cases.

"Before being ordered, the liquidation must be submitted to my approval.

"2. The liquidation will be effected by a liquidator in accordance to general and particular instructions which I reserve myself the right to publish. Under the cases referred to in No. 1 of the first and second paragraph the liquidator will be nominated by the chief of the civilian administration with the Governor-General in Belgium; under the cases referred to in No. 2 of the first and second paragraphs, he will be nominated by the Commissary-General of the Banks in Belgium.

"3. The liquidator appointed for the liquidation of a concern is empowered to take possession of that concern. All engagements in name of the concern may only be contracted by him. He may alienate the concern en bloc.

"The rights of the proprietor of the concern or of other persons to make engagements in the name of the concern are suspended. Same appiies to the rights of any proxies.

"If a liquidation has been appointed for a British share in a concern, he will exercise all rights of the British party concerned; it is particularly empowered to cede the said share either to the concern or to a third party. In regard to a share in a society in a collective name or in a joint stock company, the liquidator has the right to proceed with the dissolution of partnership of the society without any delay.

"If the rights arising out of the share have been set out by deed, the authority which ordered the liquidation has the right to compel the concern to replace by a new deed the one invalidated by the liquidator.

"4. Notwithstanding the stipulations of the order dated Nov. 3, 1914, prohibiting payments made for the benefit of England, the liquidator has the right to exact the fulfillment of the engagements taken; the prohibition of payments and the delay cease one month after the liquidator demanded the fulfillment of the engagements.

"If for a bill of exchange or for a bill to order of which the protest (for nonpayment) has been extended in accordance with the fourth paragraph of the order dated Nov. 3, 1914, the delay is ended by virtue of the disposition mentioned by the first alien, the said protest and the recourse arising out of the said bill of exchange or out of the bill to order will nevertheless continue to be prohibited till further order. This statement also applies to checks.

"5. The restrictions mentioned by the first article of the order dated May 5, 1916, regarding the properties of persons under the jurisdiction of enemy countries are not applicable to the properties which are the subject of the liquidation, provided that arrangements made by the liquidator are concerned.

"6. If certain indications give rise to suspicions that a concern comes under the category of those referred to by the first paragraph, the authority competent to order the liquidation has the right to examine the books and papers, and to make application to the administrators, proprietors, or employes of the said concern, and also to all persons able to furnish informations concerning this subject and to exact from them informations regarding the business of the said concern.

"7. The concern is to sustain all costs caused by the liquidation. These costs constitute privileged debts. The share of the produce of the liquidation allotted to British subjects must be deposited in consignation. The authority which orders the liquidation may authorize the payment, to the party concerned of British nationality residing in Belgium, of the sums necessary to their maintenance.

"The liquidator is responsible for his administration only to the Governor General.

"9. Are considered to be British territory, as regards the present order; Great Britain and Ireland, and also all colonies and British oversea possessions, with the exception of Canada and the South African Union; are considered to be British subjects, all the persons under the jurisdiction of the said countries, and also all persons who must conform to British law.

"10. Any one who intentionally secretes either wholly or partly objects from a liquidator appointed in accordance with the present order, or who may have been an accomplice to such subtraction; any one who intentionally will not furnish the information described in Paragraph 6, or who knowingly or by neglect shall have furnished false information, will be punished by a fine not exceeding 100,000 marks and to a penalty of five years' imprisonment maximum or to one of these penalties with the exclusion of the other.

"Every attempt at infraction is punishable.

"The tribunals and German military commandants are competent to judge the infractions of the present order."

DR. GRAVES GUARDED BY A GRIM SENTINEL

DOCTOR TO 'FACE THE MUSIC'

The Charge of Attempting to Blackmail to be Pressed, Report from Washington Says.

Dr. Armgaard Karl Graves, self-styled "international spy," who was arrested in Washington on Saturday charged with attempting to blackmail the Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German Ambassador to the United States, announced from his Sixty-ninth Street headquarters yesterday afternoon that he would return to Washington this afternoon "to face the music." He declared that he had no fear of the outcome, and added that tomorrow, when the time came for him to be arraigned before a United States Commissioner to answer the charge against him, he would "be there with bells on."

Dr. Graves, minus his collar, and grave in appearance as well as in name, talked at great length when seen at 65 West Sixty-ninth Street yesterday afternoon. A special bodyguard stood sentinel at the door under orders to scan closely the credentials of all persons who called and to permit no one about whom there was the least suspicion to enter the house under any circumstances.

"You have your instructions," Dr. Graves said to the sentinel, "and those instructions must be obeyed to the letter. Likewise you have a weapon. If necessary do not hesitate to use that weapon."

The nature of the weapon was not disclosed.

It was shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon when the guard got his first chance to halt a would-be visitor. The man who sought entrance to the secret service sanctum of the "international spy" was a newspaper photographer.

Had Ambidextrous Eyes.

The sentinel scrutinized the photographer grimly.

"Have you your credentials?" he asked sternly.

"I will scrutinize the card," the guard answered, and he proceeded to study it very carefully with one eye, while with the other he watched the changing expressions on the face of the photographer.

"It is well," the guard finally remarked, "and I shall now see the doctor. Remain where you are. I shall return to you."

In a few minutes the guard returned.

"The doctor," he explained, "has no objection to having his picture taken, but unfortunately he has no collar on and without a collar he cannot submit to being photographed. Return in half an hour and perhaps he will have on his collar. If so, you will be offered the opportunity you seek."

Three reporters next appeared. Each in turn was halted at the door. Each submitted his credentials and the guard with a nod and the remark, "Remain where you are until I return," disappeared into the private quarters of Dr. Graves. In a little while he re-appeared.

"Dr. Graves will receive you," he said. "Please follow me."

Dr. Graves was seated at his big desk.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I shall be glad to have you ask all the questions you wish. Those that I care to answer I will answer. But I can speak only in generalities. I cannot under any circumstances go into details, cite specific instances of anything, or even hint at matters which might, by publication, embarrass the Government of the United States."

"Will you tell how you discovered the key to the cipher in the letters which figure in this case?" a reporter asked.

Admits This—Drinks Coffee Black.

"Most certainly I cannot. All that I can tell you is that for forty-eight hours I studied those letters before I got the key, and in those hours I drank cup upon cup of black coffee. You have no idea how much black coffee I did drink. Beyond this I may not communicate any information to you on this particular phase of the situation.

"Count Bernstorff is quoted as saying that your charges are all 'rot;' how about that?"

"Why, what would you expect his Excellency to say? Surely you cannot conceive of his admitting anything."

"Would an ordinary person be able to discover that the letters were ciphers by reading them?" a reporter asked Dr. Graves.

"No; 10,000,000 people could read those letters without becoming suspicious. It was only because of my previous training and experience that I was able to discover the key."

"Have you translated them for the United States Government?"

"Not yet."

"Will you?"

"Perhaps."

"Is Countess Bernstorff in any way concerned in this affair?"

"I am glad you asked that question. She is not. They were addressed to her, but were not meant for her. Let me repeat that she is not involved. She is innocent, so innocent, and I am grieved that her name has been mentioned. You Americans hold a woman's name sacred. That is fine in you, and I likewise hold such matters sacred.

"By the way," added the doctor, "do you think that if I wanted to blackmail the Countess Bernstorff I would go to Prince Hatzfeldt? I am not a fool. I would go straight to the Ambassador if I desired to accomplish so unworthy a purpose."

Only "Bill" to Get Real Facts.

"Will you tell your story in detail to any one in the near future?"

"There is just one man in all America to whom I will talk at length. He alone can hear the story."

"Who is that man?"

"He is a prince among newspapermen."

"What is his name?"

"His name is William, but they call him 'Bill.' I also call him 'Bill.' He is my friend. Yes, I may tell it to 'Bill.'"

"Do you expect to be prosecuted?" Dr. Graves was asked near the end of the interview.

"Yes, I expect to face the courts," he replied.

"Do you fear the outcome?"

"I do not."

Dr. Graves then reiterated that he could prove every charge he had made against Count Bernstorff, and intimated that the Ambassador might desire to drop the case soon.

A reporter for the paper on which Dr. Graves's friend works then appeared. Dr. Graves met him at the door.

"I am sorry, but I can only talk to 'Bill,'" said Dr. Graves to the reporter.

"'Bill' will call on you this afternoon," said the reporter.

"I am delighted," Dr. Graves replied. The interview was at an end.

"Referring to the statement by Dr. Graves to the effect that I had been retained to represent him at the hearing in Washington, I wish to say that Dr. Graves is mistaken. I do not know him, have never seen him, and have not consented to accept a retainer in his behalf or to have anything to do with his case."

Expect to Press Graves's Trial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Prince von Hatzfeldt-Trachenberg, Counselor of the German Embassy, will probably find it necessary to testify in the trial of Dr. Armgaard Karl Graves, self-styled international spy, who was arrested here Saturday on a charge of having tried to use intercepted letters to blackmail the Countess von Bernstorff, wife of the German Ambassador, and also on a charge of having brought into the District of Columbia letters addressed to her which were alleged to have been stolen. It had been the desire of officials of the German Embassy that no member of that staff be required to take the stand at the trial, if Dr. Graves should be held for the action of the Federal Grand Jury, but there were intimations today from a high official source that the testimony of Prince von Hatzfeldt would be necessary to complete the case for trial.

At the Embassy today it was made plain that, if Dr. Graves expected the case to be dropped, he was mistaken, so far as the Embassy was concerned. While the members of the Embassy do not desire a newspaper argument with Dr. Graves, and prefer not to testify, it was indicated that, if the testimony of Prince Hatzfeldt or some other member of the Embassy should be necessary, it would be forthcoming if consent were granted by the German Government. Diplomats are immune from subpoena to testify in trials of this sort.

Count von Bernstorff ridiculed today statements by Graves in New York that some of the letters seized related to Stock Exchange transactions by members of the German Embassy, but further than that the Ambassador made no comment.

It is suspected in German Embassy circles that communications addressed to the Embassy, and of a diplomatic character, were included in the batch which came into the hands of Graves. The Embassy professes, however, to be without information regarding these letters, but has sent to the Berlin Government all the information now in its possession regarding the arrest of Dr. Graves, for the purpose, it is understood, of enabling the Government to make an inquiry to ascertain which official papers may be missing.

TARNOWSKI STILL AT SOFIA.

New Austrian Envoy's Departure for Washington Not Yet Fixed.

VIENNA, Nov. 12, (via London, Nov. 13.)—The date for the departure of the new Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to the United States, Count Adam Tarnowski von Tarnow, for Washington has not been fixed, but he is not likely to leave for three weeks. Count Tarnowski is now at Sofia at his old post, winding up his affairs there. Before he starts for the United States arrangements for his safe conduct through the British spheres must be made.

That Count Tarnowski is going to Washington pleases all circles here and at Budapest, as he is regarded as the man best suited for the post, apart from the fact that he is one of the most able diplomats in the monarchy. The newspapers in commenting on his appointment generally express satisfaction that the Washington post is to be filled again and the hope that the new Ambassador will succeed in fostering in the United States not only good relations between Austria-Hungary and that country, but also the right impression concerning the monarchy's position and objectives in the war.

Says Russian Poles Boycott Jews.

Herman Bernstein, editor of The American Hebrew, who discussed the situation of the Jews in Poland and urged that steps should be taken to gain them equal rights with others in Poland after the war in an interview in THE TIMES last Sunday, said yesterday that the economic boycotts against the Polish Jews of which he spoke had taken place in Russian Poland instead of in the German part of Poland. He said he was anxious to draw this distinction to prevent any misunderstanding.

REPUBLICANS STILL REFUSE TO GIVE UP

Chairman Willcox Says Committee Will "Sit Tight" Until Official Count Is Made.

MR. HUGHES ALSO HOLDS OFF

National Headquarters Hears of Charges of Treason Against Some California G. O. P. Leaders.

Neither Charles E. Hughes nor the Republican managers who assumed responsibility for his campaign will concede the re-election of President Wilson until after the last vote in California, New Mexico, Minnesota, and North Dakota has been officially counted and tabulated.

"If I say this it is not with any desire of being contentious, nor do I charge that in any of the close States there has been anything out of the way in the counting of the vote," said Chairman William R. Willcox of the Republican National Committee last night, reflecting the attitude of the Republican leaders. "But where the result in a Presidential election hangs on a few hundred votes, I think that is the only attitude to assume by those in responsible positions in the Republican National Committee. I am just as ready to abide by the official count in Minnesota, where the result in the unofficial count favors our candidate, as I am for an official count in California, where it appears to be the other way. As a matter of fact, we have no figures as yet except newspaper figures. Under the circumstances there is only one thing for us to do—to sit tight."

It was learned yesterday that charges of party treason had been made against the California Republican leaders by persons who took part in a conference held last Wednesday at the headquarters of the Republican National Committee. At this conference some of the participants were very insistent that the National Committee should not trust either Chater H. Rowell, Chairman of the Republican State Committee of California; William R. Crocker, the Republican National Committeeman from that State, or United States Senator-elect Hiram Johnson with supervising the official count of the California vote for the Republican National Committee. It was the opinion of several of the conferees that a certain official high in authority with the Republican National Committee should board the train that same evening and start for California to take charge of the situation for the committee.

Chairman Willcox vetoed this proposition at once. He declared that any such move without doubt would be misconstrued. He said that he had perfect confidence in the California Republican leaders, despite anything that had been said to the contrary.

It was learned yesterday that Mr. Willcox had received assurances that, despite the fact that State Chairman Rowell and National Committeeman Crocker were lined up on different sides in the bitter factional fight that has torn asunder the Republican State organization in California, they would co-operate with perfect harmony in the supervision of the official canvass of the vote. Hiram Johnson also sent word that everything was being done by everybody to protect the party interests in connection with the count.

For a brief moment yesterday Chairman Willcox and other prominent functionaries of the Republican National Committee experienced a thrill of expectancy. A telephone message was received from a news agency telling them that according to a report from Washington, D. C., an error that would net Mr. Hughes 6,300 votes had been discovered in the early part of the official canvass in California. It was explained that the error was due to the tabulation of 700 votes for Hughes in a county where he should have been credited with 7,000. No confirmation of the report had been received at the headquarters of the committee when Mr. Willcox closed his desk for the day.

Chairman Willcox was asked yesterday if he had received any reports indicating fraudulent practices at the polls or in the first count of the vote in any part of the country. There was a report last night that a certain Republican leader in this city had had intimations that in some districts in San Francisco all was not right.

"We are making no such charge now," said Chairman Willcox promptly. "Nor do we intend to make any until we have absolute proof. Should anything like that be shown we would move very quickly through the courts for a recount in districts or in States affected by the evidence. As things stand now we are merely in the attitude of waiting for the result of the official canvass in the close States."

Mr. Willcox was told last night that the fact that Mr. Hughes had not sent a letter of congratulation to President Wilson had provided food for unfavorable comment in some quarters.

"Everybody knows that Mr. Hughes is generous—generous to a fault," said Mr. Willcox. "But I think he is doing the right thing in withholding his congratulations, and so undoubtedly does he. It is true that any congratulatory message he might send at this time would not make any difference if, on official count in California and other close States, errors reversing the result on the face of the early returns would be discovered. But, on the other hand, such a letter from Mr. Hughes would place him and the party in the position of being insincere in maintaining that the election can be regarded as settled only after an official canvass in view of the narrow margin shown in many States by the unofficial returns on election night."

Charles E. Hughes also clung to his determination yesterday to make no statement concerning the election until the official count had been received from California. His only visitor at the Hotel Astor was Samuel W. McCall, who was re-elected Governor of Massachusetts.

In the morning, although there was a slight rainfall, Mr. Hughes went for a walk in Central Park. In the afternoon he first took an automobile ride and, at about 5 o'clock, went for another walk. There was nothing to indicate that he was feeling depressed.

Mr. Hughes has decided to remain at the Hotel Astor until the end of the week. If it is shown then that the vote in California has gone against him beyond doubt, he probably will leave for a short vacation before making plans for the future.

Mrs. Sanger Reopens Clinic.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, who was arrested about two weeks ago on a charge of giving information regarding birth control at her clinic at 46 Amboy Street, Brownsville, and who was released in $500 bail to await trial, re-opened the clinic at the same address yesterday. Some of the articles which she had in the clinic were removed by the police when they closed it on arresting her before, but she said she would get along as well as she could without these. The police decided to keep the place under observation for several days before taking further action.

WOMEN DIDN'T ELECT WILSON, SHE SAYS

SUFFRAGE MASCOT VANISHES

Miss Helen Todd, who worked for the Woman's Party during the last campaign in California, Arizona, and Utah, returned to New York yesterday to say that it was not the women's vote that defeated Charles E. Hughes.

Miss Todd said she had had a thrilling experience, but she came home unhappy in not having elected the candidate for whom she had worked, and full of grief at finding that last Wednesday "Spokane," otherwise known as "Spoky," a small, shaggy black poodle and the mascot of the Woman's Party, had been lost in New York. A generous reward has been offered for "Spoky." The dog disappeared from 60 Washington Square Wednesday, and Miss Todd says he has undoubtedly gone hunting lost ballots, for he was an enthusiastic campaigner, devoted to the cause of suffrage, and willing to give his life for the cause.

"I never had such an experience in my life," said Miss Todd, speaking of her trip, "and I never have been so thrilled at the way the Western women responded when they understood that the Eastern women really wanted the vote. They haven't understood. That was one of the most important things I learned in my trip, and also that it was not possible for the women to have elected Mr. Hughes or lost for him the election.

"If all the women in the Western States had voted for Hughes they could not have elected him. Those suffrage States are all male States. The proportion of men to women is two and three to one. It is three to one in Nevada, two to one in Colorado, and there are 135 men to every 100 women in California. We could not stir the men with anything we had to say, but we could stir the women when they finally understood."

The women in the West, Miss Todd said, were at first skeptical as to the different reception suffrage was getting in the East. They couldn't understand the attitude of Eastern men.

"'Aren't they all the same men?' they asked," said Miss Todd. "'The men of the East are not a different kind from the men of the West. What is the matter with the women?' Then when I told them of the tragic way the women of the East have worked and of the illiterate vote against them here, it was wonderful the way they began to sympathize and wanted to help us. The women in Utah came out and marched for us, carrying our banners. I never was so thrilled."

"Spokane," the Woman's Party mascot which Miss Todd left here when she went on her last trip, is named after the city in which he was rescued by the Congressional Union woman on a special train a year or so ago. He was being carried off by a dog-catcher when the women adopted him. A halo of glory surrounded "Spokane's" existence. He met every Governor in the West. His friends are sure that nothing but political matters of importance could have taken him from them, but they will pay liberally for his return.

DEMOCRATS SEEK $300,000.

W. W. Marsh Would Appeal to 2,000 Cities to Help Make Up Deficit.

Apparently the only interest the Democratic National managers have now in the result of last Tuesday's election is to find out how to raise money to cover the deficiency of about $300,000 in the campaign fund. This matter was discussed at National Headquarters yesterday, and Wilbur W. Marsh, Treasurer of the Committee, proposed a plan which he believes would solve the problem. The plan involved an appeal to 2,000 cities, each to contribute $100, and leaving it to a few individuals who could afford it to add a little to what they had already given.

Mr. Marsh inaugurated the idea of popular subscriptions in the campaign and it proved very successful. Auxiliary committees were organized in all parts of the country, and these contributed much of the fund that went to the re-election of the President. Mr. Marsh said he believed that if these committees were informed of the conditions which the National Committee faces, there would be an immediate response. It is the opinion of the Democratic national leaders that the public would be better pleased to have the money contributed by popular subscription rather than by individuals.

Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., who had charge of the New York State collections, has assumed the task of spurring on the Democrats in this State. Henry Morgenthau, Chairman of the Finance Committee, has gone to Havana for several weeks and his work has been turned over to Mr. Chadbourne, who has offices at 14 Wall Street.

Little Vienna Election Comment.

VIENNA, Nov. 12, (via London, Nov. 13)—There has been very little comment in the newspapers on the re-election of President Wilson. Most of the newspapers had previously asserted that a change in the Presidency would have little bearing on the European situation so far as it affected the Central Powers.

300 GIRLS IN FACTORY PANIC.

Gas Engine Blows Up in Basement of 4-Story Hoboken Building.

Three hundred girls employed in the factory building at Third and Clinton Streets, Hoboken, were thrown into a panic yesterday by an explosion of a gas engine in the basement. They all made their way out of the building unharmed, except two who fainted, and were carried out by Patrolman Mulcahey.

The American Novelty and Printing Company occupies the basement, first and second floors of the building, employing about one hundred girls, while the Leshnower & Perrin Company, on the third and fourth floors, employs nearly two hundred. The latter firm manufactures straw hats. The girls on the upper floors had been smelling gas for a half hour, and had opened the windows for air.

The explosion tore a hole through the first floor just over the engine, which was wrecked. All the glass on the first floor was broken and much on the second.

The girls in both places have had fire drills, but when the explosion occurred they raced downstairs and fire escapes without waiting to form lines.

ASSAIL THE MANN ACT.

Supreme Court Asked to Interpret the White Slave Statute.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Argument over the question whether the Mann "white slave" act applies to personal immoral escapades or only to cases involving transportation of women for commercial gain began today before the Supreme Court. The law itself has been upheld by the court, but the question of interpretation is raised for the first time in the appeals of F. Drew Caminetti and Maury T. Diggs of Sacramento and L. T. Hays of Alva, Okla., charged with transporting women in violation of the law, but with the elements of commercialism and coercion absent.

The present administration of the Department of Justice has brought prosecutions in all cases of transportation of women for immoral purposes, whether for commercial purposes or not.

At today's hearing Harry O. Glasser of counsel for the appellants insisted that the title of the "white slave" act itself indicated absence of intent by Congress to have the law applied to cases of "mere immorality." He asserted that a fair interpretation of the act was that it was intended solely to stamp out organized or unorganized traffic in women for immoral purposes by prohibiting interstate transportation.

Assistant Attorney General Wallace argued that Congress had the power to prevent immorality by barring transportation of women for immoral purposes and that the Mann act should be so construed. "The extent or degree of immorality should not be a factor," Mr. Wallace said.

Mr. Wallace referred to the case of Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, in which the department's interpretation had been sustained. He conceded that Diggs, Caminetti, and Hays were indicted for offenses without elements of commercialism. The argument will be continued tomorrow.

CABINET CHANGES SAID TO BE LIKELY

recalls an incident of more than two years ago, when a conference took place at the White House in regard to the selection of Democratic candidates for United States Senator and Governor in the Pennsylvania elections of 1914. Those who attended the conference were President Wilson, Mr. Palmer, Mr. McCormick, William B. Wilson of Pennsylvania, the Secretary of Labor, and Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia. Mr. Palmer wanted to make the contest for Governor, but President Wilson suggested that he should become the Senatorial candidate against Penrose. To this Mr. Palmer countered by urging that Secretary Wilson become the Senatorial candidate. The President would not consent to this. He said that he wanted no changes in his Cabinet. That remark was mentioned today in connection with the statement that President Wilson would permit any member of his Cabinet to remain in office if the Cabinet officer desired to retain his portfolio.

Among the Cabinet members who have been reported as considering resigning have been Secretary of Commerce Redfield and Secretary of War Baker. One report has it that both Mr. McCormick and Senator Walsh of Montana, who had charge of Western Headquarters in Chicago during the campaign, might be asked to join the Administration. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College and a son of the late President James A. Garfield, also is said to be looked upon as of Cabinet calibre, as well as Samuel Seabury, the defeated Democratic candidate for Governor of New York.

In case there is a vacancy in the Supreme Court, Attorney General Gregory, Secretary Lane, or Senator Walsh of Montana, would be considered first for the appointment.

Secretary Tumulty is expected to remain in his present post, although he could be appointed a member of the Board of General Appraisers in New York if he desired. Reports have connected Mr. Tumulty's name with a Cabinet position, but it was stated authoritatively today that he would not become a Cabinet officer.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Nov. 13.—When asked this evening concerning the report that he is to succeed W. G. McAdoo as Secretary of the Treasury, Representative Glass said he hoped nobody would succeed Mr. McAdoo.

NO CHANGE IN POLICIES.

President Considers His Course Indorsed—His Immediate Plans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Wilson, back in the White House for the first time since the campaign began two months ago, plunged into work today. Through an interview with Secretary Lansing he got in touch with pressing foreign problems, including the submarine, Mexican, and British blockade issues

State Department officials make no secret of their belief that dangerous possibilities are presented by recent developments in both the Mexican and submarine questions. Secretary Lansing, after reviewing details with Mr. Wilson, said no immediate action was in prospect. Some development is expected soon, however, at the American-Mexican conference sitting at Atlantic City.

It was stated definitely by officials in the confidence of the President today that his re-election would mean no radical changes in any of his policies. He is said to feel that in general his course has been indorsed by the nation at the polls. Consequently the Administration policy both in domestic and foreign affairs, it is predicted, will remain practically unchanged, although as soon as the war is over the President will recommend a revision of the tariff if he feels it is justified by the facts to be gathered by the Tariff Commission created by Congress at its late session.

With regard to foreign affairs, it was said today that the attitude of the Government toward submarine warfare laid down in the note following the sinking of the Channel steamer Sussex and in previous communications, would be followed strictly, and that the State Department would continue to press for American rights in connection with the allied blockade and mail censorship.

If a satisfactory agreement can be reached for the protection of the American border and American lives and property in Mexico, it is believed that the United States troops in Mexico will be withdrawn soon, although a strong force will be kept along the border. The confused situation in the State of Chihuahua and the uncompromising attitude of General Carranza on some points, however, are understood to cause the President to view the Mexican situation with anything but composure.

On domestic questions Mr. Wilson has told his friends that as soon as Congress convenes he will press for the remainder of the legislative program already outlined. He has begun the preparation of his message to Congress. Because of the probability that the next House will be Republican, he will seek to get through as much general legislation as possible during the short session ending March 4.

Measures he particularly desires passed are those to allow American exporters to establish common selling agencies abroad, to enlarge the Interstate Commerce Commission, and to create machinery for preventing in the future a crisis similar to that which recently threatened to involve the country in a railroad strike, and other railroad legislation suggested by him when the strike threatened.

The President will catch up with his official business as quickly as possible and then may take a brief rest at some Winter resort before Congress convenes. In order to devote himself entirely to official work he will see as few callers as possible within the next few days, and probably will not hold a Cabinet meeting tomorrow. Instead, he expects to call Cabinet members in separately and go over their work with them.

Telegrams and letters of congratulation continued to arrive at the White House in large numbers today. They are being sorted out and as soon as possible all will be acknowledged. None has been received so far from Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate.

SAYS DANIELS WILL RESIGN.

Providence Journal Claims "the Highest Authority" for Statement.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13.—The Providence Journal will say tomorrow:

"The Journal is able to say on the highest authority that Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, will not be a member of President Wilson's next Cabinet. This decision is not the result of any new alignment. It was arrived at a year ago. There is reason to believe that Secretary Daniels was notified at that time of President Wilson's desire to fill the office with a new man if he were re-elected.

"It is understood that the next Secretary of the Navy will be a Southerner who has never held a public office of any kind."

WILSON AND LANSING CONFER ON U-BOATS

State Department Awaits Reply From Berlin on Ships Sunk by Submarines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Wilson conferred with Secretary Lansing for an hour today regarding international matters and the status of questions that have arisen in connection with German submarine attacks upon vessels on which Americans were traveling, either as passengers or members of crews. No line of action was determined upon.

After the conference Secretary Lansing, in response to a question, said that the United States Government was not yet in possession of sufficient facts concerning any of the pending U-boat cases upon which to base any conclusion.

Inquiry has been made of the German Government through the American Embassy at Berlin regarding the cases of the steamers Marina, Rowanmore, Arabia, Columbian and Lanao, all of which are reported to have been sunk by German submarines. No response to this inquiry has been made. The State Department is also awaiting affidavits and detailed reports from American Consuls near where the vessels were sunk and for information from the American Embassy at London.

It is expected that in the case of the Rowanmore the German Government will seek to set up the justification that the vessel was sunk because she attempted to escape when challenged to halt.

Unofficial messages from Berlin indicate that the German Government has received no report on the sinking of the Marina, which was destroyed in the same vicinity and about the same time as the Rowanmore. The commander of the submarine that sank the Rowanmore has returned to a German port and reported on the sinking of the Rowanmore, but made no report on the Marina case.

The Columbian case is expected to take substantially the same status as that of the American sailing ship William P. Frye, one of payment of indemnity under the old Prussian-American treaty, which is to be construed by The Hague tribunal. The case of the Lanao, an American vessel alleged to have been transferred from American to Norwegian registry, is expected to hinge around the question of registry, and if the vessel is found to have been still of American registry, to hinge on the question of indemnity involved in the Frye case.

In the cases of the Marina and Arabia, both vessels are alleged to have been sunk without warning. These vessels were armed. They flew the British flag. But Americans were aboard, and under the pledges given by Germany to this country neither of these vessels should have been sunk without warning and without safety to passengers or crew, unless the vessels showed resistance or tried to escape. It is not improbable that Germany's defense in the case of the steamers may be that they were armed, but if they were sunk without warning, the United States, it is expected, will take a firm stand.

Massachusetts Town Counsel Slays Son and Daughter-in-Law.

DUDLEY, Mass., Nov. 13.—Frank E. Deon, Town Counsel and Tax Collector of Dudley, today shot and killed his son, Robert, and the latter's wife, and then attempted suicide. Physicians said the elder Deon could not live.

The wife of the town counsel said that the shooting was due to excessive drinking. He had threatened her, she said, and then picked up an army rifle and started for the carriage shed on their estate at Dudley Hill, saying he was going to "get" her son Robert.

The mother ran through the rear door of the house to warn Robert, but she told the police the son refused to hide. Deon entered the barn calling for Robert, and, when he appeared, fired. Young Deon was struck in the right side, the bullet penetrating the lung. His wife, Mrs. Lena Deon, 21 years of age, rushed to his side when she heard the shot, but was stopped by another bullet, which entered the heart. She died instantly.

The father turned from the carriage shed to the house, calling for his wife. Failing to find her, he shot himself just below the heart. Mrs. Deon had fled meantime to a nearby home and from there telephoned the police.

Deon had taken an active part in local affairs for twenty years. He was 47 years of age.

COMMODITY PRICES GO UP WORLD OVER

RISE OF 50 TO 900 PER CENT.

Prices in foreign countries continue to advance just the same as in the United States, and for the same reason. A compilation by the foreign trade department of the National City Bank of New York, issued yesterday, showed that prices abroad on a large percentage of the articles imported into the United States had advanced greatly since the outbreak of the European war. The compilation, which covered a considerable variety of articles, including foodstuffs, manufacturing materials, and manufactures, showed that the most striking advances had occurred in foodstuffs and manufacturing materials.

"You would scarcely expect," said the bank's statement, "that the natives of Haiti and Jamaica, which furnish most of our logwood, could be so fully 'onto' the situation as to demand, and get, three times the price per ton for their logwood as they did before the war, but they are demanding it and getting it. The indigo growers and merchants of India, Java, and San Salvador are demanding and getting ten times as much per pound for indigo as they did before the war. Chinese and Japanese silk growers are getting double the prices prevailing prior to the war, and 'fresh' eggs crash into the United States at double the prices of two years ago. A recent statement by the American Consul General at Paris indicates that the imports of France in 1916 enter that country at prices about 90 per cent. higher than in 1914, and the exports leave that country at prices about 50 per cent. above those of 1914.

"The prices shown are those of the articles in the wholesale markets of the countries from which the merchandise is imported into the United States, or the actual selling price in the country from which the exportation occurs. The advance in the import price, therefore, does not include the advance cost added through the unusually high ocean freight rates. This general advance is the more striking when it is remembered that a large proportion of the merchandise imported into the United States is drawn from several different countries, and the increase in the average import price therefore represents the average price increase the world over."

Among the advances taking place the past two years, as enumerated by the bank, where india rubber, 50 per cent.; goat skins, slightly more than 50 per cent.; copper, from 14 cents to 32 cents per pound; pigiron, from $34.50 to $101.32 per ton; tin plate, from 3.2 cents to 11.2 cents per pound; raw silk, which a year ago was exported to this country at $2.73, is now $4.67 per pound; chemical wood pulp, unbleached, from $36.95 to $49.78 per ton, and bleached wood pulp, from $49.20 to $85.18 per ton. Combing wool, which was exported to America at an average of 24.4 cents a pound in the month before the war, was 37.9 cents in July last, while carpet wool jumped from 16.7 cents per pound to 23.4 cents in August, 1916.

Among the food supplies named as coming in for stiff advances were macaroni, cocoa, currants, sugar, mackerel, cheese, and eggs. The dependence of this country on China for eggs was shown by statistics prepared by the bank. The importation of eggs alone from China in the fiscal year 1915 was 2,035,862 dozen, and in 1914, 1,875,365 dozen. This did not include the yolks of eggs and frozen eggs, of which the importations from China in 1915 were 7,067,085 pounds, the total value of eggs imported from China and Hongkong in 1915 being nearly $1,000,000.

DEMOCRATS GET LIFE JOBS.

Jersey Republicans Dismayed by New Civil Service Law.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Nov. 13.—Republican success at the polls, which will be celebrated tomorrow by the installation of John W. Courter as Sheriff to succeed Robert Heath, seems to have had another and unexpected result. The Republicans adopted the civil service law and they seem to have provided life jobs for some 200 Democrats, among them the members of the Sheriff's staff, so that Mr. Courtier may find himself tomorrow without a single appointment to make.

No one seems to have foreseen any such result, for, apparently, no one realized that all the county offices were filled by Democrats and that employes of these offices were accordingly all Democrats. No Republican, at any rate, thought of this situation at all until Sheriff Heath's assistants announced that they didn't intend to resign and couldn't be removed.

Under Sheriff Thomas English, Deputy Sheriffs Fred Frylinck, John Agar, Charles Heath, and Kenneth Meyerhoff, all Democrats, as well as the four clerks in the office, have agreed to stick together and, incidentally, to stick to their posts. Sheriff-elect Courter has given considerable thought to the appointments he intended making, but if these men have their way there will be no appointments.

Gardiner Colby of the State Civil Service Commission arrived here today to help straighten out the situation. The Democrats insisted he wasn't needed, since, from their viewpoint, there was nothing to straighten out. The Republicans assert, however, tnat a way will be found to oust Mr. Courter's unwelcome assistants.

Only one change in the office personnel appears certain. This is the removal of Miss Constance Kopp, the young woman whom Sheriff Heath named as an assistant several years ago after she had attracted considerable attention to herself and her sisters by asserting that their lives had been threatened.

Mr. Courter, then a detective in the County Prosecutor's office, never professed much belief in the sensational stories of the three Kopp sisters, even when Sheriff Heath finally caused the conviction of a Paterson silk manufacturer, whom the sisters accused of having sent threatening letters to them. Recently he has said that under no circumstances would he permit the young woman to remain in his office.

The civil service law is said to provide for two first assistants to the Sheriff so that Miss Kopp could be removed even though the other members of the Sheriff's staff succeeded in retaining their posts.

WOOLWORTH BUTLER HELD.

Denies Trying to Steal $40,000 Worth of Tableware.

Joseph Dowden, 21 years old, formerly second butler in the home of F. W. Woolworth of Glen Cove and 990 Fifth Avenue, was before Magistrate Cobb in Harlem Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of attempted grand larceny of $40,000 worth of silver and gold ware from two safes in the Woolworth home. Dowden denied the charge, but was held in $2,500 bail for trial.

The former butler when arrested Sunday wore a silk shirt, silk tie, and a brown velour hat, which were identified as the property of his late master. In court yesterday Dowden admitted the theft of the wearables, but excused himself by saying that all his own clothing had been destroyed in the recent burning of the Woolworth home at Glen Cove.

Servants in the Woolworth household testified that Dowden had been observed testing the opening apparatus of safes in the town house of Mr. Woolworth. Part of the contents of one of the safes consisted of a gold service, recently purchased in France for $30,000. Dowden, it was said, had at odd times been in the employ of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, William K. Vanderbilt, William Rockefeller, and others.

COLLEGE IN TURKEY GROWS DESPITE WAR

PRESIDENT COMES FOR REST

Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, However, Will Aid in Raising Million-Dollar Endowment.

Among the passengers on the steamer Hellig Olav of the Scandinavian-American Line, which will arrive at Hoboken this morning, will be Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, President of the Constantinople College for Girls, who returns to this country for the first time in four years for a rest of several months. Dr. Samuel T. Dutton, Treasurer of the Board of Trustees, said yesterday at his office at 70 Fifth Avenue that it was one of the miracles of the time that the college could pursue its work during the wars of the last few years and come up to the present year with the largest enrollment in its history and a staff of instructors doing vigorous work.

"In 1914," said Dr. Dutton, "the new buildings on the European side of the Bosporus were completed. They had been four years in building, and during those four years there had been three wars in which Turkey was involved—the Italian war of 1911, the first Balkan war of 1912, and the second Balkan war of 1913. Then in 1914 came the great war, but the college continued its work, serving various nationalities despite the bitter racial feelings stirred up in the Balkans.

"Of the 290 girls in the college and preparatory departments last year there were 63 Turks, 102 Armenians, 26 Bulgarians, 62 Greeks, and Russians, Persians, Italians, Albanians Americans, and Jews. Among the Turkish girls were fourteen whose tuition is being paid by the Turkish Government and who are expected to become teachers. Another Turkish student was a granddaughter of the late Kiamil Pasha, who was Grand Vizier. Of the Albanian girls six are being educated at the expense of Charles R. Crane, President of the Board of Trustees.

"This year the enrollment has reached 400. Most of the girls, of course, live in Constantinople, as conditions caused by the war make it almost impossible to get into the city from outside. The college has succeeded in protecting the Armenian girls in its student body very effectually, and in several cases, when Armenian families were deported from Constantinople last year, their daughters, students in the college, were allowed to remain.

"Dr. Patrick in her report speaks gratefully of the uniform courtesy and consideration shown toward the college by Shukri Bey, the Minister of Public Instruction, under whose control the American and foreign institutions came at the beginning of the last academic year. In addition to the Latin diploma we now give a Turkish diploma to the graduates. The relations of the colleges to the Ministry of Public Instruction have been much facilitated by Dr. Riza Tewfik, Professor of Turkish, Arabic, and Persian, and by Henry Morgenthau. Indeed, the former Ambassador gave wonderful help in establishing good relations between the college and all foreign powers.

"Dr. Patrick, in her letters, speaks with enthusiasm of the excellent beginning made by the new Ambassador, Mr. Elkus. As for Dr. Patrick, she is undoubtedly the most influential and able woman in the whole Near East.

"One of the tasks during her stay in this country is to assist the Trustees in the raising of a much-needed endowment. The power house of the college was closed much of the time during warm weather, as coal cost $40 a ton, and foodstuffs were about four times as costly as before the wars began. The college needs $300,000 for up-to-date buildings to replace the present wholly inadequate housing of the preparatory department, and with the additional endowment required it is estimated that a million dollars should be raised as soon as possible."

$400,000 STILL NEEDED.

Henry St. Settlement Has Raised Less Than $800,000 of Its Million.

The Henry Street Settlement still urgently needs $400,000 of the $1,000,000 fund which it is raising for its work and which a headline in THE TIMES incorrectly asserted had been obtained. The money is required as an emergency fund for the visiting nurse service and other activities of the settlement.

Toward the $1,000,000 not quite $600,000 has been subscribed. The fund is being raised to meet extra demands on the settlement which the annual contributions for its support cannot cover.

The settlement has been obliged to get extra nurses to visit children in Queens and Richmond recovering at home from infantile paralysis. They see that these patients are taken for orthopedic treatment and educate the parents to the need of scientific care for the children now, to save them from being cripples for life.

Must Label Cold-Storage Eggs.

Under the supervision of Lucius P. Brown of the Bureau of Foods and Drugs of the Department of Health a special squad of inspectors yesterday visited dealers and jobbers in cold storage eggs to see that cases containing the eggs, as well as cartons and bags in which they were distributed, were stenciled with the words "Cold Storage." In addition, the cases must be placed in full view of customers and notices that cold storage eggs are sold there posted in the stores.

Capt. McGarry on Private Errand.

Captain J. H. McGarry, who arrived on the American liner St. Paul on Sunday, denied yesterday that he was an aid to the Duke of Connaught or that he was bound to Ottawa on Government business. He said he was here only on private business.

CITY OFFICIALS TESTIFY.

Mayor and Others Called in Trial of Libel Suit Against The Herald.

Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, Borough Presidents Pounds of Brooklyn and Mathewson of the Bronx, and Alderman Henry H. Curran were witnesses before Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss and a jury yesterday in a suit of Tilden Adamson, Supervisor of the Bureau of Contract Supervision of the Board of Estimate and brother of Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, to recover $100,000 from The New York Herald for libel. A similar suit brought by George L. Tirrell, Supervisor of the Bureau of Standardization of the Board of Estimate, is to be tried at the conclusion of the Adamson suit.

The two suits were brought because of the publication of a news article to the effect that Adamson and Tirrell had their salaries raised from $6,000 each to $7,500 by "slipping in" the increase into the budget passed for the year 1915 by the Board of Estimate without the knowledge of some of the members of the board, and that several members were "furious on learning of the trick."

In opening the case for the defendant yesterday, Robert W. Candler, attorney for The Herald, said the article was printed in the belief that the public should be informed as to proceedings affecting the tax budget. He said it would be proved that the budget containing the increases of salaries for Adamson and Tirrell was passed unlawfully because the proposed increases were not published in The City Record and because an itemized statement of the purpose of the increases was not furnished to the members of the Board of Estimate.

Mayor Mitchel testified that before the estimates containing the proposed increases were submitted by Adamson and Tirrell he received a letter from Adamson calling his attention to the fact that other bureau heads were receiving $7,500, and that his salary should be the same because he had saved the city many thousands of dollars.

"The Board of Estimate was well informed as to these estimates, and voted with full knowledge concerning them," said the Mayor. "There was no deception of any kind."

The trial will continue today.

HIS VOTE SATISFIES BENSON.

Socialist Candidate Says He Has No Complaints to Make.

Allen L. Benson, Socialist candidate for President, who received 1,300,000 votes or more in the election, said yesterday that he was gratified at the showing made by the Socialist Party, and had no complaints to make. Mr. Benson polled a larger popular vote that was ever before cast for the Presidential candidate of the Socialist party. The vote in 1912, four years ago, was 916,000 Criticism had been heard in Socialist circles that many prominent Socialists had advocated voting for President Wilson, although supporting other members of the Socialist party.

"I do not know anything definite about that," said Mr. Benson. "We have not yet received any accurate figures, so it is impossible to tell how much more the State Socialist tickets polled than the Presidential ticket."

Usher Solomon, Secretary of the Socialist party organization in New York State, said yesterday that if it could be proved that any of the older and prominent Socialists had failed to support the Presidential candidate, they would naturally cease to be members of the party.

"If they do not support the party, they cannot be Socialists," said he. "I know it has been said that several prominent members wrote letters advocating the election of Wilson, but those who were said to have done so have invariably denied it."

U. S. FLAGS TO BE UNIFORM.

Sixty-six Different Sizes Now in Use Will Be Cut Down.

Manufacturers who want to sell United States flags to the various departments of the Government will hereafter have to conform their offerings to the dimensions specified in an Executive order issued by the President several months ago. An investigation disclosed that sixty-six different sizes of flags were being bought by the various departments. The Secretaries of the Government departments are now sending out notices to officials throughout the country advising them of the new specifications, and warning against further purchases of the national emblem that fail to meet the requirements laid down in the President's order.

All together twelve sizes are specified for the national flag, apart from the colors carried by troops and camp colors. The latter two classes of flags must conform in size to the regulations laid down by the army and navy authorities. The order also applies to union jacks. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, in an order to Collectors and other officials, advised that all national flags and jacks now on hand or for which contracts have been awarded shall be continued in use until unserviceable, but all those manufactured or purchased for Government use after the date of the Secretary's order shall conform strictly to the dimensions and proportions prescribed by the President.

Acknowledgments.

THE NEW YORK TIMES acknowledges receipt of these contributions: For the after care of infantile paralysis victims, $100, from Beatrice L. Goldstone; for the relief of some Belgian child, $3, from "some little boys and girls of Riverdale"; for Mary S., in desperate condition, and for whom the Charity Organization Society appealed, $5, from an anonymous contributor.

CHICAGOANS PLAN AERO MAIL SERVICE

SPURRED BY TIMES FLIGHT

Carlstrom Performance Leads Glenn Muffly and Others to Look Into the Future.

A group of Chicago aviation experts, spurred on by the aeroplane flight which Victor Carlstrom made from Chicago to New York for THE NEW YORK TIMES in 8 hours 28 minutes 30 seconds actual flying time, are organizing a company to establish regular aeroplane mail routes between Chicago and Detroit and Chicago and New York. The Detroit route would be made without a stop; the New York route would include from one to three stops for fuel, so that the carrying capacity which Carlstrom used to take 1,500 pounds of gasoline could be devoted to mail.

Glenn Muffly, who was first in the bicycle business and later engaged in the manufacture of automobiles and is now manufacturing a rotary aeroplane motor in Chicago, is promoting the enterprise, and the machines for the service will be designed by Walter L. Brock, who in 1914 won the British Aerial Derby, the race from London to Manchester and back, and the cross-Channel race from London and Paris and return. The organizers do not expect to get started for eighteen months.

"The public has paid for every faster means of transportation and communication so far invented," Mr. Muffly wrote in a letter to THE TIMES, "and there can be no two ways about this—aeroplane mail and express service is coming. Passenger business will follow as soon as the public is educated to the fact that the modern aeroplane is safe. Our plan is to operate a daily—or rather nightly—air service between Chicago and New York, carrying mail and later passengers. Machines will leave Chicago and New York each evening after business hours and arrive at their destination early the next morning. Carlstrom made the trip in 8 hours 28½ minutes flying time, and we are figuring on ten hours, allowing for the taking on of fuel. Letters mailed at the close of business in either city will reach the other end of the line in time for the first delivery in the morning.

"Aviators will be guided in their night flights by a system of signal lights—an arrangement of vertical searchlights—which Mr. Brock and I have worked out. The lights will not only serve to mark the course, but to indicate landing places for use in emergency.

Carlstrom carried 1,500 pounds of fuel in his Chicago-New York flight. In regular service a plane would carry 1,000 pounds of mail and make from one to three stops for gasoline.

"The final development of the passenger business will be a service on the order of the taxicab, but of national instead of local character. The cost per mile per passenger will eventually be lower than taxi rates, on account of the much greater number of miles covered per hour.

"This, of course, is some years in the future, and depends on a number of factors—one of them the development, which is certainly coming, when ordinary aviators will have become something like as common as chauffeurs; when an ordinary pilot, as distinguished from the brilliant specialists, can be hired for something like $50 a week. At present, of course, we would charge a very much higher rate, probably from $100 to $250 for the Chicago-New York trip."

In the mail carried by Carlstrom on his flight was a letter from Mr. Muffly to Postmaster General Burleson, inquiring as to the willingness of the Post Office Department to entertain bids on such a service. In it he forecasts what actually happened to Carlstrom:

"Victor Carlstrom will make this trip between sunrise and sunset if some small detail does not go wrong. In a regular service such small details will be taken care of with a certainty that is not possible in plans for a single flight. We wish to know what cooperation may be expected from your department in establishing such a postal route as a regular thing. It is our thought to operate on a night schedule of ten or twelve hours, leaving each city nightly after the close of business and delivering the mail in time for the first downtown delivery."

In case the Post Office authorities are not at first willing to make a postal contract for the trip, the promoters expect to be able to make it commercially profitable by carrying express matter.

GOMPERS REPORTS ON LABOR'S COURSE

HIS VIEW OF THE ELECTION

Thinks Nation Indorsed New Legislation—Council Urges Labor Representation in Peace Negotiations.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson delivered the chief address at the opening today of the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. He said that he was present for the purpose of showing which side he was on.

"The greatest of all the functions of the Department of Labor," the Secretary said, "is that of having the hopes, aspirations, and philosophy of the wage-workers of our country come into the councils of the President of the United States."

Of the 300 disputes between labor and capital that had come before his department, Mr. Wilson said that 275 had been settled in a manner satisfactory to both sides, before a strike had been reached.

President Samuel Gompers, in an address, said that in the relations between the United States and Mexico the American Federation of Labor had a part in counseling the Mexican workingmen so that they might exert a steadying influence upon the people and Government of Mexico, and, "that the exploiters of Wall Street should not drive us into passion and anger and compel a conflict with our much weaker sister republic of Mexico." This statement evoked long continued applause.

"The Lusitania situation was taken well in hand by the officials of our Government," Mr. Gompers added, "and instead of declaring war with bluster, the aims and purposes of that diplomacy have accomplished all that a war could secure."

The passage by Congress of the Seamen's act and the Clayton anti-trust law were vindicated by the people of the United States last Tuesday, Mr. Gompers asserted.

Invocations were offered by Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop John Gardner Murray of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Maryland. The two prelates greeted each other heartily when they were escorted to the platform.

Federation's Membership Grows.

The annual report of the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor was presented at this afternoon's session of the convention.

The membership of the federation was 2,071,836 on Sept. 30, the close of the fiscal year, an increase of about 125,000 over the previous year, and of more than 1,800,000 in the nineteen years of its existence. There are 21,711 local unions in the federation and forty-five State federations. Receipts for the year were $404,407, with a cash balance at its close of $89,360.

The report closes with a plea to workers to continue their efforts for better conditions through organization and co-operation.

"There are opening up before the labor movement," it says, "tremendous opportunities to mold and influence the foundations of economic, social, and political organization."

In discussing international labor relations the report speaks of the effort to have a World Labor Congress held at the time and place of the holding of a World Peace Congress at the end of the European war and the rejection of the suggestion by organized labor in England and Germany, which "necessarily requires that our proposition be abandoned." This attitude led to the adoption of this suggestion by the Council:

"Since the first proposal submitted by the American Federation of Labor to the labor organizations of Europe has been definitely rejected by them, we suggest that the organized labor movements of those countries that shall participate in the general peace conference to determine terms and conditions of peace at the close of the war, shall urge upon their respective Governments that the wage-earners shall be represented in an official commission from their respective countries. The same policy ought to be pursued also by organized labor movements of neutral countries if it shall be determined that neutral countries also will participate in the general peace conference. Thus, representative wage-earners would be seated with other representatives of the nations in general conferencs connected with the formulation of peace terms. In this way the ideals and needs of wage-earners would be presented and considered by the general official body."

In discussing Pan-American labor relations the report details conferences in Washington last Summer between President Gompers and other officers of the American Federation and representatives of organized labor in Mexico when the relations between the two countries were "most critical." The report suggests that a Pan-American federation "is not only possible but necessary."

"When conditions had arisen that seemed to make war between the United States and Mexico inevitable," the report says, "the understanding between the labor movements of the United States and Mexico took on more definite form and was again instrumental in throwing light upon the influences and the agents that were trying to create war sentiment and the seeming necessity for intervention in the affairs of Mexico, and was able to help bring about an adjustment of misunderstandings without resorting to war."

The report tells of the conferences of the ultimatum sent to General Carranza by the United States demanding immediate release of American soldiers captured at Carrizal.

"It was at this time," the report goes on, "that a request was made to President Gompers that he make a personal appeal to General Carranza to release the United States soldiers." The telegram asking release "in the name of common justice and humanity and a better understanding between the two countries" and to avoid "the horrors of war" was recited, and the report goes on to say that "that same evening extra papers announced General Carranza had issued an order releasing the American soldiers."

Reviews Court Decisions.

Decisions of courts favorable and unfavorable to the contentions of labor are reviewed, some emphasis being laid upon a decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts holding unconstitutional a State law which was taken by the Federation as its first model in the endeavor to protect wage earners from "the perverted application of anti-trust legislation and from the abuse of the writ of injunction."

The decision, the report says, is based on the theory that "labor is property," which it asserts is a dogmatic ruling and based upon past decisions of judges. The court is charged with not making proper investigation in deciding such a case and its methods are characterized as "unscholarly, unscientific and out of harmony with the purposes of real justice." The report says the Executive Council will consider the case to determine whether further steps may be taken.

In connection with decisions affecting labor by Federal Courts the report refers to the Danbury Hatters' case.

"The great wrong that was done in the Danbury Hatters' case," it says, "may be eradicated after long years. The aged, infirm Danbury hatters have been ordered to pay the Shylock award claimed by the Anti-Boycott Association. The shadow of the hatters' case, which for years hung like a threatening pall over the labor movement, has power to menace."

"The decision of the United States Supreme Court in 1912 established a precedent which judges are trying to make law, although the highest law-making body of the country—the agency to which the nation delegated that function—has enacted legislation to remedy the great wrongs done by that decision. Justice, hampered by the judiciary, works slowly and in devious ways."

TO HEAR RATE SUIT ON JAN. 8

Interstate Commerce Examiner Will Pass on New Jersey Protest.

Wilbur La Roe, Examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, yesterday set Jan 8 as the date for the hearing of evidence in the application of New Jersey municipalities and other interests for a reduction of three cents a hundred pounds in the freight rate for railroads terminating in New Jersey.

Mr. La Roe said the case was important, and that he was disposed to give to both sides all the time necessary for preparation. The New York organizations which have been permitted to intervene in the suit, and which are opposing the reduction, protested previously against any delay, but the objection was not pressed yesterday, and the date in January was accepted by both sides.

George W. Wickersham, representing New York City in the suit, announced that permission had been obtained to hold the hearings in the Municipal Council Chamber.

BRITISH SENTIMENT FOR A HIGH TARIFF

U. S. Attache at London Says Americans May Be Forced to Build Plants in England.

LABOR IS FOR PROTECTION

P. C. Williams Asserts the Patent Act Might Be Enforced Strictly After the War.

American manufacturers may be under the necessity of starting plants in England if they desire to retain their position in English markets after the war. This possibility was expressed yesterday by Pierce C. Williams, United States Commercial Attaché at London, who is in this country on a leave of absence. Mr. Williams spent yesterday at the New York offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, where he conferred with business men interested in trade with Great Britain.

"All indications point to the fact that a protective tariff will be in effect in the United Kingdom after the war," said Mr. Williams yesterday. "Sentiment in favor of a high tariff is growing all the time in England and has the backing of influential interests. One of the elements in the situation is the spirit, largely augmented by the war, to weld the British Empire into a stronger unit than heretofore.

"British labor seems rather favorably impressed with the idea of a tariff wall, the argument being that such a measure would lessen competition and very likely tend to maintain higher wages. In this connection many believe that thousands of women now engaged in work formerly performed by men will keep their places after peace returns. This would probably have the effect of keeping wages down. Accordingly, many workers favor a high tariff system, partly to help maintain wages and partly in the hope that competition in manufactured articles produced by other countries would be reduced. Still others argue that a protective tariff would bring in a revenue on imports, thereby reducing somewhat other forms of taxation.

"Should a high tariff be enacted in England, its probable effect would be to curtail the sale of American manufactured articles in that country. It would even seem that in certain lines American manufacturers might find it desirable to establish plants in England in order the better to meet British and foreign competition there. An alternative, of course, might be to build American plants in Canada, or enlarge existing ones there in order to get into the English market on favorable terms."

The Commercial Attaché said that after the war England might enforce strictly the Patent act, which would require foreign manufacturers of patented articles to manufacture such goods in England. He said that owing to the economies put into effect by the British Government in its regulation of trade, exports from the United States at this time were almost exclusively limited to war munitions and supplies needed in connection with the prosecution of the war.

"When the war ends," said Mr. Williams, "there is going to be a stiff three-cornered fight in South America for the trade of that continent, the participants being Great Britain, Germany, and the United States. The South American market is regarded in England as very desirable."

The Attaché added that the determination of the British people to see the war through to a victorious finish was undiminished.

Thomas A Edison has caught the fleeting reality of this popular contralto's voice. The mellowness, the soft note of sadness as she sings the familiar melodies of old, are re-created through his new art. Have you heard Christine Miller? Come and let the New Edison introduce you to her at the special concert tomorrow.

Actual tests have been made in which Miss Miller sang in direct comparison with her re-created voice on the New Edison As the Boston Journal said: "It was impossible to distinguish the singer's living voice from its re-creation."

Concert Tomorrow

You are invited to attend the special concert of Christine Miller re-creations at our recital hall tomorrow. Other great artists and popular selections will be heard as well.

JAPANESE TRAGEDY ADMIRABLY STAGED

WASHINGTON SQUARE PLAYERS, in four playlets—"Trifles," by Susan Glaspell; "Another Way Out," by Lawrence Langner; "Bushido," by Takeda Izumo," translated and adapted from the Japanese by M. C. Marcus; "Altruism," by Karl Ettlinger. At the Comedy.

As the second bill of this, their third season, the Washington Square Players gave the first performance last evening of four short plays—all of them new, or new at least to the stage of this city. It marks progress in every point of selection, staging and playing, and is by all odds the best program in their history. So abundant, indeed, so varied and so striking is the entertainment now offered at the Comedy that they confirm the faith of their oldest friends and reach out for many new ones. By all means put the Comedy Theatre on your list. It is one of the places to go.

In the order given, these are the four plays. "Trifles" is a spare, little tragedy of a lonely American farm. It is a homespun play by Susan Glaspell that might have been written by Alice Brown. "Another Way Out" is a hilarious and capitally-played comedy by Lawrence Langner that comes gaily to the defense of the much-berated and untroubled marriage ceremony. "Bushido" is a profoundly stirring play wrought for American audiences from one act of an exalted Japanese tragedy: it is appropriately and beautifully staged and its performance is distinguished by the fine acting of the French actor, José Ruben. The fourth and last is "Altruism," a farce from the German that extracts considerable amusement from a professional beggar's difficulties in touching the heart of this selfish world. All these are handsomely produced and for the first time there is totally absent from a program of the Washington Square Players all devotion to the dank and all undue interest in depravity. Here you may be both grave and gay, and the gayety is both furious and wholesome.

The piece de resistance is "Bushido," appointed the place of honor on the program and certain to create, during the present engagement, the deepest interest. It achieves for its climax a moment so breathless that nothing approaching that moment in dramatic force is to be experienced just now in any other theatre in New York.

Here is a fragment of a historical Japanese tragedy of the eighteenth century—its most celebrated act translated and adapted for our understanding. Bushido, as the program is obliged to explain, is the Japanese term signifying "loyalty to the liege lord." The little son of the great and once powerful Sugawara has, after the fall of his father's fortunes, been smuggled to a boys' school and is kept there in safety until the enemies of his house discover the deception. They demand the head of the little boy, and then to Matsuo, secretly loyal to Sugawara, comes the opportunity to have his own son killed to save the son of his lord. The climax of the tragedy is the moment when the heroic Matsuo, in the eyes of all, takes into his trembling hands the box that contains the head of his slaughtered child and identifies it as the head of the heir of Sugawara.

"Bushido" possesses in a notable degree a quality almost entirely absent from the plays and playing of our day—the quality of nobility. It is beautifully mounted and is played with just the right suggestion of the conventions and spirit of the Japanese stage. Its bald, unimaginative translation, by M. C. Marcus, lacking in its language any attempt whatsoever at the colorful picturesqueness we associate with the art of Japan, achieves a certain austerity from its very bareness. The original tragedy runs the twelve hours from the hour of the hare to the hour of the monkey: even this fragment has been cut and cut. It should be cut still more, for the final curtain falls too long after the climax. Thereafter the play wallows in its own grief, and the interest filters painfully away. This anti-climactic descent is stayed only by M. Ruben's performance, by the afterglow of his masterly climax.

Miss Glaspell's play "Trifles" is an Autumnal, deeply human playlet, somewhat scanty in expression and hurt by a too pallid performance. It is unnecessarily faded gingham. Farmer Wright has been found murdered in his bed and they have taken his wife away to jail. While the Sheriff and the young District Attorney prowl blindly about the premises, two neighboring women piece out from trifles in the kitchen the tragic story of the murder, the story of the once pretty girl from the village choir whom this dour man had married and taken to his lonely farm. The pathos of her meagre life comes to light in the littleness of the things that have been her only interest—the pathos and the loneliness that finally maddened her to murder. Here is a bleak, little tragedy, over and done with when the play begins and of which the central figures never come upon the stage.

Usually one play at the Comedy is by a member of the band. Sometimes the director tosses off a satire. Next time the property man may do some fine fooling. This time Lawrence Langner, consultant of the business department and author of "Licensed," has written a saucy and exceedingly amusing comedy called "Another Way Out," capitally acted by M. Ruben, Groladys Wynne, Helen Westley, and Robert Strange—particularly Mr. Strange.

It tells of a popular novelist and a young sculptress who are such sedulous radicals that they make a point of living together without the restriction of the marriage ceremony, and find, to their alarm, that the rest of the world, not to be outdone in broad-mindedness, enters into a conspiracy to leave them to each other and respect "the sanctity of their home." Indeed, this becomes so oppressive that we leave them on their way to get a license. Mr. Langner has invented some hilarious situations for this playlet, and at last we have the Washington Square Players making pointed but good-humored fun of Bohemia

Clara Clemens in Recital.

Clara Clemens, contralto, gave her first recital of the season last night at Aeolian Hall with Ossip Gabrilowitsch, her husband, playing her accompaniments. She devoted her program to Brahms and Robert and Clara Schumann, singing one song of the latter's, "Was weinst Du, Blumlein?" Of Brahms's and Robert Schumann's songs she sang two groups respectively, including some of the most familiar and some less so. Mme. Clemens showed no essential departure last night from the style she has made familiar during her recent appearances here. Her program was a serious one and she brought to its performance impressiveness and intensity, with her voice apparently not wholly seconding her intentions when there was material of a lighter sort. Mr. Gabrilowitsch's accompaniments were, of course, a delight to hear.

'CAPTAIN KIDD, JR.,' FULL OF LAUGHTER

OF 'TURN TO RIGHT' SCHOOL

The Story of a Hunt for Buried Treasure in Cape Cod Capitally Acted by Cohan and Harris.

An Expressman	Westcott B. Clark
Jim Anderson	Otto Kruger

Samuel Dickins	Charles Dow Clark
Luella Bush	Zelda Sears
Greyson	Elmer Grandin
Green	Alf De Corsey
Brown	Olney Morgan
Solomon Shears	George Flint
John Long	Danby Dillon

"Captain Kidd, Jr.," is the Cohanese title of a Cohanese farce produced last night by Cohan and Harris in the theatre that bears their names. It is the work of Rida Johnson Young, author of more musical comedy librettos than plays, though she has written both, and while the program does not mention it, there is a strong suspicion that the freely flowing pen of George M. added a line here and a twist there.

The program describes "Captain Kidd, Jr.," as "a farcical adventure in three acts." It might have inserted the adjectives "extravagant, mad, riotous,") and the description would have been fairly complete. It is of the same school of drama as "Turn to the Right," which it suggests more than any other recent play, not in an imitative way, but in its result and the manner of achieving it. The humor of both plays lies largely in essentially comic characters, some of them so broadly drawn as to be within the realm of caricature, placed in unusual situations borrowed from the theatre rather than from life. No other first-night audience this season has laughed as heartily as last night's, except the one that saw the Smith-Hazzard farce at the Gaiety.

The farce tells the story of a hunt for buried treasure engaged in by an old Scotch bookseller of Manhattan, his grand-daughter, a budding novelist who works in the shop, and a young man whose appearance and speech would classify him as Bostonian if he were the subject of a comic weekly joke. The three are lured from the quiet of their musty basement bookshop and the fourth performs his first stroke of work in the quest for Mexican gold and jewels erroneously believed to be buried on Cape Cod.

Here they are mistaken for bank robbers, are suspected of being queer by the natives, and run afoul of the rich man of the community, who also covets the farm they have rented for their burrowing. They spend their savings and return disconsolately to New York with dispossession threatening them. It would be unfair to future audiences to tell how they avoid that calamity, which, of course, they do.

The first act is the poorest of the three. It is unnecessarily transparent and mechanical, and the strident manner in which it was played increased the irritation caused by these defects. But once the crew reached the Cape Cod farmyard and began littering the stage with real earth and stones there was apparent a more expert touch, and in the broadly farcical happenings that followed there was no necessity for restraint. Here the hand of Cohan was most visible, if not in the conception of the bucolic characters, certainly in filling in the details of speech and action.

Charles Dow Clark's caricature of a constable of the chin-whisker, by-heck family was the most hilarious feature of the performance. Mr. Clark acted the same sort of constable in "Young America," but this minion of the law has much more to do. Charles Brown, an English farceur, who has never before had a real chance in New York, has one now in the part of the anemic, be-spectacled young man responsible for the treasure hunt, and makes the most of it. Zelda Sears has entirely too little to do as the mistress of the suspected farm, but she does that little well, which is really redundant after mentioning her name.

Otto Kruger gives an attractive performance in the rôle of the young author, Ernest Stallard is a thick-headed Scot with a burr as thick, and Edward Suader an amusing rustic. A combination of Edith Taliaferro's rôle and her personality make her a bit irritating at times, though it may be more the author's fault than hers. But last night it was Mr. Clark's antics that did most for the performance.

"Captain Kidd, Jr.," would probably have grown into a musical comedy if song numbers could have been crowded between the laughs. It is of the same irresponsible stuff that librettos are made, and is for laughter and not for thought. The accent, in fact, is on the surname.

OUST MATRIMONIAL AGENCY.

Tenants Who Succeeded Podszus Ordered to Move.

The tenants who conduct a matrimonial agency in the three-story house at 385 West End Avenue have been ordered to move out within the next month, and with their departure will disappear the last vestige of the matrimonial brokerage business established in this city several years ago by the late Fritz Podszus. The dwelling was purchased last week by Baron William Waldorf Astor for $19,000 at a foreclosure sale in the Vesey Street auction room to satisfy a mortgage with taxes aggregating more than $20,000.

The house is opposite the Apthorpe apartment house, covering the block between West End Avenue, Broadway, Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Streets, owned by Baron Astor. He also owns the house at 383 West End Avenue, adjoining the matrimonial headquarters.

Podszus, who was long known as "the king of marriage brokers," was no respecter of persons. He defied Baron Astor's efforts to buy him out when, in 1912, he startled the west side residents by buying the West End Avenue house with his partner, Johann Ringlau, and putting up a matrimonial sign on the outside.

Podszus came into prominence about six years ago when he opened a suite of matrimonial offices at 303 Fifth Avenue. The agent of the building endeavored to persuade his objectionable tenant to leave. Podszus stayed until his lease expired and then, having accumulated a fortune, went with his partner Ringlau to the west side.

The purchase of the matrimonial house by Baron Astor gives to him possession of two of the six private residences on the west side of the block between Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Streets, one of which is occupied by the Rev. Dr. Haldeman.

NED HARRIGAN CLUB DINES.

Its Members Eat Beefsteak and Hear Entertainers.

Some 700 members of the Ned Harrigan Club, most of them Irish and all of them united in a devotion to the twin arts of politics and the drama, met last night for their annual beefsteak dinner at Webster Hall, 119 East Eleventh Street. There was an abundance of solid food, liquid refreshment, and airy conversation. The members wore dilapidated high hats of the style current in the '60s and aprons adorned with a print of the famous Irish actor and Annie Yeamans as they appeared in "The Major," one of Harrigan's most successful plays.

While Sheriff Al Smith, who holds the title of Commodore of the organization, and his staff of Vice Presidents kept everybody feeling at home, President Joe Humphreys announced the entertainers of the evening.

Among those on the program were Billy Harrigan, son of the patron saint of the organization; Johnnie Carroll, Johnny Casey, Annie Hart, Imogene Comer, Ada Jones, De Wolf Hopper, and Frank Byron. George M. Cohan looked in on the gathering.

THE NINE O'CLOCK TO OPEN.

Helen Freeman's Nine o'Clock Theatre, which was prevented from opening several weeks ago by the interference of the Building and License Departments, will begin its career tomorrow night. At the time the authorities stepped in it was charged that the miniature playhouse, which is at 32 West Fifty-eighth Street, did not comply with the building regulations, and for this reason could not be issued a license.

As originally planned, the theatre was to seat 299 persons, and so come within the rules governing the smallest auditoriums. The seating capacity has been reduced to seventy-five, which makes the Nine o'Clock the smallest theatre in New York. This was the principal of several alterations made to gain the consent of the authorities to open. The block in which the theatre is located is given over largely to residences of persons socially prominent, and at the time the first attempt to open was made it was said that many of these householders were opposed to the encroachment of a theatre upon their neighborhood.

The inaugural program will be that originally announced, consisting of three playlets, "Chinese Lily," by Paula Jacobi; "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Down, and a modern comedy and vocal solos by Nina Varesi. Miss Freeman's supporting company includes Langden Gillet, Mary Farren, Gertrude Clemens, Dorothy Chesten, Ross Macdougall and Ernest Rowan.

BRINGS THE IDEAIST DANCE.

Mme. de Saint Point Is to Give "Glorified Geometric Figures."

Mme. Valentine de Saint Point, a slender person with an original dance, accompanied by the poet, whose lines furnish the inspiration for her movements, and a director of scenery, costumes, and lights, arrived last night on the Spanish Line steamship Montserrat. Mme. Saint Point is a grand-niece of the poet Alphonse de Lamartine and a granddaughter of the Marquis César Emmanuel de Glande de Cessiat, who was a poet, a dramatic writer, and a philosopher.

With Mme. de Saint Point the dance is the thing. This dance is a series of glorified geometric figures. Soon she will be seen here in this dance, which, as she expressed it, is the idealist dance, the working out in motion, in music, and in poses the angles and lines of geometrical figures—in which the ideas find expression.

One of the ship news reporters inquired whether it was not a sort of cubist dance. Madame drew herself up; "No," she said emphatically, "one is a dance of sentiment and the other the dance of the idea."

VIOLINIST AND TENOR HEARD

Recitals were given yesterday afternoon by Amy Emerson Neill, violinist, at Aeolian Hall, and by Tom Dobson, tenor, at the Punch and Judy Theatre.

Miss Neill is a newcomer. Her program consisted of Mozart's Concerto in D, a group of pieces representing the older composers and another of more recent date, and Saint-Saens's "Morceau de Concert." Miss Neill made a favorable impression. Her tone is generally good and she plays with surety and sweep, and with a good rhythmic sense. Her accompaniments were played by Isaac Van Grove.

Mr. Dobson appeared for the first time this season in one of his unique recitals at the Punch and Judy Theatre. As usual, he gave a generous program and played the accompaniments to the songs himself, a thing which he does unusually well. Among the items of novelty on his program were some new songs by John Alden Carpenter, four of his own, and a group of Afro-American folk tunes collected by H. E. Krehbiel. By this time Mr. Dobson's work has become pretty generally known. It is distinctly sui generis and there is no need of saying more about the recital yesterday than that he was quite up to his usual form and gave pleasure and delight by his work.

'OVERTONES' IN VAUDEVILLE.

Washington Square Playlet Cordially Received at the Palace.

Alice Gerstenberg's celebrated playlet, "Overtones," was presented at the Palace yesterday afternoon, the third of the Washington Square plays to find favor in vaudeville. Helene Lackaye, a sister of Wilton Lackaye, plays one of the outerselves in this production, which is even handsomer scenically than the original. The present somewhat strident performance is a continuous reminder of the prevalent need of better voice training in the American theatre.

"Overtones" is part of a mixed bill. Harry Langdon and company, lost in the shuffle of "The Century Girl," return unruffled to vaudeville with the funniest automobile on the stage, which seems even funnier, following as it does after Billy Lloyd and George F. Britt. Charming Nan Halperin is at her best, despite two unpromising new songs and a killing epilogue, wherein, with dubious taste, she reverts to her old trick of admiring her own personality. Sam and Kitty Morton (senior members of the once celebrated Four Mortons who used to vie with the Four Cohans in the vaudeville of the nineties) are now demonstrating that 1880 jokes are as serviceable as those of 1916. Then, too, George Whiting and Sadie Burt have returned, and Lew Bryce and Helene Coyne are dancing. But the best number of all is that of Melville Ellis and Irene Bordoni. Mr. Ellis, the coloratura pianist, is in fine fettle, and Mlle. Bordoni, whom he has decked out in bewitching gowns, grows more and more captivating. Even "Pretty Baby" becomes enchanting when she sings it—in French.

GALA THRONG HAILS OPENING OF OPERA

Leila	Frieda Hempel
Nadir	Enrico Caruso
Zurga	Giuseppe de Luca
Conductor	Giorgio Polacco.

The opera season was opened at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening, under circumstances of a sort long familiar, under the same manager, whose assistants and subordinates, artists and conductors, are largely the same as last season; with a house crowded to its utmost capacity, and exhibiting in its more prominent places wealth, brilliance, fashion, which for a couple of centuries have been the chief support of opera; with the atmosphere of interest and expectancy that is supposed invariably to envelop doings of an opening night. Familiar faces upon the stage wore new disguises, and familiar voices were heard in unfaimiliar strains; for the opera was strange to most of the listeners. Mr. Gatti-Casazza had appointed for his first night one of new things that he is adding to the repertory of the Metropolitan—Georges Bizet's early opera, "Les Pecheurs de Perles."

Two of the chief favorites of the company were in the cast—Mr. Caruso and Mme. Hempel—the performance was one that challenged warm admiration, and there was naturally an outpouring of enthusiasm. Besides the first night's enthusiasm that was a part of the first night's proceedings, there was a realization that if the opera itself was not a masterpiece of the first rank it at least supplied a part admirably fitted for Mr. Caruso, in which his voice, his most impassioned style, and his long phrasing were to be heard to excellent advantage; and another for Mme. Hempel's beautiful singing, including a certain amount of coloratura. This is an important matter for the management and for the public, and to be appreciated at its true value. The opera, furthermore, supplies, brilliant and effective stage pictures, and is peopled with a handsomely costumed operatic throng.

Bizet's work was given completely for the first time in New York; but it has been presented at various other operatic centres in America: in Philadelphia by the Hinrichs company of twenty years ago, and in San Francisco, when Mme. Tetrazzini sang the soprano part just before she was "discovered," and suddenly became, for a space, a great prima donna. At this performance Mr. Polacco conducted, as he did last evening. The returns from New Orleans are not yet received, but there is every likelihood that it has been at some time in the repertory of the French opera company there.

"Les Pêcheurs de Perles," if not Bizet's first opera, was the first one that he produced as a full-fledged composer, free from all the limitations and conditions of school and of price competitions. There are some great artists of whom in their youth "ex ungue leonem" could hardly be said; as cubs they made little display of the lion's claw. A candid hearing of "Les Pêcheurs de Perles" cannot discover in it a great work or declare its composer a great creative genius. Like Wagner, Bizet grew into his true greatness.

There is much that is estimable in the opera. There are technical facility, a dexterous command of the resources of operatic technique that had been developed in France up to its time, which was the year 1863. So far as it goes, there is a certainty of touch that speaks well for a young man of 25. Bizet's training at the Government school had been prepared for and supplemented by the atmosphere of professional music in which he lived at home. There was nothing in his artistic nature or in his reasoned aesthetics to make him depart from the accepted paths. In so far he was as little of an innovator as Mozart.

"Les Pêcheurs de Perles" must therefore be listened to as a product of 1863, in very ferw things ahead of its time. In truth, it seems now a little old-fashioned, a little perfunctory, a little conventional. The effectiveness, the amplitude of manner which it undoubtedly possesses at various points, in various measure, are limited by its old fashion, its conventionality.

Its Plot Is Childish.

The story of "Les Pecheurs de Perles" is a singularly childish plot, even for an operatic libretto; and plot and substance have most of the vices of operatic librettos. The Cingalese pearl fishers are accustomed to gain the protection of the gods by the mediation of a veiled virgin who sings while they work, day and night, on a high rock. This office is to be performed by the mysterious Leila, of unknown provenance. The chief of the fishers, Zurga, and his friend, Nadir, both fell in love once with an unknown maiden of Kandy, but they fled from her charm and have renounced their rivalry. When Leila appears, veiled though she is, Nadir, as well as the audience, is prepared for a surprise. He approaches her, they recognize each other, they meet alone, they sing a love duet. She is thereby neglecting her duties and a storm is sent by the gods. The pearl fishers investigate this failure of their arrangements and find the two lovers together. Zurga, jealous as well as indignant, pronounces the death sentence on both. But his sentiments are changed by perceiving on Leila's neck a necklace that, years before, he gave to a child for saving his life. She is the child. He determines to let the lovers escape and the best way he can think of to do it is to set fire to the pearl fishers' camp. They rush to put the fire out while Zurga sends the couple aboard his boat; but he himself is surprised in what his clansmen consider an act of treason and falls by the knife of the enraged high priest, while the lovers go free.

This is the sort of thing that, to be made tolerable, at least calls for music by turns descriptive, picturesque, passionate, and judiciously "Oriental." A good deal of indulgence must be exercised to find much of any of these qualities in the score. There is fluent writing for the solo voices, writing that is vocal and can be effectively sung; but there is little characterizatic in the music and little that will be recognized as a sustained utterance, personal or original, of the Bizet of "Carmen." There is little distinction here in melody, harmony, or rhythm. The prevailing quality is facile mediocrity. At the same time, in the most undistinguished pages of the score there will appear, no wand again, some touch of harmony, some modulation, some figuration, some bit of instrumental color that may warn the attentive listener of the coming master.

Some Pleasing Numbers.

It is hardly necessary to single out "numbers;" though the duet between Nadir and Zurga in the first act, "Au fond du temple saint," is said to have found popularity outside the opera. Nadir's song, with accompaniment of violoncello and English horn, "Je crois entendre," is pleasing; and there is another song for Nadir in the second act of somewhat more musical value. In Leila's song in that act, "Comme autrefois dans la nuit combre," there is an accompaniment with a pleasing effect for the horn that may recall to some a similar use in Don José and Micaela's duet in "Carmen." But there is little of the "Carmen" quality in the duet between Nadir and Leila that comes later. Effective declamation is put into the long recital of Zurga at the opening of the third act; the entrance of the priest Nourabad shows a not very bold venture outside the usual procedures, and probably contributed to the "Wagnerian" impression of 1863.

Perhaps most noticeable is the fact that Bizet has undertaken to give his Orientals so little to sing, or even to dance to, that comes within the accepted formulas of "Orientalism" in music. If any choose to they may find a faint touch of it in the flat seventh of the instrumental preluding to the opening chorus. There is an occasional little turn at the end of a vocal phrase, as in the love duet between Leila and Nadir, that timidly suggests it; and almost as timid a suggestion in the invocation to Brahma that she sings at her first appearance. The dance of the Cingalese fishermen at the beginning of the second scene of Act III. is hardly recognizable as an exotic. In fact, it must be admitted that the treatment of the choruses in general is of the type perfectly acceptable to the year 1863. It would not be difficult to find treatment of the text in the chorus quite as absurd as the classical absurdities of operatic librettos.

One feature of the opera is significant of an idea lurking in the young composer's head, though it would be easy to make too much of its importance in "Les Pêcheurs de Perles."

That is the use of a "reminiscent" phrase that first appears when Leila recognizes Nadir in the first act. It appears again in the second act as Zurga perceives the two lovers, and again near the close of the opera as Leila and Nadir are making their escape. Bizet never made use of any systematic "leading motives," never even so much as did Berlioz, years before him; but the appearance of the ominous phrase so potent in "Carmen" is here prefigured. The most amusing thing in the history of "Les Pêcheurs de Perles" is that its timid originalities, its mellifluous "dissonances," its "overcharged orchestration" brought down upon the author's head denunciation of his "Wagnerism." Such influences as are easiest to perceive in it today are those of Gounod or even of Auber.

A Fine Performance.

Everything was done for "Les Pêcheurs de Perles" that the resources of the Metropolitan Opera House could do. The performance was in every respect a fine one. The singing of Mr. Caruso and Mme. Hempel as Nadir and Leila was of the highest beauty. Mr. Caruso seemed to show slight traces of a cold and saved his voice at times. De Luca was somewhat overweighted with the part of Zurga. His voice sounded singularly light last evening, tending more toward a tenor quality, and was in fact so light that in its lower reaches it was quite ineffective in the music he had to sing. Mr. Rothier as the High Priest was suitably pontifical and made a valuable contribution to the vocal and dramtic features of the occasion.

There was very good singing indeed by the chorus—voluminous, accurate, finely shaded, and the orchestra played with finish and sonority. Mr. Polacco conducted the performance and is entitled to great credit for it. The scenery was, of course, all new, and was unusually picturesque; the seashore and temple of the first act, the ruin in the moonlight of the second, the native hut and the landscape of the next scene of the third.

BRILLIANT SOCIETY DISPLAY.

Spectacular Gowns and Jewels Worn—Occupants of the Boxes.

A brilliant assembly of society witnessed the opera last night. When the curtain fell at the close of the first act, showing an arid beach on the Island of Ceylon, the house lights were flashed on a scene gorgeous in coloring and the scintillating fire of jewels. The array of gowns was spectacular, with the new metal and jewel effects. Metal gauzes of green and metal cloths of gold, and glittering opera cloaks, lavishly embroidered in gold, added to the lustre of the famed "golden horseshoe."

There were also many costumes of simplicity in color and design, which gave more variety to the scene of fashion. Many more jewels were worn than at the opening last season.

One of the parterre boxes that attracted the most attention was 29, occupied by Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, who had as her guests the Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Gerard, also James De Wolf Cutting. Mrs. Gerard's costume was silver gray velvet with a corsage of gray net brocaded in silver flowers. Mrs. Barney was in rose pink satin trimmed with silver and lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt occupied Box 1, owned by Mrs. Ogden Goelet. They entertained Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin and Mr. and Mrs. W. Payne Thompson. Mrs. Vanderbilt wore a pale mauve velvet draped with silver tulle. Mrs. Iselin was in white satin, the corsage showing touches of jet. Two tall white peacock feathers rose from her dark coiffure. She carried a huge white ostrich feather fan. Mrs. Thompson was in black net picked out in silver, with a cuirass corsage of silver.

C. Oliver Iselin's Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin and Mr. and Mrs. John Sanford shared Box 31, owned by Mrs. Vanderbilt. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Bishop, Schuyler Parsons, Jr., and R. Thornton Wilson. Mrs. Iselin wore pale-pink satin with silver lace, and Mrs. Sanford was in pale-pink velvet and lace. Mrs. Bishop wore green satin and tulle embroidered in crystals.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Davison in Box 21, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Guthrie. Mrs. Davison wore a gown of purple velvet and tulle. Mrs. Guthrie was in black velvet, with a rope of pearls. Mrs. Stotesbury appeared in rose red velvet and tulle angel sleeves to match, with a wonderful collection of jewels, including a high diamond crown, and a huge pear-shaped diamond, set in a diamond fretwork plaque, her wedding gift from the late J. Pierpont Morgan. She also wore diamond shoulder clasps, and a short necklace of large pearls.

Miss Mabel Gerry, in Box 23, wore a black velvet gown and orchids. Her guests were Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Eddy, James Barney, Wadsworth Lewis, and Francis Roche. Mrs. Eddy was in peach pink satin and crystals.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, in Box 18, had as their gests, the Misses Harriet and Mary Crocker Alexander, Stuyvesant Chanler, and Winthrop W. Aldrich, the fiancé of Miss Harriet Alexander. Mrs. Alexander wore a pale blue brocaded gown with a diamond diadem and orchids at the corsage. Miss Alexander was in flesh-colored satin trimmed with gold lace. Miss Mary C. Alexander wore a frock of rose-shaded silk.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor.

In Box 7 were Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, who had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Huntington and Miss Alice Huntington, Mrs. Astor's débutante sister. Mrs. Astor wore a simple white gown of satin and chiffon. Mrs. Huntington was in black velvet, and the débutante wore a frock of rose-pink and white tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren, in Box 14, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Glasgow of Washington, D. C., and Coster Wilmerding. Mrs. Warren was in ciel blue, with diamonds and pearls. Mrs. Glasgow wore blue metallic cloth and chiffon, with a diamond bandeau.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman and Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Straight were in Box 9, and had with them Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Gerry and Thomas Slidell. Mrs. Harriman wore a pansy-colored velvet, with a silver on the corsage. Mrs. Straight was in dull green velvet, trimmed in dull silver. Mrs. Gerry wore an oyster white, draped with tulle of the same shade.

In Box 26 were Mr. and Mrs. William Ross Proctor, who had with them Mr. and Mrs. Oren Root, Miss Vouletti Proctor, and W. R. Proctor, Jr. Mrs. Proctor was in white and silver, and Mrs. Root wore a costume of white and black, carrying a huge white feather fan. Miss Proctor was in palest blue and pink.

Mrs. George J. Gould and Mrs. Henry Clews were in Box 12. Mrs. Gould was in very pale blue, with a superb plastron of diamonds at the corsage and a chain of diamonds. Mrs. Clews wore a gown of oyster white with shoulder straps of black jet, with a tall black ostrich plume rising from the coiffure.

Mrs. H. McK. Twombly's guests in Box 17 included the Duchess de Richelieu and Miss Ruth Twombly. Mrs. Twombly was in white satin and tulle with pearls, and the Duchess de Richelieu wore a gown of white velvet with angel sleeves and draperies of white chiffon. Miss Twombly was in white tulle with touches of blue.

Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Reid.

Mrs. Ogden Mills, in Box 20, wore a cloth of silver gown, with a coronet of diamonds, and a dog collar of pearls and a diamond necklace. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who was with Mrs. Mills, was in black, witn a touch of white, and pearls.

With Clarence Mackay in Box 28 were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. John Magee, and Mr. Furlaud of Paris. Mrs. Thomas was in white and silver and Mrs. Magee wore a gown of black and white with touches of silver, carrying a large black feather fan.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney were in Box 30. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney wore a mediaeval gown of castor colored velvet, with a girdle of silver worn below the waist line, and ropes of pearls. Mrs. Payne Whitney was in metal cloth of gold, with a side girdle of blue, and a diamond tiara.

Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, in Box 3, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson, Jr., Mrs. H. Van Rensselaer Kenney, and Henry May. Mrs. Wilson appeared in white satin veiled in tulle picked out in black. Her jewels were pearls. Mrs. Wilson, Jr., wore a mediaeval gown of rose red velvet, with a diamond plastron. Mrs. Kennedy's light mauve velvet was trimmed with silver spangled lace.

Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones, in Box 25, had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. John Russell Poe, Miss Louise Wise, Clinton Gray, H. F. Eldridge, and Pembroke Jones, Jr. Mrs. Jones, in gray velvet, wore her emeralds. Mrs. Pope, who was in white velvet, wore a diamond bandeau. Miss Wise of Wilmington, N. C., was in white tulle, trimmed in satin.

In Box 35 were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee, Police Commissioner and Mrs. Arthur Woods, and Miss Anne Morgan. Mrs. Satterlee wore turquoise blue velvet with white lace and a diamond collar. Miss Morgan was in pale blue satin and tulle, with a diamond and pearl collar. Mrs. Woods wore a bright blue chiffon velvet costume with wide bands of pearl trimming and a diamond bandeau on her dark hair.

R. Fulton Cuttings and Guests.

In Box 27 were Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, who had Dr. and Mrs. Stafford McLean, Mrs. Reginald Auchincloss, and John Sloane as their guests. Mrs. Cutting was in black and silver brocade. Mrs. McLean wore a costume of white satin and tulle, and Mrs. Auchincloss was in white satin with a touch of turquoise blue and wore violets on her corsage. Both of the sisters carried huge white ostrich feather fans.

Henry C. Frick, in Box 19, had with him Miss Helen C. Frick, Mrs. Lawrence Dilworth, Miss Louise Freeman, John P. Grier, and Dr. Fordyce St. John. Miss Frick was in pale pink, and Mrs. Dilworth wore green and silver.

Lord Glentworth was with Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady in Box 32, also Mr. and Mrs. John D. Ryan, and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Kelley. Mrs. Brady wore a gown of cloth of gold and pearls. Mrs. Ryan was in black velvet, and Mrs. Kelley in light blue and silver.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blodgett, in Box 5, had Miss Catherine C. Blodgett, their débutante daughter, with them, also Mr. and Mrs. F. Gray Griswold and Samuel S. Colt. Mrs. Blodgett was in rose pink velvet, and the débutante in blue metallic cloth. Mrs. Griswold wore black satin, brocaded in gold roses, with a diamond hair ornament.

Mr. and Mrs. John Markle, in Box 34, had with them Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tatnall and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Platt. Mrs. Markle was in pink and silver with diamond ornaments. Mr. and Mrs E. H. Gary, in Box 15, had as their guests the Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. da Gama, Mr. and Mrs D. C. Jackling of San Francisco, and Mrs. Rudolph Spreckels. Mrs. Gary was in brilliant green velvet, with a coronet and plastron of diamonds. Mme. da Gama was in dull blue, trimmed in dull silver, with a Russian diamond tiara. Mrs. Spreckels wore black with white tulle and pearls, and Mrs. Jackling was in black velvet with diamonds.

Mme. Alda Gatti-Casazza had as her guests in Box 48, in the grand tier, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, William C. Van Antwerp, Sherman Day, and Philip Foster. Colonel Robert C. Clowry, in Box 40, in that tier, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Karl G. Roebling, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Estabrook. Mr. and Mrs. George McNeir, in Box 47, had with them Mr. and Mrs. Frank Presbrey, Mrs. William McNeir of Washington, D. C., and Thomas S. McNeir. Mr. and Mrs. W. Dixon Ellis, in Box 51, entertained Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Trabell. Isaac D. Fletcher's guests in grand tier Box 52 were Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Van C. Hamilton, Professor and Mrs. J. B. Fletcher, and Dr Austin Barclay Fletcher. Joseph Ritter, in Box 43, entertained Mme. Pavlo Frisch, Miss Rosalie Wirthlin, Miss Florence Pease, J. Gilmore Fletcher, and Andrew Fulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn entertained Stephene Lauzanne, the former editor of Le Matin of Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Archer Huntington were absent on account of mourning; also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steele. E. Hayward Ferry's guests in their parterre box were Mr. and Mrs. de Forest Manice, Miss Louise Dilworth, and Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar. Miss Esther Auchincloss was among the guests in George F. Baker's parterre box, No. 10, and her fiancé, Edmund Nash; also Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont entertained in Box 4, Mrs. Belmont being in pale blue and chiffon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Hoyt had in their parterre box Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Dickey and Miss Rosina Hoyt. Mr. and Mrs. James B. Taylor, in Box 8, were among the newcomers. Mr. and Mrs. William F. Sheehan had as their guests, in parterre box 22, Mr. and Mrs. Austen Gray, Frederick H. Baldwin, F. W. Crowninshield, and George Woolsey.

Many Foreigners Present.

A large number of foreigners were present at the premiere—more than usual. Many of these visitors are on this side on missions connected with their Governments. Captain Koenig of the merchant submarine Deutschland and several of his officers were in the audience.

Miss Julia Chester Wells, in grand tier box 41, entertained Mrs. Charles E. Cooke, Frederick Swift, and Henry Kent. Mr. and Mrs. Bertram G. Work, in Box 50, had Mr and Mrs. Peake and Mr. and Mrs. Doubleday. Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, in stall box E, entertained Mr. and Mrs. James M. Beck.

Mrs. Van Juch Wellman and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Marron, owners of Stall Box F, had Mrs. William L. Swinburne with them. Mrs. Jacob Langeloth had Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frew and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters as her guests in Stall Box W. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott Gerrish, in Stall Box C, entertained Miss Dorothy Manice.

Others seen were W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Roose, Mrs. Karrick Riggs, Robert W. Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herbert, who had Mr. and Mrs. John Angus McKay with them in Stall Box V; Mrs. Craig Biddle, Mrs. C. Hartman Kuhn, Mrs. Richard Townsend, Mrs. Marshall Field, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Cravath.

The omnibus of the Metropolitan Opera Club was filled. Among the members of the club present were Ernest F. Ayrault, Edmund C. Converse, William C. De Lanoy, George Ethridge, Charles L. Gibson, David L. Haight, Clifford B. Harmon, William A. Kissam, Franz Lewisohn, Hermann Oelrichs, George D. Provost, John E. Schermerhorn, Harry Rowe Shelley, James J. Van Alen, Waldron Williams, William F. Zeller, Alexander S. Cochran, Eugene W. Durkee, De Soto Fitzgerald, Edward de Peyster Livingston, I. Chauncey McKeever, Robert Maxwell, Warren C. Beach, and Eugene W. Durkee.

OPERA HOUSE LEADS RIALTO.

That one spot along Broadway which has been a dark blot on the name of "white lights" all through the Fall months of theatrical activity, blossomed out into incandescence last night as the Metropolitan Opera House took its place at the head of the Rialto. The opera was Bizet's "Les Pêcheurs de Perles," which was given for the first time complete at the institution. Caruso headed the cast and there was everything about the occasion that there should be on an opening night.

There was another thing that should not have been, but the audience knew nothing about it. General Manager Gatti-Casazza, after he entered the house and had spent some time back of the scenes, found missing from his shirt-front one of the set of pearl studs which had been his pride. So, while the artists on the stage were singing "The Pearl Fishers," all available attachés were acting the same parts in real life for the benefit of the General Manager. They had not reported success by midnight.

The unpleasantness of the weather had some effect on delaying arrivals and making the members of the audience damp and unenthusiastic when they did get there. It is estimated by the official statistician of the house that there were about 600 automobiles in the lines that slowed up traffic around the house during the first half hour of the evening. Society followed its usual custom of not being visible in the boxes until the lights were turned on after the end of the first act and vanishing before they lighted the house after the final curtain.

As visitors entered the main doors they saw that changes had been made during the Summer. In the main entrance large settees had been placed at one end and a cigar stand put in, giving at once an air of coziness that had formerly been conspicuously absent. The innovation is credited to the new member of the executive staff, Edward Ziegler.

Inside the house new carpets have been laid. They are of a dazzling redness that almost frightens the feet. The rail separating the standees from the elect has been replaced by a grill, and there are now lights showing the steps that must be descended from the entrance doors to floor level. Formerly these steps were dark and caused many a stumble.

CONSTANCE MORGAN ILL.

Health Department Diagnoses Her Case as Poliomyelitis.

Residents in the apartment house at 114 East Eighty-fourth Street have been disturbed for several days over the fact that an officer of the Health Department attached an infantile paralysis sign to the front door of the first-floor apartment of Miss Constance Morgan, who is employed as a secretary in the offices of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company here.

At the apartment house last night it was said that she had been ill for the last four days and was under the care of a nurse. Miss Morgan's condition was not serious, the nurse insisted, and she had not as yet shown any signs of paralysis.

Miss Morgan is about 22 years old, and is the daughter of the late Leslie and Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan. Her name appears in the Social Register. Her father was a shipbuilder here, and died about ten years ago. Her mother, who taught a private school after his death, died more recently, and Miss Morgan found herself in straitened circumstances and was forced to go to work.

ALIMONY FOR MRS. PULITZER

Magazine Publisher Denies Wife's Charges of Cruelty.

Papers in a suit for separation brought by Mrs. Lillian Hearne Pulitzer against Walter Pulitzer, son of the late Albert Pulitzer and nephew of Joseph Pulitzer, were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday showing that Justice Morschauser in Westchester County had allowed $30 a week alimony instead of $300 a month asked by Mrs. Pulitzer.

Mrs. Pulitzer sued on the ground of cruelty and inhuman treatment. In her petition for alimony she gave this description of her husband: "It is impossible in words to explain the character and temperament of Mr. Pulitzer. All our married life he has been tireless in his efforts to break my will. He is a man of about 39 years of age, of strong and robust build. His one thought is of himself, and his egotism is unsurpassed by any one I have ever met."

The couple were married at Patchogue, L. I., on Aug. 8, 1909. Mrs. Pulitzer alleges that at Sea Cliff, L. I., in 1910, her husband became jealous of her pet bulldog and mistreated the animal so cruelly that she left the dinner table and locked herself in her room, whereupon Mr. Pulitzer broke open the door and addressed her in violent language.

The defendant submitted a photograph of himself playing a guitar and his wife sitting near by and smiling at him. He also produced an affidavit by Richard Hartley, art editor of Satire, published by a stock company controlled by Mr. Pulitzer, who said that "the attitude of Mr. Pulitzer toward his wife was invariably one of affection and consideration." The defendant says that while his salary is $5,000 a year and he owns $100,000 of stock in a magazine publishing company, the stock has no market value, and often he doesn't feel that he should draw his salary.

Mr. Pulitzer said last night that the whole trouble with his wife was a tempest in a teapot.

"She abandoned a happy home and a generous and devoted husband in a fit of jealous rage," he said. "There is no justification for the suit. I never spoke crossly to her, much less abused her."

"The trouble is," he continued, "she is a spoilt child, as her friends well know. She has been fêted by society until it has turned her pretty head. She has even wanted to go on the stage. I refused to support her when she deserted her home."

BUYS ON UPPER 5TH AV.

Mrs. Flagler, Bride of Today, May Build on 96th St. Corner.

Mrs. Mary Lily Flagler, who will be married today to Judge Robert Worth Bingham of Louisville, Ky., in this city, will probably join the upper Fifth Avenue colony in the near future, by building a mansion for her new city home. The transfer was recorded yesterday to her, in the Register's Office, of the block front on Fifth Avenue between Ninety-sixth and Ninety-seventh Streets, opposite Central Park. The plot has a frontage of 201 feet by 100 feet in depth on each street. The transfer was dated Aug. 30, 1914, showing that she took title at that time, but her ownership of the property has been kept secret. The transfer was made by John Russell Pope, the architect, who purchased the property over two years ago.

The property is well above the northern limit of fine Fifth Avenue homes, although there has recently been a tendency to build elaborate houses above Carnegie Hill. Mrs. Ernesto Fabbri is completing a fine house in Ninety-fifth Street, just off Fifth Avenue, adjoining a new house recently built for Mrs. Amory Carhart. Last year Willard D. Straight built his new home on the Ninety-fourth Street corner.

Mrs. Flagler has taken title to the property subject to a mortgage for $700,000. On the assessment rolls last year it was valued for taxation at $434,000.

TELEPHONE CLERK TO GET 'CHANGE SEAT

A second uniformed employe of the Stock Exchange is to be advanced to full membership on the board as soon as John H. Jacquelin & Co., 52 Broadway, have completed arrangements for the purchase of a seat for John Ahearn. Ahearn has been chief telephone clerk on the Exchange for the Jacquelin firm for fifteen years. Last week Underhill & Gilmor bought a seat for Philip Miller, sergeant of the messenger boys on the floor.

These promotions of employes to membership on the Exchange caused considerable comment in the Street yesterday. In the past the Stock Exchange, with its membership limited to 1,100 men, has been considered as a rather exclusive club, but the signs point toward a distinct change in this respect. The break from precedent came first last Spring, when S. S. Schuyler of Schuyler, Chadwick & Burnham bought a seat for one of the firm's office force as a reward for long and skillful service.

One reason ascribed for the promotion of Stock Exchange employes is the heavy business done in securities these days. Messengers and telephone clerks of long experience are qualified to step right into the crowds on the floor and hold up their end. They become distinct assets to their firms without a period of "breaking in."

John H. Jacquelin & Co. are one of the five big odd-lot houses, the details of whose business on the Exchange have expanded largely since the period of million-share days began. The firm already has six floor members, and, like other odd-lot firms, has been forced to unusual exertions to execute its orders.

Robert Olyphant, President of the United Hospital Fund of New York, formerly known as the Saturday and Sunday Hospital Association, said yesterday at a meeting of the fund that the large number of hospitals appealing for public aid showed the necessity for a standardizing agency, such as the fund, which compiled the most complete and carefully verified facts regarding the work and finances of the various hospitals.

Frederick C. Greene, General Secretary, reported that 132,615 bed patients had been cared for by these hospitals last year, while they also cared for 560,146 dispensary cases and 35,566 ambulance calls. Seventy per cent. of the work done in these hospitals was without cost to the poor, he said, and, in view of the increased cost of drugs and supplies, he thought they had a primary claim on the citizens of this city.

George McAneny and Ivy L. Lee were elected members-at-large, and E. H. Outerbridge and Arnold Wood were elected members of the Executive Committee of the fund. Charles Lanier, for thirty-five years Treasurer of the organization, reported that this year's distribution was the largest yet made, amounting to $117,564.

WILLS $90,000 TO MISSIONS.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 13.—More than $100,000 is left to charitable and public institutions by the will of Colonel Frederick S. McNeely, former Postmaster here, which was admitted to probate today. Under the terms of the will the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of America will receive $30,000 and the Board of Home Missions of the same organization $20,000. These sums are to be augmented in later years by the equal division between the two boards of an additional $40,000.

The estate is valued at about $200,000.

"The 13th Chair" Next Monday.

"The 13th Chair," a new melodrama by Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law," will be presented next Monday night in the Forty-eighth Street Theatre. "Object—Matrimony" was moved there last night from the Cohan and Harris, and was to have remained two weeks, when it would have been succeeded by "Mile-a-Minute Kendall." The postponement of that play caused the change in plans and the earlier arrival of the Veiller piece.

Bazaar for the New Synagogue.

The Sisterhood of the New Synagogue, 43 West Eighty-sixth Street, will hold a bazaar to start a building fund for the synagogue on the Astor roof beginning this afternoon. It will continue this evening and during the afternoon and evening tomorrow and Thursday. Tomorrow evening Commissioner Waldstein will speak. Mrs. Isaac H. Meyer is President of the sisterhood and Mrs. Charles Rose is in charge of the bazaar arrangements. The New Synagogue was founded by Rabbi Ephraim Frisch, formerly of Far Rockaway, and at present has a membership of 150.

OF UNIVERSAL BENEFIT.

The re-election of President WILSON will be felt as a substantial gain throughout the world and for a long time to come. It will seriously check and probably defeat the movement that had been started in Europe for a war of tariffs to follow the war of armies and with a like destructive purpose. The avowed intention of this movement was to starve the trade of the Central Powers, should they be defeated, as the Allies have sought to shut out food from the territory of their enemies. Were it successful, it would extend and prolong the sufferings of the war and prevent or defer the recuperation of the nations from war's devastation and enfeeblement.

Had Mr. HUGHES been elected, and the Republican Party been returned to power, it would have been accepted in Europe as an indorsement by the people of the United States of the underlying principle of this trade war, the principle of privilege and monopoly on the one hand and of repression and oppression on the other hand. Had Great Britain been misguided enough to join in the plot gravely proposed by her allies—and there is a strong party in England and the Dominions in sympathy with the plot—there would not have been in all the world a single great nation standing for the utmost freedom of exchange and for the advance toward general peace and lasting prosperity to which freedom of exchange is absolutely the condition precedent. The re-election of President WILSON will be a powerful reinforcement to British statesmen such as Mr. ASQUITH, Viscount GREY, and Viscount BRYCE in their efforts to achieve a peace that will be enduring.

It is, indeed, in the attitudes of the two candidates and the parties back of them toward this vital principle of commercial equality and freedom that the significance of the national election lies, not for our country alone, but for the world. The Republicans and their leader did not for a moment or in any serious manner pretend that the policy of the United States in foreign relations would be changed if Mr. HUGHES became President, and in the Chancelleries of the contending Powers no change was expected. The firm and impartial neutrality which President WILSON, following the unchanging policy established by WASHINGTON, had maintained, the consistent and steady assertion of American rights, equally initiated by WASHINGTON and upheld by Mr. WILSON, these would not—because they could not—have been abandoned by a Republican President. What would have been abandoned and reversed would have been the principle of the greatest practicable freedom of commerce. Instead of faith in that principle and loyal and sympathetic eagerness to establish and extend its beneficent influence, the temper of the American Government would have been that of narrow, selfish, and envious protectionism. Against the proposed transfer of bitter warfare from the field of arms to the field of trade the United States could have presented no opposition. It could have offered only its own miserable policy as a precedent. On the one essential and inevitable issue which must arise when the war is ended and general peace is to be considered, the issue of equal commercial opportunity, of the "open door," the weight of this great nation would have been thrown in the scale of reaction.

The world is talking of a "League to Enforce Peace." Viscount GREY and Chancellor VON BETHMANN HOLLWEG recognize it as the possible means of insuring the world against the recurrence of the conflict that has desolated Europe. But peace that must be maintained by arms is at best a difficult and risky achievement. Every one will concede that peace would be far more certain and secure if the chief motive for conflict were as far as practicable removed. The chief motive for the present war—not the sole motive, certainly, but the one without which the others would probably have been inadequate—is the desire for exclusive or privileged trade. It is that which has guided and urged Germany in her struggle for her "place in the sun," for colonial expansion in Africa and China, for control of the Balkan trade routes and the resources of Asia Minor. Nor are the Allies free from like aspirations. France and Russia, where they have extended their dominions and their control, have sought special advantages, and threescore years ago Great Britain was fighting to maintain her commercial advantage in India. The desire for trade cannot be suppressed. It is the product of the struggle for existence which is the lot of humanity. But if trade can be made more free and more nearly equal, by so much is the danger of armed conflict lessened.

By that path, after the close of this war, must peace be sought. Had Mr. HUGHES been elected President on Tuesday, the tendency of the policy of the American Government would have been, directly and indirectly, to bar that path; certainly, in no way would our Government have aided to clear that path. Mr. WILSON, on the other hand, is deeply in sympathy with the principle of free exchange and equal opportunity. He has unshaken faith in the ability of America to work out its destiny in peaceful and fair competition with the world. He has the statesman's and the student's confidence that this principle will justify itself wherever and whenever it is honestly applied. And he will cast the influence of the great nation which has chosen him again to lead it to establish that principle as the surest guarantee for the peace, the safety, and the welfare of the world.

THE NEXT HOUSE.

The information that some of the Progressive Republicans in the next House will bolt the nomination of JAMES R. MANN for Speaker and vote for CHAMP CLARK is not to be taken at its face value. What it means is that thus early these gentlemen are serving notice on the House organization that they will have to be reckoned with, conciliated, and coddled. It is the forerunner of many such pronouncements by different groups in the Republican half of the House. It is the forerunner of many similar ones in the Democratic half. On the Democratic side the threat will take the form of a reluctance to support whatever program the President may have set his heart upon. It may also take the same form it has taken on the Republican side—a threat to bolt the caucus nomination for Speaker.

This is the inevitable result of electing a Congress in which neither party has a working majority, in which, perhaps, neither party will have a majority at all. The last party contest over the Speakership was in 1855, and lasted for months before the deadlock could be broken. Since that time there has never been a Congress in which one party or the other did not have enough votes to organize the House. The same situation now arises that arose in 1855, and if the different groups are as irreconcilable as they were then it may be 1918 before the House elected in 1916 is organized.

It is more likely, however, that the party leaders will avert such a contest by bowing the knee to the various groups and promising them anything they want for the sake of electing a Speaker. In that case, which party can organize the House depends on which party can make the highest bid to the little group of Socialists, Prohibitionists, and other nondescripts who hold the balance of power. The organization of the House, however, will not end the trouble. From the time it is organized until it goes out of existence in 1919 it will be in the power of any group to hold up legislation, if it is a Democratic group, or to paralyze opposition, if it is a Republican group; and each group will exercise these powers unless the leaders of its party yield to its demands. The chances are that 1918 will see the biggest pork bill ever passed, for the leaders will not dare refuse a public building to the most unimportant and insignificant tailender in all the rank and file.

ORIGIN OF THE LIGHTERAGE CASE.

To do New Jersey justice, it is not proposing to gain advantage for itself at New York's loss through its own initiative and original malice. The case started through the unwillingness of the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow railway rates to be increased directly. The Commission proposed to reach similar results indirectly, and thus escape the odium of raising rates. Accordingly, the railways were to be allowed to get the money they needed by methods which the Commission specifically recommended. Among them were charges for demurrage, car spotting, storage, loading and unloading, and similar services performed as part of the undivided transportation service.

This course was taken upon the argument of Mr. BRANDEIS that the terminal costs absorbed 80 per cent. of the total rate and left nearly nothing for the haul. In one case named by him, the terminal costs being deducted from the rate of 4 mills, there remained seven-tenths of a mill for the haul of 428 miles. If the cost for foreign cars used also were deducted, there remained, according to Mr. BRANDEIS, nothing for the haul or for the maintenance of the tracks. The Commission was so impressed by the argument and the advantages of the easy way of raising rates without raising them that it issued a series of orders which made the matter worse when the railways acted on the Commission's advice. There was just as much objection to larger payments for terminal services as for line services. Some of the services named as suitable for separate payment were decided by the courts not to be terminal services. Some of the payments which were asked were overruled by the Commission itself upon appeal against them. Some of them are still in suspense, and some of them are being renewed as original motions.

It is at this point that New Jersey enters the case. The Commission overruled the intervention of New Jersey's cities in the New York case, but added "the Commission is of the "opinion that the complaint of the "interveners would be more properly "made the subject of separate pro-"ceedings under formal complaint." New Jersey accordingly is acting upon suggestion scarcely less than invitation or instruction. The appeal of the railways for addition to their resources was begun in 1910, when only the railways scented their approaching trouble. So lately as 1914 the Commission elaborately reassured them that there was no cause for their alarm, as there was no crisis in their affairs. The Commission told the carriers that they would have no trouble in renewing their hundreds of millions of notes then maturing. Their credit was good, and so far as it was impaired it was because of their errors of management. Specific rates would be examined, and specific recommendations were made, but no action was taken upon 22,000 tariffs as a whole, including millions of rates.

That was the prevailing opinion, which now may be tested by facts. Almost everything which the railways alleged as cause for their relief has come true. There was great prostration of railway credit and enterprise after the Commission declared that there was no crisis. And now the subject is acute again at a time when the railways are praying to be delivered from too much prosperity, as was the case in 1907. Now as then they are unable to fulfill their duties to the country for lack of resources which they should have had years ago, and which cannot relieve the present situation if given now. Cars, tracks, terminals, all facilities of transportation are needed, and cannot be provided for years after the money for them is found.

But delay is still the word. The lighterage case was postponed yesterday until next year, and will not be decided until long after it is argued. "Pressure upon the Commission's calendar" is the reason for the adjournment. There's no denying the excuse. The calendar is overcrowded. The Commission cannot accomplish a task which is immeasurably greater now than when it was declared impossible by one of the first and ablest members of the Commission. But who does not regret that business must wait indefinitely for such decisions?

PERCIVAL LOWELL.

PERCIVAL LOWELL, whose sudden death at Flagstaff, Ariz., yesterday terminated a career filled with energetic labor and marked by notable achievement, will always be remembered for his work as an astronomer and mathematician. He was scarcely of the rank of the illustrious SIMON NEWCOMB, he was, perhaps, less useful, in a practical sense, than Professor PICKERING of Harvard in the advancement of scientific study and research in this country; but, quite apart from his theories in regard to Mars, which must inevitably be brought to mind whenever his name is mentioned, he had accomplished much in his observations of the heavens and had made discoveries of indisputable value. In his convictions touching the existence on Mars of canals or channels constructed mechanically, and its inevitable corollary that the planet is inhabited by intelligent beings, LOWELL received scant support from his contemporaries of distinction. He was ridiculed for seeing things that other observers could not see and for entertaining two seemingly irreconcilable theories of Mars, first that the conservation of the water formed by the melting ice at its poles was necessary to support life on the planet, and second that there was oxygen in the atmosphere and water vapor as well.

Professor LOWELL was not in the least disturbed by the hostile judgments of his theories or their rejection by learned bodies. He kept bravely at his appointed task of studying Mars until the end of his life, and it is not to be doubted that the results of some of his observations will stand the test of time. The present judgment of the scientific world is that he was too largely governed in his researches by a vivid imagination. But he interested in the study of astronomy a large number of persons who would never have been attracted to it by the achievements of his more practical contemporaries. PERCIVAL LOWELL was, in fact, a man of splendid enthusiasms, and they inspired him from the beginning of his career. They were first revealed in his books relating to Oriental life and customs, the result of his ten years of residence and study in the Far East; they were as obvious in his studies of Mercury, Venus, and Saturn, in his equipment of expeditions to study solar phenomena in various parts of the earth, as they were in his theories of Mars. Moreover, his teachings about the wonderful irrigation system of Mars and its builders are yet to be disproved. He managed year by year to add new and plausible arguments, based on fresh observations, to the vast fabric of fact and conjecture he had built up.

His observations since the establishment of the Lowell observatory twenty-two years ago have been recorded by him in books that have been widely read and in many papers and addresses to learned societies. It is to be hoped that he has left at Flagstaff a successor competent to carry on his work. Personally, PERCIVAL LOWELL was singularly attractive, a perfect type of the scholar and the man of the world combined. He was not a poser or a "sensationalist," he did nothing for notoriety's sake. He was firm in his convictions and was entirely justified in his reliance upon his own learning, which was ample, and his powers of vision.

THE OLD SUPERSTITION.

> It is probably too much to hope for, but we wish most heartily that Mr. WILLCOX would find his private affairs sufficiently pressing to lead to his resignation as National Chairman, and that the National Committee would have the wisdom to select as his successor HAYS of Indiana. Such a change would constitute the first harbinger of victory for 1920.—Manchester Union.

Delusions die hard. Apparently some New Hampshire Republicans are unchastened by defeat. Indiana votes for HUGHES. Argal, the Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Committee was the organizer of victory. Does The Manchester Union attribute to Mr. WILLCOX the loss of New Hampshire? Why fall on Mr. WILLCOX because the voters in a lot of Western States insisted on voting for Mr. WILSON? Why continue to attribute to National Committees and National Chairmen some magic power of carrying States?

In the days of "mules" and "soap" and "blocks of five" something, usually enormously exaggerated, might be accomplished by dexterous political managers brought up in the ethics of the old school. Now the National Committees and their Chairmen are mainly expensive decorations and scenery, stage carpenters, machinists, and electric light men at best. The voters decide for themselves. It is not the burning of red fire, the arranging of mass meetings, the importation of speakers, the distribution of "literature" which nobody reads, that counts. For all the millions spent, for all the daily output of amusing claim and counterclaim by Mr. MCCORMICK and Mr. WILLCOX, does anybody out of Bedlam believe that the result of the election would have been different if there had been no National Committees and hustling Chairmen? Does anybody but a hide-bound belated politicaster think that some mighty genius, like Mr. HAYS of Indiana, could have brought Mr. HUGHES into the White House? Nowadays a Chairman, a committee, is but the fly on the wheel.

"The national [Republican] campaign was inexcusably and unbe-"lievably mismanaged," says our doleful friend in the Granite State. Did Mr. WILLCOX nominate Mr. HUGHES? Is it Mr. WILLCOX's fault that there were two Republican parties that deceived nobody by the pretense of being one? The Republicans should blame themselves and, most of all, Mr. WILSON, not Mr. WILLCOX.

SMOOT AMONG THE RUINS.

Senator REED SMOOT of Utah pokes his head up from the Republican ruins in his State and tells how the work of woe was wrought:

> The claim that WILSON kept us out of war is responsible for the result, and it is the vote of the women that was influenced by that.

If Mr. SMOOT will cast his eye over the map of the Democratic victory he will find plenty of male suffrage States where "he kept us out of war" was one, though but one, of the reasons, as potent with men as women, for a general vote of confidence in Mr. WILSON's Administration. He makes no better figure than Father ADAM did in "laying it on the woman." It is, or should be, a time of confession and repentance for the Republicans. At least, they should see the facts unless the Republican Party is to become permanently hunker and dwindle, like the Federalists, into an irreconcilable and impotent rump.

The Hon. REED SMOOT, and his like, and his wing of the Republican Party filled the progressives of the country with distrust and suspicion. They saw the Republican Party incapable of positive advance in legislation, of responding to the strong popular desire for policies that build. Mr. SMOOT and the Elder Statesmen, Mr. ROOSEVELT and his personally conducted Progressives, could not coalesce, save in name and for election purposes. Mr. HUGHES was really the candidate of two hostile parties. Republican success would have been only a prelude to a hopeless schism. So multitudes of former Progressives and of independent progressives took Mr. WILSON on his progressive and other achievements. They knew him. What was the country likely to get from a combination of the Penroses and Smoots with their old enemies?

Mr. SMOOT shouldn't inculpate the women. Republican men are to blame, the excellent but still befogged Mr. SMOOT among them.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Election Returns Are Delayed. Hardly anybody has refrained, during the period of uncertainty that has followed the election, from making more or less angry comment on the supposed negligence or incompetence of officials who failed to send to the legally designated centres the information needed for determining the result of the balloting. For the severity of these comments there was doubtless good reason in many cases, but it is hardly fair to expect all of the men who accept a few days of employment in the polling booths to be intellectual giants, with a full appreciation of their responsibilities. Most of them, nowadays, do their work well and promptly, and, what is more important, wonderfully few of them, in recent years, have been even suspected of doing it dishonestly.

There is also unfairness in the common assumption that the delays of this kind have been confined to the "close" States. As a matter of fact the election boards in California, Minnesota, New Hampshire, and the other States in the same list have not been more dilatory or made more mistakes than have those in the States in regard to which there has been no question. But in the former the delays and the errors left the result in uncertainty, while in the States that went one way or the other by big majorities, errors and delays not less numerous could not affect the outcome, and therefore passed without attention or condemnation.

And there are, in this large country, more than a few election districts so sequestered in woods and mountains that the sending in of the returns in a shape to be received as official, or even as trustworthy, is a task the performance of which takes a long and hard journey. The telephone itself doesn't go quite everywhere yet, and the automobile, though it recoils from few difficulties when in the hands of drivers sufficiently venturesome, still has to recognize the impossible in the trails to some mining camps. There are places whence, to reach a destination only ten miles away, a journey of fifty or a hundred has to be made, and in such cases delay is so easily explicable as to be pardonable.

A Civilian Goes Under Fire. Such a narrative as that in which a special correspondent of THE TIMES told yesterday of his experiences while going from Verdun to Fort Douaumont, a few miles away, brought to the civilian reader a clearer realization, perhaps, of what it means to be under heavy artillery fire than do the accounts of the same thing that have been presented by those who viewed them with the soldier's eyes.

The military observers have the military standpoint—they see and emphasize the purposes and the results of battle rather than, or at least in connection with, the immediate happenings, and danger to life they treat with professional calm. Some of them have confessed to moments of fear, and have done it without shame, but it was in a way quite different from that in which Mr. WILLIAMS described his own emotions and expressed the hearty regrets he felt, while the shells were bursting around him, for having ventured upon a journey so perilous.

His risks, of course, were only those to which the officers and men in the opposing lines are exposed every day and every night at the front, but they are sustained by discipline and the sense of duty, while he was in a position entirely different. The tale was magnificently told and will take its place in the literature of the war with the very best productions of its class.

THE TIMES, it is needless to remark, does not demand or expect such service as this, but—well, a war correspondent goes, on principle, wherever he is allowed to go. That is the way he is built.

A Long Step Forward in Medicine. That this is a propitious time for the starting of a new medical college, magnificently endowed, must be obvious to anybody who knows how many American doctors, before the European war, were in the habit of going to Berlin or Vienna to complete their training as specialists under the deservedly famous teachers who lectured and demonstrated in those cities. For some years, however, though there has been no disposition in medical circles to deny the value of study abroad, it has been contended here, with not a little authority, that the American doctor went to Germany or Austria for his postgraduate courses, instead of taking them in the United States, less from necessity than because it was a fashion or custom, and because the foreign training brought an increment of reputation not to be acquired from training at home that was practically as good.

This claim was true, of course, only of a small number, the very best, of our medical schools, and we have had many—too many—for which no such claims could be made. For the present, and presumably for some time to come, access to the great European medical schools will be difficult and their attractions for the foreign student will be diminished in several respects, some of them professional and others political. This fact provides the opportunity which has been seized by the shrewd controllers of the Rockefeller funds for the starting of a new school, to be conducted like the best in Europe and to have abundant funds of its own as a preferable substitute for Government subsidies—which also involve some measure of Government management.

Why a wholly new school should be founded, instead of taking one already established and strengthening it by relieving its Faculties of all financial worries and limitations, is not made quite clear by the preliminary announcements, but it can be assumed that there are reasons for following this course.

The incidental abolition of the Rush Medical College, an institution with a fine record and many distinguished graduates, will be the cause of not a little grief, and the minor, ill-equipped medical schools all over the country will suffer from the creation of a new rival so immensely superior as to make competition hopeless. There is likely, therefore, to be a certain amount of criticism of the new enterprise, but it will soon die away under a chorus of commendation.

A Correction from Paderewski.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES Sunday Magazine of Nov. 12 I read to my great surprise certain remarks concerning me and my political opinions. As I have positively declined to discuss recent events, as I have not received one single newspaper man in connection with that subject, I have in consequence not given anybody the authority to express my opinion on the present political situation in Poland. I urgently ask you to give this statement due publicity.

ART NOTES.

Ossip Perelman Portraits and Halsey Sporting Prints on View.

Portraits by the Russian painter, Ossip Perelman, are on view at the Knoedler Galleries. The medium is pastel and the manner of expression a mingling of the French and Russian idiom. The work is very clever, although uneven. It always is more or less of a surprise to find competent draughtsmen, who freely display their ability to execute the most difficult passages in the interpretation of the human aspect, slurring the easiest bits, apparently for no reason except that they are so easy. Why should Mr. Perelman, who is capable of managing such an intricate play of lights as that in the portrait of the lusty S. J. Vasto—a bit of characterization that Zorn hardly could have bettered—turn amateurish with his portrait of George Arliss and place his knife-like accents at random?

The capital modeling in Mme. Carillo's upturned face and the drawing of the hands in Albert Sterner's portrait are examples of the artist's best achievement. They go far to counteract the unpleasant impression made by his trick of tipping up the heads of his sitters to an angle that suggests uncomfortable strain. The exhibition includes an early portrait of M. Elie Metchnikoff in his laboratory, and portraits of Leon Bourgeois, Shane Leslie, Mrs. Walter Farwell, Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Mrs. Maxmilian Shottland, Mrs. Bradish Johnson and Mrs. Morrison Parker.

The Halsey Sporting Prints.

The section of sporting prints from the Frederic R. Halsey print collection is now on view at the Anderson Galleries and the pleasure to be derived from it is not confined to its subject interest. Many of the artists represented, Rowlandson, and Atkinson and Pollard, Stubbs and Alkin and Cruikshank, not only were gifted and competent draughtsmen, but were deeply in love with the lusty themes that engaged their pencil and brush. They knew horses and dogs as few know them today. The Birmingham Tally Ho, the "Red Rover," the Devonport and London Mail meant to them excitements of travel, social life, history, and they were keen to make the most of their opportunities. The portraits of Grey, Diomed, Copennagen, Anvil, Bambrino should bring the painter of human portraits to a realizing sense of his deficiencies.

The appearance of the walls devoted to this part of the collection is singularly light and gay. It was the happy fashion of the time, the late eighteenth and early nineteenth century, to use simple washes of pure color for these prints and in many of them the landscape backgrounds are suggested with remarkable vivacity and skill. Sportsmen and collectors are, of course, the class to which the exhibition will most appeal, but the artist and general public will be able to find their account in it.

The Original Raemaekers.

The originals of the cartoons by Raemaekers, which have been reproduced in the most powerful papers of Europe, have all been purchased by the Kings, Presidents, and Ministers of the allied nations, and have been loaned by them for a short exhibit in New York City. They will be on exhibition in the galleries of White, Allom & Co., at 19 East Fifty-second Street, from Nov. 16 to Dec. 4. An admission fee will be charged and the entire proceeds will be devoted to the French Red Cross. This will be the only opportunity offered to New Yorkers to see the original cartoons which swayed a nation. None of them are for sale. The work of Raemaekers has brought him fame of several kinds.

He has received the Cross of the Legion of Honor from France. At least eleven attempts have been made upon his life by spies. He has been signally honored by the King of England. A price has been set upon his head. When the war broke out he was a portrait painter in Holland. The things he actually saw at the Belgian frontier turned him to the making of cartoons, which first appeared in the Amsterdam Telegraaf and soon attracted worldwide recognition.

The Zuloaga Exhibitions.

The exhibition of large and important pictures by Ignacio Zuloaga, now open at Copley Hall, Boston, will come to the Brooklyn Museum for the month of December. The exhibition will open to the general public Dec. 6 and will last until Jan. 2. It will then go to the Duveen Gallery in New York and later to the principal towns in the West. Among the canvases to be shown are the superb "My Uncle Daniel and His Family," the portrait of M. Maurice Barres against a background of the picturesque town of Toledo, and the "Women of Sepulveda." None of the canvases, except those lent by Mr. Fearing of Boston, have been seen in this country before.

Prices never should be considered in connection with works of art, but artists sometimes make it difficult to disregard them, and Spanish art in particular is becoming an expensive luxury. One Spanish painter (not Zuloaga) has so far anticipated the high cost of living as to raise the price of a representative canvas from such a figure as $8,000 to $25,000 within the last two or three years. This naturally makes it a serious problem to transport and insure paintings for exhibition, and it is great good luck to obtain a really fine showing of so imposing a modern Spaniard as Zuloaga.

Silver for German Clouds?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, Steven T. Byington, with laudable curiosity inquiries concerning those tons of silver going over on the Deutschland and wants to know what possible use Germany can have for the metal.

The answer is simple: Compare the recent speech of the Imperial Chancellor with those of Viscount Grey, M. Briand, Sig. Sonnino, and M. Sturmer, and it will be seen that the former lacks the confidence in better things which emphasize the latter. In other words, the clouds of the Allies appear to have a heavy silver lining which seems to be lacking behind those of Germany. It is to fix up these clouds, and so give weight to the poet's universal characterization, that Germany has need of that silver.

DUALITY.

Besides the writing of my rhymes,
Quite other things I do, at times;
The stock reports I often scan
Because I am a business man—
I deal in lead!

But always must I keep apart
The matters of the mind and mart,
For, if the men I meet each day
Knew I was poetizing, they Would cut me dead.

And so I only talk at night
About the little things I write
To just a few responsive souls
Who listen by the glowing coals
To what is said.

And with these few my settled plan
Is quite to sink the business man.
Thus I maintain the status quo
And these good friends shall never know—
I deal in lead!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Are we never to hear the last of that incident in Manila Bay? In THE TIMES of the 10th instant Henry A. Wise Wood brings it up again to illuminate it with a letter addressed to him by "a noted Englishman who has been a warm friend of our country." It appears from this document that Captain Sir Edward Chichester, R. N., on being addressed by the United States Consul at Cape Town, in 1900, in terms of gratitude for the part which the Captain took in the affair, said in reply: "My only regret about that day is that I unnecessarily cleared my deck for action," on which the "noted Englishman" makes the comment, evidently meant by him and taken by Mr. Wood to be full of political significance, "I need say no more."

The story bears interesting testimony to the anti-German feeling which prevailed before the present war in the ruling class of Great Britain, the class which in our civil war befriended our enemies, favoring them in British shipyards and in British ports, and dominating the press which lampooned our President, the Government which snubbed our Minister, and the society which turned a cold shoulder to our people.

The friendship of Great Britain for the United States manifested in Manila Bay, so far as there was any such feeling, was of the kind that a "friend" has for the fellow whom he helps to get into trouble. It would suit Great Britain to have us expand a little by conquest at the expense of other powers than herself, especially in the Eastern Hemisphere, or outside of our traditional sphere of influence. We may count upon her favor at every move that we may make away from the old American doctrine of America only for Americans only. She will meet us halfway when we seem to be coming her way, but let it appear that we are going our own, as we were when we asserted the rights of our sailors on the high seas, when we annexed Texas, when we projected a canal across the American Isthmus, when we fought for the maintenance of the Union, when we sided with Venezuela in her boundary dispute, when we prepared to exercise our perfect right to exempt our coastwise shipping from paying tolls in our own interoceanic canal, when we try, as we are doing today, to secure lawful treatment for our commerce with belligerents, and we should look for Great Britain, not behind us nor at our side, but where she is, in our front, resolutely facing us.

WOMAN'S PARTY LAUGHS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage, far from feeling downcast over the election result, is more than ever convinced of the effectiveness of its policies. It is, in fact, amazed at all that the Woman's Party has been able to accomplish in such a short time. We are quietly "laughing in our sleeve" because the newspapers all over the country are full of long articles trying to prove something about the woman vote in the equal suffrage States.

We cared little which man was elected. We did not campaign for Hughes; what we wanted to prove and make clear has been proved and made clear. These points are as follows. First, that women may hold the balance of power in a Presidential election; second, that women voters will vote on a great moral issue; third, that no political party can safely ignore the demands of women, but must conciliate them.

It is plain that political parties must hereafter appeal to women voters.

Chairman National Advisory Council.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A short time ago I was surprised to see an editorial article in THE NEW YORK TIMES opposing the granting of suffrage to women on the ground that they would, in all probability, vote as their husbands, fathers, or brothers did, and that the result would, therefore, be in no way affected, and only the cost of elections increased. I was even more surprised to see another similar editorial article, entitled "The Women Who Voted," which appears to arrive at the same deduction after an analysis of the election returns.

May I ask what would have been the character of the editorial comment if, at the polls, woman had consistently voted differently from man—if, for example, she had, as a sex, espoused the cause of Mr. Wilson because "he kept us out of war," or of Mr. Hughes because of his position, when Governor, in regard to racetrack betting? Would it not have been held up as an indication that woman was more moved by the impulses and emotions than man, and the deduction drawn that she was constitutionally unable to take a broad and general view of any situation, and, therefore, not entitled to the ballot?

W. P. GILMORE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That the women contributed to the election of Mr. Wilson there can be no doubt. The result in Kansas was undoubtedly affected by the pacifist women who feared border troubles and appreciated Mr. Wilson's sending troops from the Northeast to protect them. But by far the largest item in the contribution to Mr. Wilson was the special women's train for Mr. Hughes. This train made votes for Mr. Wilson on every turn for the reason that both men and women who can vote and have had some experience in voting resented their advice. Mr. Hughes lost more votes than he gained by his original statement in favor of a Federal woman suffrage amendment, for many a Democrat in the woman suffrage States of the West who would have supported him was silent after his pronunciamento.

Mr. Ansorge's Slogan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In my campaign for Congress in the Twenty-first Congressional District, New York, I advocated, and still advocate, an embargo upon the shipment abroad of foodstuffs needed for home consumption.

In THE NEW YORK TIMES of Nov. 9, in a news item, it was incorrectly reported that I favored an embargo on munitions. On the contrary, I believe that an embargo on munitions would constitute an unneutral act, and am, therefore, opposed to such an embargo. I believe, however, that an embargo upon the shipment abroad of foodstuffs needed for home consumption is an absolute necessity, and that unless something is done at once to relieve present conditions the laboring classes of this country will suffer untold hardships. "Feed America First" is the slogan which I originated during the campaign to convey the thought of an embargo upon foodstuffs needed for the consumption of the American people. Several Congressional candidates subsequently adopted the slogan, and I note that associations of retailers have since taken up the matter and that the movement is gaining considerable headway. The laboring classes today have less on their tables than they had when they were earning lower wages, and with food prices soaring to unheard-of limits, restrictive legislation is needed to curtail excessive shipments abroad of foodstuffs needed for home consumption.

A NEUTRAL COMMISSION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of a letter in THE TIMES this morning with the title, "Neutral Investigations," I wish to suggest certain things that a neutral commission could do that would be most helpful.

Make an investigation of what the Bryce report calls the "so-called" German atrocities in Belgium and the occupied portions of France. A mountain of documents exists, as well as many living witnesses. These evidences have caused such a hatred and horror in England and France as to be a vital factor in the length of the war. Now, Germany is either the most slandered nation in history or her armies have been guilty of the most atrocious violations of the laws of humanity and nations, and all the world should know the exact truth from unimpeachable authority. The data exist in enormous quantities.

One great cause of hatred between England and Germany is the belief of each country that the other is guilty of the war. Let the commission investigate the causes of the war, as Sir Edward Grey suggests.

Germany hates England because the blockade causes anxiety and hardship in almost every family. This commission could investigate the legality of the blockade maintained by England and France. Such an investigation made by the greatest authorities in international law to be found in the neutral countries would clear the air.

Judgment could be passed by such a body on such acts as the sinking of the Lusitania, the invasion of Belgium, the shooting of Captain Fryatt, the deportation from Lille and similar acts that have tremendously increased hatred toward Germany.

All such work would be similar in character and effect to the well-known Canadian labor law, relating to the investigation of the causes of strikes. This labor law provides the machinery to investigate strikes and lockouts, which is compulsory in all cases where public utilities are concerned, including mines. In other strikes either side can avail itself of this machinery. The duty and power of the Government ends with a report. As a result of this law, strikes rarely occur in Canada.

This neutral commission would act in much the same way. Its authority would end by its findings, and public opinion would exercise such influence as is possible.

But the most important duty of the neutral Governments in this war, in view of the unprecedented situation of such peoples as the Belgians and the Armenians, is this—to take charge as a Government and as a nation of the welfare of these peoples. To illustrate: Belgium is a nation of more than 7,000,000 people, of whom less than a third are engaged in agriculture. This people, on account of the blockade by England and the occupation by Germany, is absolutely unable to carry on its industries. This situation is not a matter of a few months, but of years. Moreover, conditions have decidedly worsened. The physicians working with the relief funds have reported that in many places tuberculosis among children has increased 500 per cent., that most of the children of Belgium will in three months have reached such a physical state that their health can never be restored.

Is it not the duty and privilege of the United States in these times to do a righteous, humane, and unprecedented thing—organize a neutral commission for investigation, and in addition let the commission, with the authority of the United States and such other nations as have joined her, see to it that the Belgians come to no harm?

The creation of this commission by a group of neutral powers would be completely justified by the right and duty to re-establish the principles of international law that have been one expression of the development of justice, mercy, and pity in recent centuries, and to save the health and lives of such unfortunate peoples as the Belgians and Armenians. Or shall we turn away our faces from the beseeching hands and agonized eyes of millions who instinctively turn to "America"?

S. S. McCLURE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Not satisfied with having already driven into virtual slavery in Belgium their helpless victims, Germany is now drafting them for her own industrial and military uses in Germany. This, of course, is only one more relapse into the barbarism that from the start of this war has disgraced German arms and German methods, but surely it is not one that will pass unchallenged and without the strongest official protest of which this great country is capable.

Having sunk many Belgian relief ships, Germany now has the effrontery to claim that this hateful slave traffic is forced upon her by the stoppage of raw materials into Belgium by Great Britain. If food for starving Belgian women and children, the victims of German frightfulness, be sunk on sight, what possible chance could there be for raw materials in transit for use in Belgian factories, unless, of course, they could furnish Germany with munitions with which to fight the Allies. And even if non-contraband raw materials escaped the German submarines, how much of the finished products, or the wages from their manufacture, would ever reach the wretched Belgians?

The United States, which liberated the slave, in duty to its own sense of honor and traditions, can hardly now turn a deaf ear to the Belgians' entreaties. She alone can save them from German slavery.

In 1861 William H. Seward wrote (to Carl Schurz): "Nations like individuals are too much wrapped up in their own interests and ambitions to be deeply concerned by accidents or reverses which befall other nations." It is unbelievable today that America is not deeply concerned in this most unholy bondage into which the manhood of a brave nation is now being cast. What Spain has already accomplished for the civil population of Lille, it is the manifest duty of the United States to do for the people of Belgium.

Coming of the U-57.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On several occasions during the last week full warning has been given of the approach of the armed German submarine U-57. She comes for the purpose of renewing on our coasts the illegal attacks upon merchantmen by the U-53. She will arrive in the next few days.

The Administration has been asking latterly, "What would you have done?" but the country at large would like to know from the Administration, "What are you going to do?" What preparations have been made for taking correct action in this now imminent situation? Within a week, unless some accident intervenes, the performances of the U-53 will be repeated, on this occasion off the mouth of Long Island Sound. What preparations have been made to meet this situation? Has the Administration as yet discovered what rule of international law applies? Has it as yet determined whether it will continue to allow Americans and others (as the accident of chance may dictate) to be either drowned or improperly exposed to danger in small boats?

GIFTS OF $1,933,256 TO FOREIGN MISSIONS

BISHOPS PRAISE LIBERALITY

Twenty-one Bishops and Missionary Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church attended the opening session of the annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Church at 150 Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon. They, as well as others who had come from distant parts of the world to share in the proceedings, applauded vigorously when George M. Fowles, Treasurer of the board, announced that the receipts for foreign mission work this year had exceeded those of any previous year in the history of the Church.

Mr. Fowles's report, and that of Dr. Frank Mason North, one of the Corresponding Secretaries, indicated that the Church had entered upon an unusual program for extending evangelism among the peoples of the world. Figures were given for forty-three mission fields where Methodists are preaching the Gospel, and interest was added to the meeting by the presence of three of the Missionary Bishops under whose direction much of the work in the coming year is to be prosecuted.

That the Church is taking an equally vigorous stand on other matters was demonstrated by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn, who delivered an address in which he lauded military preparedness. He paid a tribute to Major Gen. O'Ryan, commanding the New York Division of the National Guard, and to Major Vanderbilt, for their work along the Mexican border. This address was delivered at a meeting preceding the opening of the annual session, and was presided over by Dr. David G. Downey.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson of this city was Chairman of the larger assemblage. Bishop Earl Cranston, retired, who was senior Bishop of the Church until succeeded at the Saratoga General Conference by Bishop Joseph F. Berry, sat at Bishop Wilson's right.

Treasurer Fowles announced that the total receipts of the Board of Foreign Missions during the present year, exclusive of amounts paid into the permanent funds and the annuity funds, were $1,933,256.41, which is $232,682.61 more than the total receipts last year. Last year the receipts were $111,114 in excess of the best previous year in the history of the board. Of the money taken in during the last twelve months, $596,835.44 was contributed as special gifts, and $30,611.86 was added to the Self-Denial Fund.

Dr. North reported later that gifts totaling more than $500,000 had been received under the will of the late Mrs. D. Willard James, in addition to the $1,000,000 announced at Saratoga while the General Conference was in progress.

Among the Bishops and Missionary Bishops in addition to those already mentioned who gave their enthusiastic approval of the good showing made by the board were John W. Hamilton, William F. McDowell, William Burt, Thomas B. Neely, William F. Anderson, William A. Quayle, Edwin H. Hughes, Homer C. Stuntz, Theodore S. Henderson, William O. Shepard, Francis J. McConnell, Wilbur P. Thirkield, Adna W. Leonard, Charles B. Mitchell, Franklin Hamilton, Joseph C. Hartzell, John E. Robinson, Alexander P. Camphor, Eben E. Johnson, and Isaiah B. Scott. They applauded again when told that of the money received this year, $1,098,349.34 had been disbursed among the missions.

Notwithstanding the general good showing, it was noticed, however, that the receipts from the Spring Conferences, covering most of the East, showed a falling of of nearly $20,000. The receipts from the New York Conference was less than in 1915.

Every section of the United States was represented at the gathering, and most of the ministers attended the meeting at which Dr. Cadman made his plea for preparedness

"I admire the spirit that caused New York State to send 25,000 men to the border," he said, "but that was the best we could do. If we were really doing our best, however, our States would have 11,000,000 men ready to guard our borders at any moment. We have a long way to go to realize our nationalism. If every member of the leisure class employed his time as well as Major Vanderbilt there would be more respect for men of wealth in this country."

It was announced before the close of yesterday's session that Bishop Anderson would start for Europe in a few days to inspect the work of the missions of the church. Missionary Bishop Johnson will leave for Umtali, Rhodesia, Africa, soon after the meeting of the Foreign Board, which will last three days, is adjourned.

Last night Bishop Quayle delivered an address at Metropolitan Temple, Fourteenth Street and Seventh Avenue, on "The World Empire." Tonight Bishop Shepard will speak at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Newark, on "The Spiritual Republics" and the subject of Bishop McConnell's address at about the same hour at the New York Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, will be "Mexico." Bishop Anderson will talk on "Facing a World Situation" at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, New Rochelle, tomorrow night.

MISS DELAFIELD'S WEDDING.

The wedding of Miss Grace Floyd Delafield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Delafield of 135 West Thirty-eighth Street, to F. de Lancey Robinson will be celebrated at noon tomorrow in Trinity Church, lower Broadway. The Rev. J. O. S. Huntington, Superior of the Order of the Holy Cross, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Parish.

The bride will be attended by her cousin, Miss Charlotta Prentiss, who will act as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Selena Arnold and Miss Constance M. Carr, cousin of the bride. Augustus Riley will be Mr. Robinson's best man. The ushers will include Dr. W. Sidney Smith, Virgil Gordon, John Bovey, and George Basil Hooper.

After the ceremony a breakfast will follow at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will spend their honeymoon traveling through Canada and the West.

WEBB STATUE FOR C. C. N. Y.

The statue of General Alexander Stewart Webb, former President of the College of the City of New York, will shortly be placed on the campus at the corner of 138th Street and Convent Avenue. When the State of New York, through the New York State Monument Commission, unveiled a statue by the sculptor, J. Massey Rhind, of General Webb at the high-water mark on the field of Gettysburg Oct. 12, 1915, it was proposed that a replica of the statue be procured for the college as a patriotic inspiration to the students who daily enter its halls.

A committee of the Associate Alumni, appointed by Judge Samuel Greenbaum, then President of the association, had in charge the raising of the fund with which to erect the statue. The committee has just reported that the fund has been completed and a site for the statue approved by the Municipal Art Commission. The State of New York originally appropriated $17,955 to defray the cost of erecting and unveiling the statue, and permission to erect a replica at the college was granted by the New York Monument Commission.

DR. TOLMAN SUES MUSEUM.

Ousted as Safety Director, He Demands $2,596.

Dr. William H. Tolman, formerly Director of the American Museum of Safety, who was dismissed on Oct. 30 last, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday to recover $2,596 from the museum. Dr. Tolman, through his attorney, Julius Offenbach, alleges that he was engaged as Director for five years at $5,000 a year by a resolution of the Directors on May 8, 1912, and was discharged without cause.

It was announced recently by the museum that Dr. Tolman's connection with the institution had been severed for sufficient reasons, but Dr. Tolman's attorney said last night that, while the Director had a hearing, the proceedings were conducted in such a low tone that Dr. Tolman couldn't hear what went on.

CRYSTAL EASTMAN MARRIED.

Woman's Peace Party Chairman Wed Walter Fuller Some Time Ago.

Friends of Crystal Eastman and Walter Fuller learned only yesterday that they were married some time ago, although they were reluctant to disclose the date and the place the ceremony was performed. The bride obtained a divorce last Winter from Wallace J. Benedict, an insurance man, whom she married in 1911.

She is a daughter of a clergyman and came to New York eight years ago to practice law, having degrees from Vassar, Columbia, and New York University Law School. She is Chairman of the Woman's Peace Party. Mr. Fuller is a manager of concert artists.

MISS WILLS'S BRIDAL PARTY.

Her Marriage to Carll W. Strong to be Held on Nov. 28.

The wedding of Miss Helen Gertrude Wills, daughter of Mrs. Charles John Wills of 321 West Ninety-fourth Street, to Carll Webster Strong will be celebrated at 8:30 o'clock on Tuesday evening, Nov. 28, in All Angels' Church, West End Avenue and Eighty-first Street. The Rev. Dr. S. DeLancey Townsend, rector of the church, will officiate. There will be no reception.

Miss Elise Shearman will be the bride's maid of honor, and the other attendants will be Mrs. Leslie Savage and Miss Crystal Wellaufer. Richard Strong will be his brother's best man. The ushers will include Samuel Disbrow, James Webster, and Dudley and Louis Strong, brothers of the bridegroom.

Miss Wills's father was associated with the Hotel Biltmore at the time of his death two years ago.

Wm. M. Summers Dies Suddenly.

William M. Summers, a Brooklyn lawyer and civil war veteran, died suddenly from heart disease yesterday at the Hillside station of the Long Island Railroad. Mr. Summers, who was 68 years old, ran to catch an incoming train and collapsed as he reached the platform. His home was in Hollis, L. I. Mr. Summers was perhaps the oldest guardsman in point of service in the Brooklyn regiments. At the time of his retirement three years ago his comrades in the Twenty-third Regiment presented him with a diamond medal for twenty-five years' service, and he also received a thirty-year medal from the State of New York. When the civil war began Mr. Summers enlisted in Company H of the Fourteenth Regiment of Brooklyn. After the war he was a lawyer in Brooklyn and later entered the employ of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, with which he was connected at the time of his death. Mr. Summers is survived by his wife and three sons.

Aviator Struthers Dies of Injuries.

John Walter Wood Struthers, son of Robert Struthers, an architect, of 10 East Eighty-sixth Street, died here yesterday from injuries received when he fell 800 feet with his aeroplane at the Governors Island Aviation School on Sept. 8. With Charles D. Wiman of Moline, Ill., he was spiraling when the machine developed tail spinning and dropped to the parade ground before control could be regained. Both of the student aviator's legs were broken and he had suffered internal injuries. He was in his thirty-first year, and had been flying since last May. Both he and Mr. Wiman had obtained their F. A. I. licenses and were to have taken the tests for the military aviator's license.

Mr. Struthers was in business with his brothers, Robert, Jr., and Wood Struthers, as a stockbroker at 43 Exchange Place.

Mayer J. Friedkin, Journalist.

Mayer Joseph Friedkin, Jewish journalist and literary critic, died yesterday at his home, 1,504 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. He had been for fifteen years a member of the staff of The Jewish Morning Journal, of which his son, Israel Friedkin, is now publisher, and his son-in-law, Arthur Lynn Malkinson, business manager. The funeral will be held at noon today, and the interment will be in Mount Zion Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mr. Friedkin came to America in 1886 from Bialystok, Russia, after studying for ordination as a rabbi. He first entered business, and later became a member of the staff of The Morning Journal He is survived by six children and his second wife, Mrs. Sophie Friedkin, who is also a writer. Mr. Friedkin was a member of the Noel Tzedk Society.

Special to The New York Times.

GILBERTSVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Joseph Thomas Gilbert of this place, which was founded by his ancestor, Abijah Gilbert, who came from England to this country in 1777, died at his home here today, in his sixty-second year. He was a member of the Class of 1879 at Harvard University and for many years had labored to make this the most attractive village in Central New York. Last year Mr. Gilbert completed extensive waterworks for the benefit of Gilbertsville.

PROF. LOWELL DIES; MARTIAN THEORY HIS

HE DETECTED 550 CANALS

Author of Books on Far East and Brother of President of Harvard Was Honored by Scientists.

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Nov. 13.—Dr. Percival Lowell, founder and Director of the Lowell Observatory here, and an astronomer of international reputation, died here last night from a stroke of apoplexy suffered yesterday morning.

Professor Percival Lowell, astronomer and author of books on the Far East, whose popular fame rests on the association of his name with the theory that Mars is inhabited, was born in Boston on March 13, 1855.

The great controversy among astronomers, in which he played a leading part, began in 1907 after his announcement that the observations made by his astronomical station, the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., proved that Mars was inhabited. Professor Lowell had put the theory forward tentatively as early as 1895. Many eminent astronomers in this country and Europe accepted his conclusions of 1907 as unassailable. Others were skeptical. Professor Lowell continued from year to year to produce fresh evidence in favor of his theory by his observations at Flagstaff, where is located the best astronomical plant in the world for the observation of Mars.

Professor Lowell's theory begins with the demonstration that the primary requisites for human life exist on the planet—water, heat, and atmosphere. His positive proof of the existence of human life on Mars is the network of lines which mark certain areas of the planet's face, indicating the digging of artificial canals, which would require an intelligence and engineering skill as great or greater than that possessed by the inhabitants of this earth.

The Seasons on Mars.

The great white surfaces seen on the poles of Mars, Professor Lowell held, are polar snowcaps, and the fact that they shrink in size and then increase again at certain seasons indicates the snowfall of the Martian Winter and the thaw of the Summer. Lowell describes a series of observations in which it was discovered that, with the coming of a Martian Spring and the melting of the polar snow, certain of the dark areas grew darker, even showing straight black lines crisscrossed oevr their surface and over the surface of the orange-ochre areas; and that with the coming of the Martian Autumn those dark areas and lines faded almost to the vanishing point. Professor Lowell continued in his book:

"But, if instead of being due to water the blue-green tint had been due to leaves and grasses, just such a fading-out as was observed should have taken place as Autumn came on, and that without disproportionate increase of green elsewhere, for the great continental areas, being desert, are incapable of supporting vegetation; from which it follows that Mars is badly off for water, and that the planet is dependent on the melting of the polar snows for practically its whole supply. * * *

"Now, if a planet were at any stage of its career able to support life, it is probable that a diminishing water supply would be the beginning of the end of that life, for the air would outlast the available water. Those of its inhabitants who have succeeded in surviving would find themselves at last face to face with the relentlessness of a scarcity of water constantly growing greater, till at last they would all die of thirst, either directly or indirectly; for either they themselves would not have water enough to drink, or the plants or animals which constituted their diet would perish for lack of it—an alternative of small choice to them, unless they were conventionally particular as to their mode of death.

Water the Supreme Problem.

"Before this lamentable conclusion was reached, however, there would come a time in the course of the planet's history when water was not yet wanting, but was simply scarce and requiring to be husbanded; when for the inhabitants the one supreme problem of existence would be the water problem—how to get water enough to sustain life and how best to utilize every drop of water they could get."

Professor Lowell goes on to show that only irrigation on a vast scale could save the inhabitants. He puts aside by elaborate reasoning the various theories which have been put forward to account for the canals of Mars as natural phenomena and concludes that they are the work of human skill. The co-operation displayed by a whole planet in these works are the basis for some conclusions on what must be the political and social life on the planet.

Professor Lowell was the first to discover water vapor on Mars. His careful observations detected 550 canals on the planet, Schiaparelli having found only 104. In 1910 Professor Lowell discovered a new canal 1,000 miles in length.

In the Spring of 1910 he lectured on his discoveries before the Royal Institute of London and the Association Astronomique of Paris, where his theories created wide interest, but left many unconvinced.

His Other Discoveries.

His investigations were not confined solely to Mars. Professor Lowell made discoveries concerning Mercury, Venus and Saturn, and financed several expeditions to odd corners of the earth for research and observation of all sorts of polar phenomena. In 1894 he made a visit to Tripoli to observe the eclipse of that year from a favored spot. In 1906 he sent an expedition to the Andes to photograph Mars.

He received the Jansen Medal of the French Astronomical Society in 1904 for his researches on Mars, and a gold medal in 1908 from the Sociedad Astronomica de Mexico. He was appointed non-resident Professor of Astronomy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1902 and was a member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, the French Astronomical Society, the American Philosophical Society, the National and American Geographical Societies, and a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Lowell began life, after his graduation from Harvard in 1876, by several years of travel and scientific observation in all parts of the world, but particularly in China, Korea and Japan. In 1883, while in Japan, he was appointed Secretary and Counselor to the Korea Special Mission to the United States. Returning to Korea the same year, by invitation from the King, he spent the Winter at Seoul, where he became popular with the people. Outside of his astronomical publications, his writings were mostly concerned with phases of oriental life and thought.

Professor Lowell's Writings.

He was the author of the following works: "Cho-son, the Land of the Morning Calm;" "The Soul of the Far East," "Noto," "Occult Japan," "Mars,' "Annals of the Lowell Observatory," "Mars and Its Canals," "Mars as the Abode of Life," and "The Evolution of Worlds."

Dr. Lowell was the son of Augustus and Katherine Bigelow Lowell. His father was Vice President of the American Academy and Trustee of the Lowell Institute, both of Boston. His mother was a daughter of Abbott Lawrence, Minister to England, 1849 to 1852. He was a cousin of James Russell Lowell and a brother of A. Lawrence Lowell, President of Harvard University.

DIVORCES ROBERT REID.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Mrs. Elizabeth Reeves Reid today obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from Robert Reid, portrait painter and artist, of 12 Gramercy Park, New York. The case was tried before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins.

Mr. Reid did not oppose the action. It was alleged that he had an annual income of $30,000 and had been separated from his wife for about a year. Mrs. Reid asked the court for $750 monthly alimony and for the custody of her twin sons, 5 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid were married in April, 1907, by the Rev. Philip S. Moxom, pastor of the South Congregational Church of Springfield, Mass., the ceremony taking place at the home of Charles D. Reid, brother of the artist, in Long Meadow, Mass. Before marriage Mrs. Reid was Miss Elizabeth Reeves, and was Mr. Reid's model. He then had his studio in the Gibson Building, 142 East Thirty-third Street. In 1907, at the annual exhibition of the "Society of Ten," of which Mr. Reid was a member, two of his pictures attracted much attention. There were "A Portrait Sketch" and "Violets," for both of which Miss Reeves posed.

Mr. Reid filed a petition in bankruptcy in 1909, naming more than twenty creditors, among whom were John Drew, Augustus Thomas, and P. Cooper Hewitt.

Perhaps you need only brush up on the language you studied at school or college to make it of practical use. You can acquire a new language, at home, for business or social purposes.

SPANISH—FRENCH—GERMAN—ITALIAN
Is Easily and Quickly Mastered by the LANGUAGE-PHONE METHOD
And Rosenthal's Practical Linguistry
(Highest Award Panama-Pacific Exposition, 1915)

This is the natural way to learn a foreign language. You begin to speak at once. No time is wasted on appointments with teachers or schools. You can learn in the privacy of your home or office, free from the embarrassment of the classroom or teacher.
The voice of a native professor pronounces each word and phrase, slowly or quickly, for minutes or for hours. Any one can learn a foreign language who hears it spoken often enough; and by this method you can hear it as often as you like.
It is a pleasant, fascinating study. All members of the family can use it. You practice during spare moments or at convenient times, and in a surprisingly short time you speak, read and understand a new language.
Our Disc Records fit all Talking Machines. You can use your own machine if you wish.

You will be surprised to know how easily and quickly a foreign language can be learned on any Talking Machine by means of our Disc Pronouncing Records of Rosenthal's Practical Linguistry. Dr. Richard S. Rosenthal has published a book on "Language Study" which gives valuable information on the subject. It also tells how you or any member of your family can use your talking machine to acquire a foreign language. It is a remarkable book and one that you will enjoy reading. This book will be sent free, by mail, upon request.

With the strong counterattraction of the opening of the opera season to people who are the chief supporters of the Horse Show, coupled with threatening weather, Monday lived up to its reputation as the day when the attendance reaches its lowest ebb. But the ring show was up to the high standard to be expected at a national show. Those who were at the show were plainly lovers of the horse and composed the sort of crowd so often described as making up in enthusiasm what it lacked in quantity.

That enthusiasm reached its highest when the flaxen-haired twelve-year-old daughter of Sir Adam Beck won the Alfred B. McClay Cup for qualified hunters, to be ridden by amateurs, one of the principal prizes of the show. The dainty little miss rode Melrose, a hunter of international reputation—by a trotting sire out of a thoroughbred dam—with all the skill of a veteran until the Garden echoed and re-echoed with the cheers of those who saw her win this prize. It was a fitting climax to her help in winning the hunt team prize with the same horse in the afternoon.

Lady Adam Beck acted as judge in the principal event at the evening session, in which nine saddle horses, ridden by ladies on side saddles, competed for the challenge cup offered by Udo M. Fleischmann. Last year's winner, Miss Marjorie Hubbs's Wildflower, was not in the lot shown, though a second victory would have given her permanent possession of the trophy. It was a strong class as a whole, but eventually narrowed to a contest between W. H. Rhodes's Radiant, ridden by Miss Edith Beavor-Webb, a frequent winner at the shows of the Summer circuit, and Harry La Montagne's Northman, a much lighter and rangier type of horse, which had won at Piping Rock and other local shows, and ridden by Miss Lida L. Fleitman.

Radiant Is the Winner.

Both horses were in excellent form, though widely apart in type. After long deliberation Lady Beck favored the heavier and stockier of the pair and had the winner's rosette pinned to Radiant's bridle.

The first of the real novelties of the show came late in the afternoon, when the class for hunt teams of three qualified hunters, to be shown with riders in uniform, brought two women riders into the ring, in the person of Lady Beck and her twelve-year-old daughter Marion, wearing top hats and the modest black costumes of the Cadanian hunt, of which Sir Adam Beck is M. F. H. Sir Adam rode a thoroughbred called Sir Edward, which had the distinction of having won the middleweight championship at the Olympia show a few years ago from a field of about 300 horses.

Lady Beck had the mount on Sir Thomas, a son of Longfellow, and Miss Beck rode Melrose, a half-bred, all bays, which have been used on the field in the Meynal hunt in England, as well as at the Canadian hunts. While there was nothing novel in the appearance of hunt teams in the Garden, there was in the fact that two of the horses were ridden over the rather stiff jumps by ladies, an innovation that would very likely be followed were the show held in the Spring, when the Long Island hunting set could be in the Garden with their hunters.

There was a hearty reception to the ladies when they rode into the ring, and a sigh of anxiety when Miss Beck, who led the trio over the jumps, was almost thrown from her mount, which blundered so badly at the first jump as to topple the hedge over. He gained his footing, however, in time to carry his little mistress rather awkwardly over the second fence in safety. This double fault caused Lady Beck to pull up her mount a bit so that he, too, sidled over the first two jumps and refused at the third, so that he had to be taken back for another trial. After that it was clear sailing for the trio, which were rewarded for their unusual performance with rather vehement applause.

It seemed to many that the horses were clearly outjumped by both the Hamilton Farms and the C. D. Lanier trios, and the award of the blue ribbon to Sir Adam Beck's trio, unique as their appearance in the ring, seems to have been due to the very high rating given by the judges to the Canadian team under conditions which permitted performances to count for 50 per cent. and "uniforms and appointments 50 per cent."

Philadelphians Defeated.

It took the champions of champions, Lord and Lady Seton, to break the winning streak of Philadelphians or near Philadelphians in the heavy harness classes. Judge Moore's famous pair was in splendid form, moving almost as one animal and with the perfect action which has so often carried them to victory against even keener classes than they had to defeat yesterday afternoon. Mr. Atkinson's splendid pair, Supreme Polonius and Ideal, and Miss Vauclain's The Whip and The Craker, were the representatives of the Quaker City which tried to keep up their winning streak, but though the former were in superb condition, well mated and showy in action, they were not quite good enough to snatch the ribbon from Judge Moore's veterans of the show ring. Miss Vauclain's The Whip was badly handicapped by The Cracker, which pulled him down from an exceptionally good place horse into a commonplace one. The Atkinson pair therefore carried away the second honors in the class.

Possibly there may have been better classes of ponies in harness than the one which was in the ring yesterday afternoon, but memory fails to recall it. The only horse which under some judges would have had a chance against the winner, Tissington Amity, probably was Irvington Model, the best of the Brady Brothers' string of famous ponies. Mr. Brady refused to enter him in this class, pinning his hopes on Hamilton Flame, which he considers the second best of his string, and which his stud groom, John Tierney, drove against the superb Willisbrook Farm mare Tissington Amity, which won the championship at last year's show.

Bricket Brilliant Appears.

Amity was in perfect form yesterday, and in the final struggle for the chief honor rather outshowed Flame, which had to be content with second honors. There was much interest in the appearance of the imported Bricket Brilliant, which only arrived in this country on Saturday, and was literally brought from the steamer to the Garden yesterday morning. Miss Wiggin had bought him in England especially to win this prize, and so showed him, though he moved about the ring with his sea legs on and had no chance to get any of the prizes. He is a handsome little fellow, with good hock action, but no knee action that would bring him into the same class with a half dozen of yesterday's competitors, though a year's acclimation and training may bring him up to the high level of his English reputation.

One of the prettiest events of the day's show was the contest for pony four-in-hands, a feature of which was the appearance of a quartet of Shetland ponies no larger than St. Bernard dogs, and four other teams which were horses in miniature. The largest four of the quintet was a Welch pony, roan in color, perfectly matched and thoroughly trained to drag a miniature park drag which the Brady boys had imported to fit the ponies. On this drag rode a miniature footman and tiger, the only incongruous feature of the turnout being the bulk of John Tierney, who handled them. But he was so skillful with the team that this was forgotten in the excellence of the turnout as a whole, and there was sincere applause when they received the blue ribbon.

A Shetland pony which is wholly out of the ordinary was Prince of Wales, which was shown with three of his get, in one of the breeding classes in the morning. He is 26 years old and was first shown in the Garden in 1902, since which time he has been winning ribbons and siring winners of ribbons, until he, his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren have now won in all, only a hundred less than 5,000 prizes. Prince of Wales is the founder of a family of Shetland ponies almost as famous as the trotting family of Rysdyk's Hambletonian or the hackney family of Fashion and his descendants. Prince of Wales still has a straight back and snappy action as when in his prime, and the only mark of his age is the gray hair, which not only appears above his eyes as in all aged horses, but actually forms a gray shock above his whole forehead.

Water Jump to Sir Ashton.

Sir Ashton, a big rangy gelding, exhibited by Crow and Murray, took the first of the broad water jumping contests of the show. There were eleven contestants. The opening trial began at fifteen feet and was widened one foot at a time, until the contest was decided. There were a number of prominent jumpers in the event, but they clearly showed they preferred brush to water and some of their riders very nearly got a ducking. The winner only made one poor effort, which was owing to an unsteady take off. The red ribbon was awarded to the Rye School's Miss Mapleton, a handy mare which gave a very creditable performance.

In a saddle class for ponies 12 hands and not exceeding 13.1—which is really a child's mount—the winner was the Hamilton Farm's Lady Mine, ridden by Arthur Naylor. James Sweiger had the mount on Ruby, which came second. The remainder of the entries in the class were ridden by children. The youngsters in the race managed to obtain the third and fourth prizes, which went to Miss Constance and Miss Jean Regan, with Carlton Quality and Bantamite.

Miss Isabella Wanamaker's chestnut mare Eve, which has been exhibited at a number of the shows around New York, but is still a novice, won her first blue, in the class for horses over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.1.

The first real upset of the day came when Sandy Point Farm's Havoc, which was the champion hackney two-year-old filly of last year, was defeated by Willisden Enchantress, in the three-year-old filly division. This young mare is a daughter of Aaron and shows lots of class and was much larger than her other competitors. It was Havoc's first defeat in her career. She was bred by Mr. Vanderbilt and it by his noted stallion, Tiger Lillie.

Strathelair, third, with 6 feet 3 inches; Mrs. G. H. Chinchase's br. g. Skyscraper, fourth, with 6 feet 3 inches.

SOCIETY INTERESTED IN SHOW.

The interest of the society folk in the Horse Show events was renewed at the sessions in the Garden yesterday, and many prominent figures were seen on the promenade and in the boxes. A great number dropped in during the morning, and the afternoon session was particularly well attended, but in the evening the opera proved to be something of a counterattraction. Some of the men divided their time between the two places, but many of the boxes remained unoccupied or were loaned to friends for the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon entertained a party in Box 64. Mrs. Nixon wore a gown of black satin and tulle with a diamond dog collar, topped with a hat of tulle and sable. Her wrap was of burgundy velvet trimmed with sable. With Mrs. William M. Fleitmann in Box 22 were Miss Alice Chambers, Miss Lida Louise Fleitmann, who also appeared in the ring, and Frederick H. Fleitmann. Other young people visited the box during the evening.

Mrs. Charles W. Fletcher, who had a party in Box 10, wore a gown of dark blue sequins and a coat of white velvet trimmed with black fox. Mrs. George R. Read entertained a party which included Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Rives and Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Beach. Mr. and Mrs. E. Francis Hyde were in Box 39. Mrs. Hyde wore a gown of white lace and a wrap of white satin embroidered with gold topped with a hat of gold lace and fur. Lady Beck was hostess in Box 20 and wore a gown of taupe satin topped with a large purple hat.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Waring, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight, W. Goadby Loew, E. Victor Loew, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fairbairn, Mr. and Mrs. William M. V. Hoffman, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Gawtry.

There was considerable social animation during the afternoon. Society is getting into the habit now of dropping into the show for several turns around the promenade while downtown on shopping expeditions. The floor at the rear of the Garden, where the hitching is done, is visited frequently by society women who are interested in the horses and entries. It is something like the fad of visiting the paddock at the races.

Young people were in evidence yesterday afternoon. The children had their day on Saturday. Mrs. Rufus L. Petterson, who has Box 15, let it to Miss Alice Lawrence yesterday, who entertained a party of the season's débutantes. Box 51, owned by Mrs. George R. Read, was occupied by Mrs. Read's daughter, Mrs. Francis E. Storer, who had as her guests Mrs. Robert Fowler and Miss Ruth Adams among others.

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury was in Box 46 during the afternoon, and many prominent people dropped in for a visit. Among Mrs. Stotesbury's guests were Mrs. Claus Spreckels, Miss Lota Robinson, and Mrs. Frazier of Chicago.

Mrs. William M. Fleitmann entertained a matinée party in Box 22. On Saturday Mrs. Fleitmann had with her young Frederick Augustus Heinze, the four-year-old son of the late F. Augustus Heinze, who recently became the adopted son of his aunt. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pearsall Field and Mrs. Cole were her guests yesterday, also her daughter, Lida Louise Fleitmann.

Miss Annabella Olyphant entertained a box party, among her guests being Mrs. Philip A. S. Franklin, Mrs. Thomas N. McCarter, and Mrs. Joel Rathbone. Miss Miriam Harriman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Harriman, paid her visit to the show yesterday and had a group of young people with her in Box 55. Mr. and Mrs. Harry La Montagne occupied their box, No. 62. Mrs. William M. V. Hoffman also entertained in Box 21, and Mrs. Edward L. Burrill had a party of young folks in Box 43.

Some very smart afternoon and street gowns were worn at the matinée session. The dark cloth tailored suits are most in evidence, and black velvet hats, large and small. A touch of fur, sable, seal fox and skunk is given to all the suits, and ermine is largely worn. The high-crowned hats with narrow brims seem to be growing in favor.

CRIMSON COACHES LET 'VARSITY OFF

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13.—Harvard's football workout today was entirely for the substitutes. Flower and Bond, both of whom played in the backfield late in the Princeton game, were out for the first of the week drill, but all the other men, after attending the blackboard talk, were excused. The substitutes, in two teams, worked on plays, while the scrubs were instructed in the use of the Brown offense by the scouts, headed by Strategist Reggie Brown.

The 'Varsity men are all sore after their engagement against the Jerseymen, but there are no permanent ill-effects. Dick Harte was not in very good shape after his bump when he tackled Brown to save the game for Harvard, and it is very doubtful whether he will play much football before next week, when the 'Varsity will have the final preparations for the Yale game.

Robinson was back at quarter this afternoon, but does not look especially strong. He will play against Brown and will have a very good backfield. The substitute line-up today looks like the one the 'Varsity coaches will send against Brown Saturday. Likens and H. Coolidge were on the ends; the tackles were Lovell and Hartley; the guards Day and Dean, and Sager played centre. In the backfield, with Flower and Bond, Burnham, one of the heavy rushing backs, was used.

Harvard this season has followed Brown closely, and the coaches feel that their substitute team will be well equipped to meet the Providence attack. Some of the regulars could get into the game, but for the last few years the practice of saving the team between the Princeton and Yale games has worked out to a nicety. The regulars will all get down to work tomorrow for signals, and the remainder of the week will be spent mainly on offense.

BROWN AWAITS HARVARD.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13.—Brown came through the Yale game without an injury, and the players reported at Andrews field this afternoon in fine condition, all eager to begin active preparation for the Harvard game next Saturday. Never before in the history of the Harvard-Brown encounters—and Harvard and Brown have been meeting annually for twenty years—has there been as much interest created as now. Already 5,000 seats in the Brown section have been sold in Providence alone, and it would not be surprising if 10,000 persons from this city journeyed to Cambridge next Saturday.

Nearly all of the players who got into the Yale game were on the field this afternoon, and all but Purdy were in togs. Purdy gave his ankle a little wrench Saturday, but he will be ready tomorrow to direct the team. What pleased the coaches the most today was the appearance on the field of Ray Ward, tackle, and Tom Conroy, half back. Neither was in the Yale game, but both will be in condition to face Harvard. They will strengthen the team against Harvard.

BERRY MAY START GAME.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 13.—Unless developments the next few days fail to warrant the move, Coach Bob Folwell of the University of Pennsylvania football team will start J. Howard Berry, the Red and Blue's brilliant gridiron star, at full back when Penn and Michigan clash in their annual struggle at Ann Arbor, Mich, next Saturday.

An inkling as to Folwell's plan was had at Franklin Field this afternoon when the 'Varsity lined up for practice. Berry, whose work in the final period of the Dartmouth game here Saturday saved the team from defeat, was at full back and his condition was first-class.

"I believe Berry will be the logical man to start the Michigan game," said Folwell. "He is naturally a nervous, high strung youth, who was at the disadvantage of not having the practice of other 'Varsity players. Any stage fright which he might have suffered has now worn off, and unless the unforeseen happens, it looks now as if he will be in the Michigan game from the start."

"Hobey" Light and Jimmy Bryant, full back and quarter back, respectively, were excused from practice this afternoon. They were slightly injured on Saturday, but will be in uniform tomorrow.

The Red and Blue squad, twenty-five strong, will leave here at noon Thursday or Ann Arbor. They will be put through stiff practice for the struggle with the Wolverines tomorrow and again on Wednesday. They will also practice at Ann Arbor.

CORNELL LACKING IN SPEED.

Dr. Sharpe Also Plans to Improve Tackling This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Instead of meeting the whole football team in training quarters as has been customary so far this season, Dr. Sharpe called only the training table squad together at a meeting after the dinner hour. The lecture this week consisted of a frank statement of the present status of the development of the Cornell tam; information on what Penn, Cornell's Thanksgiving Day opponent, has accomplished, and criticisms of faults shown in the Michigan game.

The Massachusetts Aggies will be Cornell's next opponent, coming here Saturday for the final game on the local gridiron. Three days of scrimmaging, in which practically every 'Varsity regular will participate will be the program. Dr. Sharpe plans to add a few more plays to the meagre repertoire disclosed by Cornell so far, and a great effort will be made to improve tackling and get more speed behind the line. Bretz is due to get back into togs tomorrow. If he proves as speedy as a few days before he was injured, the chances are good for his getting a place in 'Varsity back field.

Graduate Manager Kent said today that the crowd at the Cornell-Michigan game Saturday was the biggest that has ever attended a local football contest in Ithaca, or any other athletic contest here. He placed it at 11,000.

GENERALS IN GOOD SHAPE.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 13.—In order to guard against overconfidence after the 55-to-7 victory over Bucknell on Saturday, Coach Elcock set the Washington and Lee squad to work this afternoon in preparation for next Saturday's game with Washington and Jefferson at Richmond. The Generals came out of the Bucknell battle with injuries to only two men, Cromwell and Moore, the latter of whom will doubtless be able to play Saturday.

The Times Junior Five Is Victor.

Kiechkefer Wins at Billiards.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 13.—August Kiechkefer of Rockford, Ill., defeated Charles McCourt of Cleveland, 50 to 47, tonight in 78 innings in their interstate three-cushion billiard match. McCourt had high run of 7.

YALE PREPARES FOR TIGERS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 13.—Most of Yale's first string players were excused from practice today and the others were sent through a short and light signal practice. Hutchinson did not report and Legore, Baldrige and Braden, who were in uniform, took only light conditioning exercise. Braden has developed a muscle bruise, but the coaches said tonight that they expected him to round into condition before Saturday's game against Princeton.

Taft and Jacques were in the line-up today for the first time since their injury two weeks ago. Jacques was installed at fullback and is Braden's closest competitor for final selection. Taft, instead of returning to his position at left tackle, was put in Baldrige's place at right tackle. Word has been received from Galt that he will return to practice tomorrow. He will play right guard. Callahan went back to centre today and it is a toss-up whether he or Hutchinson will start Saturday's game in that position. Hutchinson is also a possibility for fullback. Carey was at left halfback today, but competition for the place will not close till late in the week. Neville and Waite are still possibilities.

PITT COACH IS CAUTIOUS.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 13.—Although Coach Warner allowed his football squad to rest today, following the strenuous contest of Saturday, it is his intention to put them through a strenuous session tomorrow afternoon in preparation for the game of next Saturday against the Carnegie Tech team. The game put up by the latter against Cornell a week ago, which Warner saw from the side lines, convinced the Pitt coach that no chances must be taken because of a fancied inferior quality of play. They have a fast bunch, and Kesner and Finlay will have to be carefully watched, as either lad is likely to do something unexpected and get across the Blue and Gold's line.

Jim Morrow is the only Panther suffering from the W. and J. game. His sore ankle pained him today, and it may be that he will have a rest on Saturday, leaving him ten days to get ready for the Penn State game on Thanksgiving Day. Andy Hastings will be in the game then, as he is about ready to don his togs now. Warner was delighted with the way his boys not only broke up the forward passing of the W. and J., but adopted that style of play themselves to better advantage than the Red and Black, and as this is the main forte of Carnegie Tech, it looks bad for the Plaid next Saturday.

W. AND J. LAUDS PITT TEAM.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 13.—Coach Sol Metzger suspended practice entirely today for the Washington and Jefferson team, following the hard battle last Saturday with Pittsburgh. The coaches will hold no scrimmage this week, as the condition of the men will not permit it. Nearly every man who played against Pitt has an injury of more or less consequence, and some of them will be forced to go into the Washington and Lee game next Saturday with practically no more practice. The spirit and confidence of the Washington and Jefferson players is unshaken by the defeat at the hands of the Pitt team, which the Red and Black characterize as the best in the country.

As a result of the showing against Warner's men, Metzger is likely to make two important changes. Shields, who played the second half of the game Saturday, is likely to replace Guy at centre, while either Crawford or Baxter will take the place of Fain in the backfield, unless Nuss is able to play, in which case the latter will go back into the game. Ruble may not be able to play at Richmond on account of a new injury. The experiment of switching Carroll from tackle to end was so successful that the change is to be permanent in the remaining games of the year. The Washington and Jefferson team will leave for Richmond on Thursday night.

SNOW GREETS GREEN TEAM.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 13.—Alumni Oval was covered with an inch of snow today, and Coach Cavanaugh ordered practice in the baseball cage for the Dartmouth football squad.

The Green regulars seem to be weakened from the strain of the last four games, in which the men were forced to put everything they had into the contests. The severe punishment sustained in the Princeton, Syracuse and Pennsylvania games has obviously told on the back field, and today the coaches gave a lay-off to the men who played there. Although the men were more or less bruised up in Saturday's contest, none received any serious injuries.

The Green coaches feel that West Virginia is certain to be a stiff proposition. Although the Dartmouth trainer, Harry Hillman, is rather shaky about letting his charges do any real hard work this week, the coaches will do all they can to prepare the men for a tough battle.

ARMY BEGINS HARD WORK.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 13.—The hardest part of the training season for the Army footballers was ushered in today, when the soldier eleven was sent through a two hours' workout. The Cadets came through the easy Maine game unscratched. Butler was the only missing link in the big forward chain today. Schlenker was again at tackle. Butler will get back this week in time for Springfield, which contest is next on the Cadet's schedule. The soldiers had planned to take this game in their stride toward the Navy battle, now so near at hand, but with Springfield's defeat of Tufts some little apprehension is abroad in the Army's camp, as the soldiers are anxious to go up to the Navy contest without a defeat.

MIDDIES ARE OPTIMISTIC.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13.—Encouraged by the improvement shown on Saturday against the North Carolina Aggies, but realizing that reliance must be placed largely upon young players, the Naval Academy coaches began today the final drive before the Army game. Practice was secret and will continue to be so until the end of the season.

The teams did not line up at all, and the time was devoted to kicking, passing, formations, and signal drill. The coaches are happy over the showing of Perry in Saturday's game, and it has been a long time since the Navy has had a player who combined so much punting and drop kicking with ability to carry the ball. Ingram, Davis, Martin, and Roberts have also been doing splendid work behind the line, and it is admitted that the Navy squad is stronger in its backs than for many years.

EDDIE HART COMES TO AID OF TIGERS

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 13.—After the severe contest with Harvard on Saturday, which left many of the Tigers pretty well bruised up, Coach Rush was unwilling to give a very hard workout to his first string men this afternoon and confined their activities to a mere warming up. No mercy was shown the second and third teams, however, and they were kept scrimmaging nearly all afternoon. Eddie Hart, who was Captain of the 1911 team, the last championship eleven Princeton has had, was out on the field coaching.

Hart met the team in Boston previous to the Harvard game, and returned here with the players. He will probably stay here all this week to assist Rush in grooming the eleven for its final contest with Yale next Saturday. Hart has a personality which invariably instills a fighting spirit and determination in any eleven with which he is connected. He kept the two scrimmaging elevens on the move this afternoon, and on several occasions jumped into the play himself. The two teams which battled under his supervision were pretty evenly matched, each scoring one touchdown. Comey was used at the quarter back position on one of them, while Haas directed the other.

Rush appeared anything but optimistic, and it is evident that there will be more drilling for the Tigers all this week. Several faults appeared in the playing of the Tigers which will have to be eliminated before Yale plays here. Hobey Baker, Captain of the 1913 Tiger eleven, was another alumnus who turned out this afternoon to work with the players. Baker gave Eddy a long drill on handling punts. This has been the Princeton quarter back's failing all the season, as previous to this year he had always played at end. He has improved a lot since the beginning of the season, though, and his fumbles in the Harvard game were partly excusable in view of the tricky wind conditions. Baker is unusually adept in handling punts, and if he can impart some of his knowledge to Eddy the latter should be improved considerably before Saturday.

MANY COLUMBIA CRIPPLES.

Only Substitutes Take Part in Practice for Wesleyan Contest.

Only 'Varsity substitutes of the Columbia eleven were called out on South Field for practice yesterday. Head Coach Metcalf was more concerned with the recovery of several of the regular veterans from injuries received in the game against Swarthmore Saturday than with any campaign plans to be used against Wesleyan. Goldberg, centre and tackle, who distinguished himself in the early part of the game, had his right leg broken at the ankle in two places. Van de Water, who has only played in the last two games on account of previous detention from active work because of water on the knee, will also be lost for the rest of the year. Wilber, veteran right tackle, was hurt so severely that he will be lost for the remainder of this season. Wilber is Captain-elect of the basket ball team, and he may not be able to start the indoor season.

Kennedy, left end, and Vollmer, who has succeeded Captain Healy at left tackle, reported to Trainer Gus Petersen, but no serious consequences are expected from their injuries Saturday. Blackboard drill was the order last night, and Metcalf announced he would strengthen his offense for the next game with Wesleyan as a means of combating a heavier opponent. Hegeman is expected to show improved form in drop kicking, and Cochran will get coaching in placement goals.

FORDHAM CRIPPLES RETURN.

Lowe and O'Connell Will Be Able to Play Against Holy Cross.

Fordham prospects brightened yesterday, following the announcement that Lowe and O'Connell, two men who were badly hurt in the Georgetown game, would be in the line-up against Holy Cross on Saturday. The report was made by Dr. Spies when he made another examination, and found them to be less seriously hurt than thought at first. Both will probably practice today.

Corcoran and May reported in uniform yesterday, and appeared to be fully recovered. They were the other pair of regulars whose absence all last week had left the Maroon students much concerned about the outcome of the game with the Purple eleven, which is next to the Georgetown fray in importance. In practice yesterday the 'Varsity players met the Prep squad, which, with the return of Corcoran and May, did not find its attack as successful as in the last three encounters.

REST FOR N. Y. U. ELEVEN.

Coach Eustis gave a rest to the New York University football team yesterday, after the hard game with Colby last Saturday. The only man injured in Saturday's game was Elias, who started the game at centre in the absence of Brin. Elias wrenched his shoulder, which will probably keep him out of the game for several days. Howard Cann, who was put into the game in the second half, came out without further injuring his weakened shoulder and will probably appear regularly in the remaining scrimmages and games. Captain Bernstein's playing showed the effects of his sprained ankle in the Colby game, but he is expected to be in prime condition for the two remaining games.

Although the Columbia game is almost two weeks distant, the entire team is preparing to avenge last year's defeat. At present every indication points to a full 'Varsity line-up at that time. In addition to the regular backfield of Mackenzie, Howard Cann, Weinheimer, and Bernstein, Coach Eustis has a formidable sub backfield to pick from in case of emergency. The men who compose it are Ted Cann, Hammerschlag, Warman, and Horigan, all of whom have already demonstrated their worth during the season. The line is equally well bolstered up by reliable substitutes.

VIRGINIA PRACTICE LIVELY.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 13.—With every regular in the line-up save Churchman, Virginia's football eleven began active preparation today for the final games on the schedule—Virginia Military Institute on Saturday and North Carolina on Thanksgiving Day. The daily signal drill was preceded by thorough individual instruction. Head Coach Evans had charge of the forwards, Dr. Neff of the backs, and Dave Wilson of the ends. Wilson was assisted by Speed Elliott, a former end and head coach at Virginia four years ago, who arrived from Boonville, Mo., to remain one week.

Wagenknight, the Quaker quarter back, who made good in the Vanderbilt game, drove the game at a lively clip and gave every evidence of having entirely recovered from his recent injury. Cripples in harness were Right Tackle Ward, Left End White, and Right End Darvin. In Saturday's game with South Carolina there was considerable fumbling, and in an effort to remedy this fault all of the backs were put through a half hour's drill in receiving punts.

NOVICE CUE FINALS TO START TONIGHT

Round-Robin Schedule for Seven Players Who Won in the Preliminary Tourney.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Amateur Billiard Association last night at the Arion Society the schedule for the final matches in the novice straight rail tournament, which has been in progress for some time, was determined upon. The winners of each of the seven room tournaments will compete in a round robin event which will be decided in the various billiard academies, except for the final game, which will be played in the Arion Society room.

The seven men who will compete are William Viertel, winner of the tournament at Canfield's Academy; Irving Schwartz, victor in the Morningside Academy event; Dr. Frederick M. Bauer from Daly's, Nelson B. Mayo from Doyle's, Ellis Solomon from Thum's, Charles Ebson from Flynn's, and Joseph R. Johann, Jr., winner of the tournament at Lawler's in Brooklyn. The complete schedule calls for the playing of twenty-one games, which will take a little over two weeks, the matches being contested on only three days of the week—Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

The entire schedule has not been completed, it depending largely on the play as it progresses. Competition in the round robin series will begin tomorrow night with matches scheduled in three rooms. At Canfield's Dr. Bauer plays William Viertel, Irving Schwartz plays J. R. Johann, Jr., at Lawler's, and Ellis Solomon will test his skill against Charles Ebson at Flynn's. This leaves Nelson B. Mayo without a game the opening night of the tournament. His first contest is scheduled for Friday night with the loser of the Bauer versus Viertel match.

The roomkeepers who are holding the tournament will meet Friday night to discuss further details of the arrangements for competition.

Billy Miske, the St. Paul light-heavyweight, whose recent victory over Battling Levinsky gained him considerable prominence, has fallen into disfavor with the local Boxing Commission. Fred A. Wenck, Chairman of the commission, announced yesterday that he had notified the two up-State Commissioners, Messrs. Franey and Dwyer, to attend a meeting which will be held in the commission's offices tomorrow, when a recommendation will be made that Miske be suspended from competition in New York State for a period of six months. This action on the part of the commission was taken following Miske's refusal to box Bob Moha at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn this evening.

LEHIGH LOSES CHENOWETH.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Nov. 13.—While Lehigh started practice for the Susquehanna game today, really the work had in view the all-important struggle with Lafayette two weeks hence. Contrary to the usual rule of a day of rest following a hard game, Coach Keady ordered out the entire squad, excepting Richards, tackle, who dislocated his shoulder; Chenoweth, quarter back, who fractured a toe; McCarty, end, and Tate, tackle, who are pretty badly bruised up. With both tackles laid up, some shifting will have to be done to bolster the line. Today McCarty was moved over to guard and Good in from end. This arrangement left the wings in bad shape, and Gulick and Fraim, substitutes, will be used there until further notice.

Herrington, under whose generalship the Brown and White team did generally its best work against State, was sent in at quarter. It is almost a foregone conclusion, now that Chenoweth is injured, that Herrington will be the quarter back selection the rest of the year.

Merrill to Lead Swimming Team.

S. C. Merrill was yesterday elected manager of the Columbia 'Varsity swimming team at a meeting of the University Committee on Managers. Merrill, who was soccer manager until the abolition of this sport last month, will succeed Charles T. Pauley, who had to resign because of a pressure of academic work.

Gaddi, Champion Boxer, Beaten.

John Gaddi of the St. Bartholomew Club of New York, who holds the amateur middle and welter weight championships, was defeated last night for the first time in his career by William McKinley of Newark, N. J., in a fast and interesting three-round bout at the Turnbull Auditorium of Newark. McKinley received the referee's decision over Gaddi at the conclusion of the bout, which just bristled with excitement.

Amateurs to Box at Crescent A. C.

Entries for the amateur boxing tournament to be held at the Crescent A. C. on Nov. 21 and 23 will close on Thursday. The bouts will be contested in the 108, 115, 125, and 145 pound classes.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—Dutch Carter, Yale's former pitcher, and since his graduation in 1895 member of the Yale Graduate Baseball Committee, today sent his resignation to Professor Robert N. Corwin, Chairman of the Yale Board of Control. Carter made no secret of the fact that he is not pleased with Yale's athletic reorganization plans. He spoke his mind plainly regarding them and declined to continue as a baseball adviser.

Carter has been for twenty years Yale's leading baseball adviser. No other old athlete has had such continuous service in connection with Yale athletic committees except Walter Camp, who retired as general athletic adviser two years ago, but who was persuaded to return to the reorganized athletic committee last year.

The formation of a new Board of Athletic Control three weeks ago replaced the receivership organized last Fall. The receivers concluded their service by filing a report which frowned upon the excessive expenditures which are being made in connection with Yale and other coaching systems, including head coaches who draw large salaries. Their report has been accepted by the Yale Corporation, the university trustees, who appointed them.

N. Y. Nationals Re-elect Officers.

The National Exhibition Company, which operates the New York Baseball Club of the National League, held its annual meeting yesterday in Jersey City, and the following officers were re-elected: President—Harry N. Hempstead; Vice President—Cornelius J. Sullivan; Treasurer—N. Ashley Lloyd; Secretary—John B. Foster. The Board of Directors includes Harry N. Hempstead, Cornelius J. Sullivan, John A. Whalen, Jonas Monheimer, James Foster, and Frank M. Stevens.

GET-AWAY DAY AT PIMLICO TRACK

Scores Fourth Straight Victory as the Meeting at Pimlico Closes.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 13.—Getaway Day at Pimlico track was made notable by the greatly improved running of the Maroon Stable's J. J. Lillis, which followed up his victory of Saturday by winning the Pimlico Fall Serial Handicap No. 3 this afternoon. Because of his race on Saturday J. J. Lillis had to pick up 107 pounds, instead of the 104 originally assigned. Besides that he had to travel a mile and a furlong in the handicap today against six furlongs on Saturday. Though pressed hard by Hauberk and Chiclet, he won more easily than he did in his last start. Hauberk, which was an added starter, was even more of an outsider, but the Coe castoff ran kindly for once and took the place from Chiclet.

J. W. May's Bayberry Candle, scored her fourth straight victory, and her second at the Pimlico meeting by carrying 128 pounds to victory in the New Howard Handicap, an event that ranked second in importance to the Serial Handicap. The prestige of Bayberry Candle was so great that all but two others were withdrawn and May's Mare started a strong favorite over All Smiles and King Neptune.

The meeting has been so successful that the management decided to give the losing owners an additional chance to earn a little money. An extra race was put on in the morning, making a total of eight for the day and in this Salon was the winner among some good horses that had not captured a race at the meeting.

The summaries, with straight, place and show odds, follow:

FIRST RACE.—For maiden two-year-olds, purse $700; six furlongs. Time—1:16 3-5.
N. K. Beal, J. F. Cleaver's ch. c., 112 pounds, by Glorifier-Puritan Girl, $10.70, $4.70, $3.60, (C. Fairbrother)....1

Fourteen-Day Finale to Eastern Season Starts This Afternoon.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—Eastern racing will shift tomorrow to Bowie, where the Southern Maryland Association will inaugurate the meeting that will have the distinction of winding up the season's racing under the control of The Jockey Club. There will be fourteen racing days. This will be the third Autumn session at the comparatively new Bowie track, which has been greatly improved since racing took place there last Spring. A program of seven races a day has been arranged, and in no event will there be less than $600 added money. A. B. Dade will do the starting, and in the Stewards' stand will be William P. Sturgeon, Carter Hall, and E. C. Smith, the last named representing The Jockey Club.

The colors of the leading turfmen of the United States and of many Canadian owners will be carried at Bowie by horses which have been conditioned by a hard season's campaign. The only thing that is missing this Fall, but which will be provided next year, is a steeplechase course. Thus the campaign of the jumpers ended with the Pimlico meeting this afternoon. Among the horsemen who have been allotted stable room are Richard T. Wilson, Gifford A. Cochran, Thomas F. Ryan, George D. Widener, W. R. Coe, Archibald Barklie, Colonel Ral Parr, Oscar Lewisohn, Jefferson Livingston, Wilfred Viau, Edward F. Whitney, and L. Wood.

RACE PROFITS TO CHARITY.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 13.—The Fall season at Old Pimlico race track, which closed this afternoon, promises to be a rich one for the local charities. It is estimated that nearly two and three-quarter millions of dollars have passed through the pari-mutuel machines during the eleven days of this meeting. On last Saturday alone the public played on the seven races $365,000.

Last Spring the Maryland Jockey Club utilized the bulk of its profits for local charities. Six per cent. of the gross total bet on each race was deducted for the club. After current expenses of the meeting were paid and a substantial sum laid aside for depreciation and improvements, the remainder was turned over to local charities. Based on the 6 per cent. deduction, more than $140,000 will be available for the Jockey Club to work on this Autumn.

IMPORTED HORSES ARRIVE.

Seventy Thoroughbreds Consigned to Well-Known Owners.

Seventy thoroughbreds, mostly yearlings from various large breeding establishments in England and France, arrived here Sunday on board the steamship Manchuria of the Atlantic Transport Line. The horses were consigned to Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, John E. Sanford of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Grant Hugh Browne of Baltimore. The majority of the Sanford youngsters are by Voter, the famous American sire, which at one time belonged to the late James R. Keene. There are seven colts and three fillies, all out of fashionably bred English and French mares.

The Widener horses came over in charge of Trainer Tom Welsh, who left this country six weeks ago to attend to their shipment. Those which belong to Grant Hugh Browne are a likely looking and impressive lot. They are about equally divided between colts and fillies; a number of them are by prominent English sires. On the same ship was a two-year-old colt by Ajax, consigned to Thomas Hitchcock.

Johns Sets Motor Cycle Mark.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 13.—Don Johns of Pasadena, Cal., set a new motor cycle record for five miles on a circular dirt track at the State Fair Grounds here today. His time was 3 minutes 58 seconds.

MINORS MAY DROP OPTIONAL PRACTICE

The minor leagues will direct a hard blow at the major leagues when they hold their meeting in New Orleans today if they carry through their new rule placing a ban on major league players playing in the minors under the optional agreement. The New York State League is the first of the minor leagues hereabout to prohibit its clubs from carrying players under the agreement. Other minor leagues enforced such a rule last year, also, although the practice is frowned upon by the National Commission.

In the past, major league clubs, in distributing their excess talent, have released players to minor league clubs with the understanding that they could be recalled. This practice has in many cases practically ruined minor league clubs during the season. This was especially true when Jack Dunn's Baltimore club was entirely stripped of its star players two seasons ago. Other clubs in the International League have suffered from the practice, and the patronage of the minor leagues has been greatly reduced when major leagues have taken a star player or two away during the season.

The minor leagues intend to pass a new rule prohibiting the practice, but many major league men will be in attendance at New Orleans and will try to block this sort of legislation against them. Secretary J. H. Farrell of the National Association is the authority for the statement that at the coming meeting an effort will be made to adopt a rule preventing any club using a player secured under this option. This will make it imperative for all minor leagues to own all their players outright.

TRIBUTE TO NICKALLS.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13.—Guy Nickalls, the Yale crew coach, celebrated his fiftieth birthday today by completing his Fall coaching at the university. He was the guest at a quiet banquet given by several of his Yale rowing enthusiasts, and was congratulated on the progress made in restoring Yale rowing prospects after last year's slump. He will leave here tomorrow, and will sail for England on the Arabic on Wednesday. This Winter he will offer his services for British military service in any capacity they can be utilized, and will return to Yale next March to take charge of the rowing situation.

His brother, Vivian Nickalls, the former University of Pennsylvania crew coach, it was learned tonight, is a Major in the English Army and is now fighting in the first line of English trenches somewhere in Flanders. Because of a broken arm Nickalls has been unable to enlist in the English Army.

Chinese-Americans at Stanford and the University of California have formed teams made up entirely of Chinese students at the two universities, which will compete in soccer, tennis, and basketball. There are thirty eligibles at the University of California and ten at Leland Stanford, Jr., University. The games will be played next month.

Mortgage Bonds Providing Liberal Returns

We invite requests for our Letter No. 141, that describes three bonds of this kind, and explains why such well-secured obligations can be purchased at comparatively low prices.

Strongly Secured First Mortgage 6s

These short term bonds, due within ten years, are secured by a direct first mortgage or by a first lien through collateral upon approximately 820 miles of railway together with equipment, terminals, etc. They are outstanding at the low rate of about on property most of which is main line. The territory served comprises a region which has shown exceptional development in recent years. It furnishes a diversified traffic of high-grade tonnage which indicates the strong basis on which the company is being managed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Wall Street discussed yesterday rumors of separate peace efforts in Europe and a suggestion that President Wilson would soon move to bring the warring nations together side by side with plans for further belligerent financing in the United States. One looked to the ending of the war, the other to its continuance. The conflict here is suggestive of the conflict of varied forces which found reflection in the stock market. Before the day was over the list yielded enough to the pressure put upon it to show round losses in many of the active issues.

Professional trading sentiment was bearish, and it made the most of the peace talk, of the rather bad news from Mexico, and of the prolongation of the discussion of the latest cases of submarine attack which have called for investigation by our State Department. Early in the day the effect of these bearish efforts was partly offset by the continued strength of the copper shares, which were still buoyed up by the hope of the early placing of new large orders from abroad, but these stocks later yielded to the selling which their advance called forth and their reaction helped to stimulate the fall in other parts of the list which had been reactionary in tendency, even while the copper shares had been showing strength.

Political consideration also played a part, but it was difficult except perhaps in a few special issues to apportion any large share of influence to the outcome of the election, inasmuch as the market was acting very much as it had frequently acted before in response to peace talk such as was given prominence in yesterday's market discussion. Early peace is of course a possibility, as it has been a possibility all along, but the methodical discussion in banking circles of further European credits, designed to help in financing further purchases of war supplies in the United States, hardly carries any suggestion that early peace is regarded in high banking quarters here as a probability.

The reaction in the stock market on talk of peace is a spontaneous recognition of the important part which orders from belligerent Governments have played in stimulating trade in the United States, but business in this country is not inherently as dependent upon the continuance of war orders as is suggested by the concern which the stock market periodically displays over peace talk. There may be many idle hands in the United States after war orders have run their course, but if that should be the case it would only be because of lack of adequate plans against the time when these hands would be free to do much more valuable work than that which they are now performing.

Just now the country's equipment is proving insufficient to handle the vast amount of home trade which the country has, plus the great volume of foreign orders, as is shown by the present car shortage on our railroads, the dimensions of which are revealed in yesterday's monthly statement of the Railway Association. The country's equipment would also be inadequate to handle the possible trade within our own borders if, when peace returns, all the energy which has been going into the filling of foreign orders were wisely diverted to the many undertakings of which our own country is in need.

Rumor of Gold Imports.

A rumor was in circulation in financial quarters yesterday that another shipment of gold would soon arrive. The basis was the report that the Russian Government had made a further transfer of gold holdings to the general gold fund of the Allies, but inquiries in unusually well-informed quarters elicited a denial of the report, the statement being made, however, that there might be small shipments from time to time but that the general influx movement had come to a stop for the present. It is quite likely that one of the shipments arranged for some time ago may arrive in a few days.

An incident having an interesting bearing upon the problem of check collections was related yesterday by an officer of a small bank. He told of a depositor who wanted to draw against an uncollected deposit, the particular deposit being a large check drawn by an important mercantile house in Chicago. The banker told the depositor he could not draw against the check because, if the bank permitted him to do so, the bank would be really lending him the money, inasmuch as the bank would not be in possession of the funds until it had obtained a remittance from Chicago, which would probably take two or three days. In order to satisfy the depositor who was in need of the money, the banker offered to buy the check, deducting a small commission, sufficient to reimburse the institution for the loss of interest and risk. This method was acceptable to the depositor. "The transaction," explained the banker, "was the same as buying a check on London. All banks buy foreign checks, and there is no reason why they should not purchase or discount a draft payable in Chicago."

The freight-car shortage has been growing steadily more marked. The American Railway Association's bulletin shows that on Nov. 1 it amounted to 108,010 cars net. The net shortage on Sept. 30 was 60,697 and on Sept. 1, 19,874. On Aug. 1 there was a net surplus of 9,762 idle cars. The Association's figures show that for nearly all of the period of eight years preceding the middle of August of this year there was a continuous net surplusage of cars not in use on the American roads, except for about one month in 1909, three months in 1912, one month in 1913, and the month of March, this year. In 1908 there was at one time a surplus of 413,000 cars, and at no time during that year were there fewer than 100,000 idle cars. In the year following the maximum surplus was 332,513, and in 1910 it was 143,000. Throughout that year there were never fewer than 7,000 idle cars. For 1911 the maximum surplus was 207,000 cars on March 15. The minimum surplus was 20,000. The number of freight cars owned by the railroads of the country increased in eight years from 1,991,557 to 2,447,178.

It was reported yesterday that the International Mercantile Marine Company had bought a controlling interest in the New York Shipbuilding Company, operating a plant at Camden. The company has only $5,000,000 of stock outstanding, with $2,300,000 in first mortgage bonds. Acquisition of the plant would enable the Marine Company to construct its own vessels. It was said by an influential director that the sale had not been negotiated.

Rails May Be Raised Again.

It is expected in steel-making circles that rail makers will soon raise the price of their standard product about $5 a ton as a partial offset to the increase of recent months in the selling price of billets. The billets from which rails are rolled are quoted at $50 a ton, Pittsburgh, compared with $27 a ton a year ago. Since the price of rails was raised $5 a ton last May, for delivery after May 1, 1917, billets have advanced about $10 per ton, and it would seem that if the May advance was justified by higher values for raw material another upturn would shortly be due. The relation of costs to selling price, however, does not alone rule the rail market. The manufacturers need to consider the fact that the railroads might be scared away by extraordinary quotations, and the additional fact is to be borne in mind that low profits at current prices might be counterbalanced by big profits later when the raw material becomes cheaper.

These are days of staggering contracts in the steel and copper trades, the result chiefly of collective purchases by the allied nations. A copper order now under negotiation, presumably for the account of France, will involve the payment to American producers of approximately $50,000,000 if 100,000 tons are bought. In the steel trade yesterday it was reported that J. P. Morgan & Co. had placed an order for $25,000,000 worth of shell steel with a Pennsylvania company for late 1917 delivery. No confirmation could be obtained at the Morgan offices, where the rule is strictly adhered to that if anyone talks about war business it shall be the seller. Whether so great a single steel order has been negotiated there is no question in the mind of steel makers that they could sell a far greater tonnage to Europe than indicated in the rumor if they had mill room.

LONDON MARKET IS ACTIVE.

Diamond and Peruvian Issues Are the Leading Features.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Money was in moderate demand and discount rates were quiet today.

The stock market was moderately active as far as British and foreign funds were concerned. Diamond and Peruvian issues were the leading features, and they were actively supported at rising prices. Mexicans were flat and rails declined a point, but Russian shares were better on the improvement in exchange. American securities were generally lower, with an uncertain tendency.

Prices Steady on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs 10 centimes for cash; exchange on London, 27 francs 81¼ centimes; 5 per cent. loan, 87 francs 85 centimes.

Investment Vision

Investment vision is that insight into the value of bonds and preferred stocks which enables one to choose securities combining a high degree of safety with an attractive yield.

To acquire this vision in public utility issues, our organization devotes itself entirely to the careful study of every public utility detail. As a result, we have selected, to offer for your investment, many high-grade issues, among which we suggest:

Name	Approx. Yield
No. Ohio Trac. & Light Co. 1st Lien & Ref. 5s of 1956	5.32%
The Pine Bluff Co. (Tax Exempt in N. Y. State) 1st 5s of 1942	5.25%
Dayton Lighting Co. 1st & Ref. 5s of 1937	5.00%
Los Angeles Railway 1st Cons. 5s of 1938	5.00%

This list is more than an offering—it is a recommendation.

Send for descriptions of the issues in which you are interested.

First (closed) Mortgage 5% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds
Price to Yield over 5.60%

Fifty-year contracts (pledged under the mortgage) running 20 years beyond maturity of bonds, for 75,000 horsepower, assure net earnings approximately twice interest charges on entire bond issue. Earnings from remaining 50,000 horsepower will substantially increase margin of safety.

The said Four hundred eighty-four thousand dollars ($484,000) of notes, representing the balance of the Five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) of notes required by the said Trust Agreement to be drawn by lot for redemption on December 1, 1916, after the deduction therefrom of an amount equal to fifty per cent. (50%) of the par value of the notes converted into preferred stock of the Mahoning and Shenango Railway and Light Company during the past year.

Interest on the above-mentioned notes will cease on December 1, 1916. Holders of the above-mentioned notes are required to present them on or before December 1, 1916, at the office of Fidelity Trust Company, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for redemption.

Under the terms of the Trust Agreement the holders of the above-mentioned notes are entitled to convert the same at their face value, par for par, under the conditions and regulations prescribed in the Trust Agreement, into shares of the non-assessable 7% Preferred Capital Stock of Mahoning and Shenango Railway and Light Company upon presentation and surrender of the same for conversion with all unmatured coupons attached, at the office of Fidelity Trust Company, Trustee, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on or before November 21, 1916. The adjustment of current dividends and accrued interest upon notes so converted will be made in cash. All holders of said notes who shall not have converted the same into preferred stock of Mahoning and Shenango Railway and Light Company prior to November 21, 1916, shall be conclusively determined to have elected to receive cash for said notes.

TRADE BOARD GETS CORN PRODUCTS CASE

DECISION TO BE APPEALED

Proceedings to Restore Competition Will Be Stopped Pending Action by the Supreme Court.

The final decree in the Government's successful suit to dissolve the $80,000,000 Corn Products Refining Company was handed down yesterday by Judge Learned Hand of the Federal District Court. It suggests no method of restoring competition, nor does it recommend into how many units the combination shall be divided. It refers the working out of all details to the Federal Trade Commission.

The defendant corporation announced that it would carry the case to the United States Supreme Court. This appeal will stop all proceedings for the restoration of competition until after the Supreme Court announces its decision. If it should be in favor of the Government then the Federal Trade Commission will hold hearings, probably in Washington, and examine witnesses.

At the close of the hearings the defendant company will be permitted to submit a plan of dissolution, which the commission may accept in its entirety or with modifications, or it may reject the submitted plan and draft one of its own. Whatever the plan is or wherever it comes from, it must be submitted to Judge Hand, who will have the same authority to alter the commission's plan that the commission will have over any plan submitted by the corporation.

Van Sinderen Lindsley, of counsel for the Government, said that it might be possible to argue the case before the Supreme Court early in the Spring and that a decision might be handed down before the Summer recess. If the Government wins, and it confidently expects to win, the plan of dissolution may be ready to put into effect in the coming Fall. The decree gives the company 120 days in which to adjust itself to the new conditions.

Representatives of the company were not so sure that the Government would be upheld. They intimated that the company would insist that there was no combination in restraint of trade for the reason that there could not be any corporation control of corn which was the raw product, and that it could be easily proved that the other two features needed to establish a trust through favorable railroad rates, or through the control of patents, did not exist.

They said that the company merely tried to enlarge the scope of the market for the consumption of the company's various products and that in one year they had spent more than $5,000,000 in advertising. The fact that to build a plant to compete with the company costs $1,000,000 at least will be advanced to show that the companies which have opposed the defendant were not feeble adventurers into the business world, but were handled by some of the most competent men in the country.

Judge Hand's decision was to the effect that the Corn Products Refining Company was an unlawful combination and the decree provided that it should be dissolved in such a way as to make it forever subject to competition and in harmony with the provisions of the Sherman law. The decree set forth that the company, as originally organized, was and is now a combination in restraint of trade and commerce among the several States and with foreign nations, and that it sought to monopolize the trade in starch, glucose, and grape sugar made with corn and their derivatives, and that it was seeking to monopolize also the trade in mixed syrups which contained 85 per cent. or thereabout of glucose.

The decree described in detail the methods by which the company violated the law. In the early part of 1908, according to the decision, the company threatened to invade the business of the Royal Baking Powder Company unless the American Maize Products Company got out of the starch and glucose business. An agreement was made by which the Maize Products Company agreed to limit its product of these two articles and to sell half of the output to the Corn Products Company.

It is also explained in the decree how the defendant company entered the candy business in 1907. At that time the defendant bought, secretly, control of the Manniere-Yoe Syrup Company and began manufacturing candy at the plant in Chicago for the purpose of injuring the National Candy Company.

These methods and others of a similar nature, the decree said, were practiced by the defendant throughout 1909. The decree said that all of the big candy concerns were notified in one way or another that if they did not buy their glucose of the defendant they would have trouble. The form this "trouble" would take was shown when the defendant bought a number of candy plants. Having gained sufficient producing capacity to supply about 90 per cent. of the glucose needed by the industies using it, the decision asserts that the defendant attempted to drive down the price of this product and of starch below a fair profit-producing price and sought to earn enough to pay dividends from the sales of its other products. The profit on glucose became so small that no one was tempted to invest money in the business.

Then, the decision continues, attacks on competitors in all of the other things manufactured by the company was begun along the same lines. It is charged in the decree that the defendant in 1907 induced railroad officials to increase the east-bound freight rates on glucose and prevented a reduction in rates promised to the independent producers in April, 1908.

The decree enjoins the company from continuing or resuming any of the unfair methods complained of, but it may proceed with its business providing there is no violation of the law. Among the defendants named with the Corn Products Company are the National Starch Company, St. Louis Syrup and Press Preserving Company, and the Novelty Candy Company. The officers and Directors of the Corn Products Company are also among the defendants.

RUSSIAN CHARTER TO BANK.

National City Hears Its Application Has Been Favorably Acted On.

The National City Bank received word yesterday that the charter applied for some months ago for a branch bank in Russia had been granted, with some modifications. What the changes are, and whether or not they will interfere with the bank's plans, was not stated in the cable message, but officers said that they were hopeful of being able to open the new branch in the very near future.

A staff has already been gathered and quarters provided in Petrograd, under the direction of H. F. Meserve, and it is planned ultimately to establish sub-branches throughout the country. There is only one other foreign bank now in operation in Russia. Sentiment there has been against the granting of charter to foreign institutions, but the growth in trade relations with the United States has made banking connections essential, and the application made by the National City Bank was favorably received.

The branch in Genoa has been opened with a capital of $1,000,000. Other foreign branches are now being operated at Buenos Aires, Argentina, Montevideo, Uruguay, Havana and Santiago, Cuba; Rio de Janeiro, Santos and Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Valparaiso, Chile.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Massillon Electric and Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Cities Service Company, has arranged to refund its present $500,000 first mortgage bonds, maturing in 1948, by the creation of a new first mortgage of $2,000,000, authorized, maturing in 1956. The old mortgage was a closed issue and the demand for additional capital for the company necessitated additional financing. The Ohio Public Utilities Commission has authorized the company to issue $540,000 bonds under the new mortgage to refund the present outstanding bonds, and also to issue and sell $125,000 6 per cent. stock.

The New York Curb Market Association has set Wednesday, Nov. 15, as the date of delivery of temporary certificates in settlement of all outstanding when-as-if-issued contracts in the common share of the Manhattan Electrical Supplies Company, Inc., without further notice.

Gold coin to the amount of $800,000 was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury yesterday for shipment to Cuba.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that temporary notes of the American Foreign Securities Company three-year 5 per cent. collateral gold loan might be exchanged for definitive notes at the Bankers Trust Company on Nov. 15. Temporary notes of the United Kingdom and Ireland two-year 5 per cent. secured gold loan may be exchanged for permanent certificates now at the Farmers Loan and Trust Company.

The Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad Company
PLAN AND AGREEMENT OF REORGANIZATION

First Consolidated Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of The Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad Company issued under the Deed of Trust dated September 1, 1899, to the Mercantile Trust Company (herein called "First Consolidated 4% Bonds");
First Preferred Stock, Second Preferred Stock and Common Stock of said Company;
Unsecured claims against said Company;
Certificates of Deposit of Central Trust Company of New York, as Depositary under said Plan and Agreement, for said securities and claims:

NOTICE is hereby given that the properties of The Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad Company have been sold under the decree of foreclosure and sale entered April 1, 1914, and have been purchased in the interest of the Reorganization Managers for the purposes of the Plan and Agreement, and that the Reorganization Managers HAVE DECLARED THE PLAN AND AGREEMENT OPERATIVE.

The time for the deposit of the above-mentioned securities and claims HAS BEEN EXTENDED UNTIL NOVEMBER 15, 1916, after which date no further deposits will be accepted, except upon such terms as may be imposed by the Reorganization Managers.

The Reorganization Managers have arranged that holders of Certificates of Deposit for stock, instead of paying the amount of the assessment in full on the date which shall be designated in the call for such payment, may, at their option, pay on such date $12 for each share of stock deposited by them and have the remaining $15 for each such share advanced to them, such advance to be repaid on or before six months from such date, to bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum and to be secured by the shares of stock of the New Company to which the holders of the Certificates of Deposit would be entitled upon making such payments in full.

REPUBLIC RAILWAY & LIGHT COMPANY
Notice of Redemption of Three-year Five Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes.
To the Holders of Three-Year Five Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes of Republic Railway & Light Company.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to Section 2 of Article IV. of the Trust Agreement executed by Republic Railway & Light Company to Fidelity Trust Company, as Trustee, dated December 1, 1915, said Company has called for redemption on December 11, 1916, at One hundred and one-half (100½) per cent. of the principal thereof, together with interest from the last preceding interest day to the date of redemption the entire amount of Three-Year Five Per Cent. Secured Gold Notes of Republic Railway & Light Company issued under said Trust Agreement not heretofore called for redemption.

Interest on the above mentioned notes will cease on December 11, 1916. Holders of the above mentioned notes are required to present them on or before December 11, 1916, at the office of the Fidelity Trust Company, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, for redemption.

Under the terms of the Trust Agreement the holders of the above mentioned notes are entitled to convert the same at their face value, par for par, under the conditions and regulations prescribed in the Trust Agreement, into shares of the non-assessable 7% Preferred Capital stock of Mahoning and Shenango Railway and Light Company upon presentation and surrender of the same for conversion with all unmatured coupons attached, at the office of Fidelity Trust Company, Trustee, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on or before December 1, 1916. The adjustment of current dividends and accrued interest upon notes so converted will be made in cash. All holders of said notes who shall not have converted the same into preferred stock of Mahoning and Shenango Railway and Light Company prior to December 1, 1916, shall be conclusively determined to have elected to receive cash for said notes.

Dated: November 11, 1916.

DEAL INVOLVES $12,500,000

British Treasury Requested Sale to Increase Funds for Maintaining Sterling Exchange.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have practically completed the purchase from British capitalists of all the securities of the New Orleans & Northwestern Railroad after months spent in negotiations. The road is the chief subsidiary of the Alabama, New Orleans, Texas & Pacific Junction Railway Company, Limited, which was incorporated in London in 1881, and owns, with the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and the Alabama Great Southern, control of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas, the operator of the Queen & Crescent route.

It was learned at the Morgan offices yesterday that the deal was being put through on behalf of the Southern Railway, which could make good use of the road as a feeder. The amount to be paid for the securities involved is $12,500,000. The securities consist of $5,595,000 general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds of the New Orleans & Northwestern, $1,500,000 income mortgage bonds and $5,866,000 common stock of the road, and $448,700 shares of stock of the Southwestern Construction Company. The construction company has $3,000,000 stock outstanding and holds in its treasury the controlling interest in the stock of the Queen & Crescent route. It also owes a quarter interest in the Chattanooga Station Company and has large land holdings in the South.

The parent road, the Alabama, New Orleans, Texas & Pacific Junction Railway, has been operated for years in close association with the Southern Railway and Queen & Crescent lines. It owns the Alabama & Vicksburg Railway, 143 miles long, and the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific, 188 miles, in addition to the property figuring in the sale to the Morgan firm. The lines extend from New Orleans to Meridian, Miss., and to Shreveport, La.

The sale was made at the request of the British Treasury in order to increase funds in this country available for the maintenance of sterling exchange on a firm basis. The process of liquidation is similar to that which has promoted the sale of millions of dollars worth of American railway securities formerly in English hands, except that in this case a complete railroad property is to be disposed of. The terms of the sale provide that the proceeds shall be immediately reinvested in 6 per cent. British exchequer bonds, due in 1920.

After the transaction has been put through, the British corporation, the Alabama, New Orleans, Texas & Pacific Junction Railway, will have its financial structure altered. The company's present $7,500,000 "A" stock will be reduced to $6,000,000, and the $12,500,000 "B" stock will be lowered to $250,000, and the reduced issues will be consolidated into one class of stock. The Directors of this company are Baron Emile Beaumont d'Erlanger, Viscount Grimson, the Hon. Edwin C. W. Ponsonby, and John Varley, all of London.

COTTON OIL CO. GAINS.

The American Cotton Oil Company earned a net profit of $2,524,292 in the year ended Aug. 31, a gain of $9,889 over the preceding year. The balance for dividends after interest charges was $2,028,459, a decline of $10,944. After paying preferred and common dividends a surplus of $607,059 remained.

President R. F. Munro said in the annual statement yesterday that the year's results were considered satisfactory when account was taken of the fact that cottonseed prices were higher than ever before. During the year, he said, $584,580 was spent for maintenance of property and $30,008 was added to the depreciation account.

TO THE HOLDERS OF THE UNITED Railroads of San Francisco 4 per cent. Gold Bonds: As owners of and the representatives of owners of a substantial amount of bonds of the above issue we have studied the proposed plan of reorganization of the United Railroads of San Francisco and are convinced that the position of these bonds entitles them to better treatment than they are offered. It is our opinion, after a careful examination of the financial condition of the company, that a reorganization can be effected which, while fair and just to the holders of the junior securities, insures to the holders of the 4 per cent. bonds a more advantageous settlement than that proposed in the present plan. To effect such a reorganization will require concerted action on the part of the holders of a large number of the bonds. We are advised that only six million dollars of the total twenty-three million dollars bonds have been deposited as consenting to the proposed plan. We wish to locate the holders of the undeposited bonds, and request that they communicate with us as promptly as possible. If the holders of sufficient bonds co-operate with us arrangements will at once be made looking to the appointment by the holders of a committee who will actively endeavor to obtain more advantageous terms for these bonds in the reorganization.

The Board of Directors have this day declared a dividend of one and one-quarter per cent. (1¼%) upon the Common Capital Stock of the Company, payable December 1, 1916, to stockholders of record at the close of business on November 20, 1916.
DAVID MAY, President.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Weakness marked the closing dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Earlier there had been irregularity, with the copper shares standing out as firm features. Those shares, however, later joined the rest of the list in its downward trend. There was no special news to account for the softness displayed.

COTTON MAKES GAIN OF 37 TO 41 POINTS

MAY AND JULY OVER 20 CENTS

Cotton yesterday displayed a strong undertone, and, with the exception of occasional brief periods of irregularity, the tendency was upward. The final quotations represented a higher range of prices than any previous closing of the season. The general list did not work up to the highest previous level, but at no time during the present advance have prices been so well maintained up to the end of the trading session. One or two options, including May and July, made new high levels, but the January option, for instance, closed about 7 points below its previous record top. The net gain for the day was a matter of 37 to 41 points.

Liverpool was considerably higher than expected, and the local market opened steady at an advance of 20 to 32 points.

Temperatures were below freezing in Oklahoma and Northwest Texas. Local map readers predicted much colder weather in the belt during the next few days. One news feature which contributed to strength was the appearance of the first of the authoritative crop estimates of the season. Private wires stated that the Memphis Commercial Appeal placed this year's actual crop of cotton at 10,800,000 bales. This, of course, was exclusive of linters. The report said that heavy Summer rains throughout the Memphis district had caused more damage than the boll weevil.

Private cables from Liverpool stated that the Continent had been buying Summer positions and new crop months, and that there had been some hedge selling of the near positions, with offerings limited. A local firm was in receipt of the following mail advices from Liverpool: "Cotton continues to advance here in really a most phenomenal fashion, and there is no saying where this advance will end. With the continued activity of German submarines, it looks as though cotton prices can be sent to very much higher levels. Trade is very good, and as long as this lasts, it must mean still higher prices."

Several local firms were in receipt of advices reporting a strong spot situation, with holders confident of higher prices, and in some instances refusing to name any price. The technical position of the market is considered strong. It is believed that certain Wall Street, trade and uptown interests were short of the market at the close of last week, and in some quarters this short interest is estimated as high as 150,000 bales.

The Census report on supply and distribution will be issued at 10 o'clock this morning. It will give consumption of cotton by American mills for the month of October, and the figures will compare with 500,762 bales for last year, and the three months period ended with October will compare with 1,463,892 bales last year.

SEES PEACE IN CHINA LOAN.

Jeremiah W. Jenks, Professor of Government in New York University, told an audience in the auditorium of the Central Branch Y. M. C. A. at 7 East Fifteenth Street last night that he believed an American loan to China would tend to prevent rather than promote war between the United States and other countries. The audience inferred that he had Japan in mind. Professor Jenks is regarded as an authority on Chinese politics. He urged haste in giving China financial aid.

"Otherwise it may be too late," he said. "Unless we hurry it may be impossible to lend China money except under terms imposed by other nations. Demands have already been made upon her which have as yet been resisted, but she may yet be forced to accept them. Some people say that an American loan would lead us into war with the country making these demands. I believe it would lessen the chances of war."

Professor Jenks said China was more willing to admit us than any other nation, as America's behavior in the past, particularly in returning the Boxer indemnity, had given the Chinese assurance that the United States did not intend territorial aggression. He asserted that there was every incentive also for Americans to invest in Chinese bonds because they were as sound as those of any country.

Professor Jenks said much of China's present financial difficulty was due to conditions imposed on her by foreign aggressors since the China-Japan war. China, he said, was unable to impose a tariff higher than 5 per cent., which was a great handicap, but he said China would vindicate herself.

"In spite of my respect for Japan," he said, "Japan at its best cannot equal the progress made in China during the past ten years."

WHEAT.

The wheat market again developed pronounced strength and the late months sold at new high records. There was very heavy buying at times, based on evidences of an active demand from Europe, strength in Argentina and comparatively small receipts at interior points. The strength in the coarse grains, especially in corn, also exerted more or less influence, and values held firm until late in the day, when there was a reaction which resulted in an irregular closing, final quotations being ¼c lower to 1⅛c net higher. The late selling movement was attributed to reports from Washington to the effect that it was believed there that the President was contemplating making some sort of advances for ending the war in Europe, and to an increase of 1,562,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply.

In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $2.30½; No. 2 hard, $2.07½; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $2.14½; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $2.16, all free on board, New York.

CORN.

Prices in the corn market were sensationally strong and the May and July positions at Chicago sold within ⅛c of the dollar mark. This established new high records and was the highest point touched since the May position sold at a dollar in 1892, while the market generally was at the highest point since the civil war. The visible supply in the United States showed a decrease of 841,000 bushels and the total is now only 1,289,000, compared with 3,423,000 last year. The Argentine news was again bullish and the Buenos Aires market was up 7 to 7¼c. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.19 ten days' shipment, cost, insurance and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market was strong on the theory that prices are low compared with the other markets and on further evidence of export demand, although export sales for the day were small. The visible showed an increase of 905,000 bushels, bringing the total to 47,308,000 bushels, compared with 18,505,000 a year ago. The local cash market was firmer; standard quoted at 62½ to 63c; No. 2 white, 63 to 63¼c; No. 3, white, 62 to 62¼c; No. 4 white, 61¼ to 62c; fancy clipped white, 66½ to 68c; ordinary clipped white, 64½ to 66c; all elevator.

The local market for refined sugar was steady and unchanged at 7.50c for fine granulated, with the exception of one refiner, which advanced prices to 7.75c, although still taking orders at 7.60c. There were moderate withdrawals on old contract, but otherwise business was light. Raw sugar was a little easier in tone at the close, but no new business was reported, and quotations were nominal at 5⅛c, cost and freight, equal to 6.52c, duty paid. It was thought the bids of 5 7-16c, cost and freight basis, would find prompt Cubas available, but refiners held off. Quotations: Centrifugal, 6.52c; molasses, 5.65c, and cost and freight, 5⅛c.

COFFEE.

A lower opening was followed by a bulge of a few points in the coffee market yesterday on buying which may possibly have been inspired by peace rumors, but the slight advances met increased offerings and was followed by partial reactions. General business was very quiet, sales being reported of only 16,500 bags, and the market closed net unchanged to 3 points higher. The local spot market was dull and nominally unchanged at 9⅝c for Rio 7s, and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was strong and higher early in the day, with the November position making a new high record at 13 cents, while the later months were only a few points below the previous high level. Toward the close, however, the market experienced a moderate reaction under profit taking, and final quotations were somewhat below the highest, although 7 to 18 points above the final of last week. Total sales for the day were 45,400 barrels. Range of prices:

PROVISIONS.

Operations in the provision market were comparatively small, and early in the day prices showed an easier undertone, with more or less selling prompted by liberal receipts of live hogs at Western points and a disposition to realize profits. The pronounced strength in the corn market, however, resulted in a somewhat steadier tone at the close, although final prices were considerably below the close of Saturday. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 57,000, estimated for Tuesday, 34,000. Kansas City received 11,000 and Omaha 7,700.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,042 packages. Buying interest was quite strongly in evidence and the market jumped ¼@½c on practically all grades of fresh creamery. At the higher figures the feeling was very firm at the close. Storage goods sympathized in the improvement, some of the fanciest lots selling at 36¾@37c. Renovated firm, but not quotably changed. Ladles and packing stock show further advance and the market is unusually strong. Creamery, higher scoring than extras, per lb, 38½@39c; extras, (92 score,) 37¾@38c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 36@37½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 34½@35½c; thirds, 33½@34c. creamery, unsalted, higher scoring than extras, 39½@40c; extras, 39c; firsts 37@38½c; seconds, 35@36½c; creamery, held, higher scoring than extras, 36½@37c; extras, 35¾@36¼c; firsts, 35@35½c; seconds, 34@34½c; thirds, 32½@33½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 37@37½c; good to prime, 35@36½c; common to fair, 31@34½c; renovated, extras, 33@34½c; firsts, 32@32½c; lower grades, 30½@31½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 32@32½c, ladles, June make, firsts, 31½@32c; current make, firsts, 31¼@32c; seconds, 31c; lower grades, 29½@30½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 30½@31c; No. 2, 30c; lower grades, 28½@29½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 7,747 cases. The week opened with light receipts, and advices of light shipments in transit. Demand for fresh gathered eggs is moderate and of a selective character, but the tone of the market is firm and there is more call for high grade stock than can be readily supplied; prices for such tend in sellers' favor. There is rather a quiet market for the bulk of the supply, consisting of medium and ordinary qualities for which values are unchanged. Storage eggs are having a fairly active trading partly of a speculative character and the market shows further improvement and a strong tone. Nearby white eggs rather quiet; there are light supplies of fancy new-laid stock and such are inquired for to some extent; average prime and more seriously mixed goods are moving slowly at very irregular prices. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 43@45c; extra firsts, 41@42c; firsts, 38@40c; seconds, 35@37c; thirds and poorer, 31@34c; dirties, No. 1, 31c; No. 2 and poorer, 28@30½c; checks, good to choice, dry, 29½@30c; undergrades, 27@29c; refrigerator special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 33¾@34c; firsts, 33@33½c; seconds, 32@32½c; lower grades, 27@31½c; refrigerator, State whites, 34@36c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 62@68c; ordinary to good, 45@60c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 45@60c; nearby, white pullets, 45@55c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 40@55c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 46@50c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 37@45c.

BRITISH NOTES FOR BANKS.

It is likely that arrangements will be consummated between J. P. Morgan & Co. and the British Government for the sale to banks in this country of Treasury Exchequer 4½ per cent. notes, for the double purpose of employing loanable funds which are not available for notes or bonds running two or more years, and supplying money needed at this centre to pay for British purchases. It was said yesterday that a number of banks have urged upon J. P. Morgan & Co. their desire to make advances of this nature, and the matter has been taken up with the authorities abroad.

British Treasury Exchequer notes have always been held in high regard for short term investment by foreign banks, and there is said to be no obstacle to their sale here. The notes would run mostly for periods of from one to three months, with some possibly for six months. They would be secured by an ample gold reserve at the Ottawa depository, and would be strictly liquid.

It was pointed out by H. P. Davison in his talk to Chicago bankers ten days ago that the proposed notes would be not unlike the United States Treasury 3 per cent. notes issued in part payment for the retirement of the Government 2 per cent. bonds through the Federal Reserve Banks. Their sale here would tend to relieve the country of its surplus money, check the importation of gold, and strengthen the banking position of the United States when Europe is ready to withdraw gold.

The Russian loan, it was learned yesterday, has not been closed yet, even the amount being in doubt, but bankers expect a $50,000,000 issue to be announced before the end of this week.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that the temporary notes of American Foreign Securities Company three-year 5 per cent. collateral gold loan may be exchanged on and after Nov. 15 for definitive notes at the Bankers Trust Company. The temporary notes of the United Kingdom and Ireland two-year 5 per cent. loan may be exchanged at the Farmers Loan and Trust Company for definitive notes.

FOR RESERVE BANK BOARD.

William Woodward and Henry R. Towne Get Preference.

Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, sent out last night to member banks in this district the names of candidates nominated for Class A and Class B Directors who are to be chosen in place of William Woodward and Henry R. Towne, whose terms expire on Dec. 31.

All the banks, with one exception, which sent in nominations for Class A Director, presented the name of Mr. Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank. The one exception was the First National Bank of Wellsville, N. Y., which nominated J. M. Carpenter of Wellsville for both Class A and Class B Director.

For Class B Director sixty-five banks nominated Mr. Towne, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing Company; ten presented the name of E. H. Outerbridge, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, and nine named Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Next Monday Chairman Jay will send out preferential ballots to the member banks, which are expected to send in their votes within fifteen days. The results of the election will be announced on or about Dec. 6. The nomination and election of successors to Messrs. Woodward and Towne are limited to banks in Group I, that is, institutions having a capital and surplus of $200,000 and over.

The Best Month

In October The New York Times printed 1,245,197 agate lines (4,207 columns) of advertising, a greater quantity than in any other month in its history, and a greater gain over October, 1915, (249,874 agate lines, 844 columns,) than any other newspaper.

The New York Times publishes a greater volume of advertisements than any other New York newspaper, help and situation wanted advertisements excepted.

The average net paid daily and Sunday circulation of The Times for the six months ended September 30, 1916, was 340,904 copies—representing in one grouping the largest number of intelligent, discriminating, and responsive readers ever assembled by a newspaper.

The F. & D. Company, owner of Madison Square Garden, filed with the Federal District Court yesterday a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities are fixed at $3,035,879, and the assets at $2,753,141. On June 15 last the New York Life Insurance Company began a suit against the concern for the foreclosure of a mortgage of $2,300,000 on the Garden property. The mortgage was executed on Feb. 5, 1912, to the Title Insurance Company, and was later transferred to the plaintiff.

The total amount now due, including interest and unpaid taxes, is $2,444,841. A second mortgage of $650,000 is held by Thomas W. Joyce. Of the liabilities $2,904,842 is secured. Among the unsecured debtors are J. M. Ellsworth, G. L. Boissevain, and G. C. Comstock, Directors of the company, who have claims for $15,000, $5,000, and $3,500, respectively, for money loaned; Olney & Comstock, for lawyers' fees, $4,244; Henry A. Cochrane, $2,160; Harry A. Stevens, $2,500; the Department of Water Supply, $618; New York State, franchise tax and penalty, $275; New York Edison Company, $1,773, and some small current bills.

The company was organized on June 5, 1911, with a capital of $200,000, which was afterward increased to $1,400,000. In the same month it bought the Garden property for $3,500,000.

SUBWAY SERVICE HEARING.

Taxpayers Want Express Trains Run to 157th Street.

On a complaint made by the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association the Public Service Commission yesterday began a hearing to discover whether the Interborough Rapid Transit Company should be compelled to furnish express train service north of Ninety-sixth Street. The testimony was to the effect that the present trains, all of them locals, north of the Ninety-sixth Street station were greatly overcrowded, and that the congested condition could be relieved by express trains running through to 157th Street.

To install express trains it will be necessary for the company to put in additional switches and to make a number of other expensive changes in the present construction. One of the witnesses told the commission that persons living as far north as Pelham and others living as far as Caldwell and Orange, N. J., could get to their homes from down town in less time than he could get to his home in 181st Street.

The hearing will be continued early next month, when the commission will also hear arguments in favor of sending the local trains on the Lenox Avenue branch of the subway to 145th Street instead of to 137th Street.

WOULD LICENSE MASSEURS.

If Ordinance Passes Doctor Offers $5,000 for Free Courses.

Should the ordinance exacting certain qualifications on the part of those seeking to become licensed masseurs, introduced by Alderman Haubert of Brooklyn, be passed, Dr. C. F. Conrad, editor and publisher of The International Brief, the official organ of the International Alliance of Physicians and Surgeons, has offered $5,000 to pay for the tuition of those who cannot afford to pay for the knowledge they should have before applying for their licenses.

In an open letter to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen, Dr. Conrad points out the necessity for the regulation of the massage profession in this city, and he offers to turn over the alliance's New York Massage School, with rent and teachers paid in advance for one year, to the city without remuneration if a satisfactory method of regulating the massage situation can be determined upon.

The Salesman, Not the Territory.

The average salesman is apt to believe that the territory allotted to him plays the most important part in his success at his line. The sales manager for a prominent clothing concern thinks differently, however, and says the man and not the territory he covers is most important. "The salesman who can find out the reason why a prospective customer objects to buying his particular brand of goods," he says, "is about three-quarters on the way toward making a sale. Once the objection is known, the salesman requires small ability to answer it and show why his merchandise should be preferred. But the trouble is with many salesmen that they fight for a sale by overcoming objections that arise in their own minds instead of in those of the customers."

Weather Hits Clothing Orders.

The warm weather has had its effect in curtailing clothing orders, and the demand, it is said, will continue light until a cold snap sets in. This statement covers the general situation in the trade. In many instances the local retailers have reported a satisfactory business for last week, with sales especially brisk on Election Day. The overcoat branch still needs a change in weather to help it out. The future business which the manufacturers now have on their books comes very near establishing a record for the industry in general. Even better reports are coming in, and many of the clothiers have orders that total up fully 60 per cent more than the season a year ago.

Pooling Interests for Publicity.

The silk sewed seams campaign being carried out under the auspices of the Silk Association of America and financed by a group of sewing silk manufacturers is being watched by the trade with lively interest. From comment heard, not alone in the silk trade but other textile lines, it is evident that such work for the general good of an industry will probably be adopted in other branches of business. The raw fur merchants have taken up a similar plan to spur up their supplies, and the cranberry growers will also use such general publicity to guarantee a larger volume of consumption.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The account of the Palais Royal, Washington, D. C., is now being handled here by Frederick Atkins, resident buyer, 220 Fifth Avenue.

On Friday of this week a meeting of the blanket buyers of the Dry Goods Alliance will be held at 75 Spring Street.

Plenty of Foreign Silk Novelties.

The war in Europe is apparently having little effect on the production of novelty silks abroad. A number of new things have just been received by a local wholesale concern, most of them of the class that retail from $5 to $7.50 a yard. Included in the collection is a very pretty broché effect, on a satin ground, in an all-over pattern, making use of small floral effects. Another is a combination broché effect, in which part of the decoration is woven and the rest is supplied by a warp-print effect. A third shows a small Paisley pattern printed on a ground containing narrow, woven, golden-hued stripes, about half an inch apart, between which are woven tiny polka dots of a silver shade. Still another is a taffeta showing a large, vague, plaid pattern, coupled with the use of large, shiny, circular and oval discs. In many fabrics the much-sought Burgundy shade is available. In all of them colors are spread about with unusual abandon.

A Season of Knit Fabrics.

The manufacturers of knitted dress goods and cloakings see their largest season ahead of them in the Spring. They have been fairly swamped with business, and the popularity of the knitted constructions is something to wonder at. This class of fabric is being imitated in goods that are woven instead of knitted, and on these also an exceptionally heavy business is reported. Anything in the knit goods line seems to attract the attention of buyers. While a good part of the demand is ascribed to the vogue for sport clothes, it is also pointed out by mill agents that the service which these cloths give is another reason for their quick success.

Advance Dress Goods Sales Heavy.

Men now on the road with Spring lines of dress goods are turning in a quantity of advance business to the secondary distributers in this market that is said to be little short of remarkable. In one case it was said yesterday that these sales to date were fully 300 per cent. greater than those of the corresponding period a year ago. Fine-twilled French serges are doing well in the advance business, from all accounts, especially those selling from 82½ cents up. Cream serges are particularly active. The grades of coverts, in several shades of tan, that sell at $1 to $1.50 a yard are also showing well. A big business is also being taken on mohairs and brilliantines at wholesale prices ranging from 37½ cents to $1.25.

Gray Goods Prices Vary.

There was little snap to trading in the local gray goods market yesterday, about the most interesting thing being the variance in prices in different quarters of the trade. A fair inquiry for printcloths was told of, but not a great deal of business seemed to have come of it. Prices asked for 38½-inch 64-60s ranged all the way from 8 to 8¼ cents, depending largely on delivery, though in some cases there was an eighth difference in prices quoted for the same shipment. Among other things, it was said that bids of 7⅛ cents had been refused for early 1917 deliveries of 38½-inch 60-52s. There appeared to be more real trading in sheetings than in the finer-yarn goods. Sales of 48 square four-yard sheetings were reported at 9 cents, while 48-52s of the same weight brought a quarter of a cent more. Four-yard 56-60s sold at 9¼ to 9½ cents, and some business was put through on heavy, 40-inch sheetings at full prices. Closing printcloth figures were:

38½-inch,	64-64s	8¼c	27-inch,	64-60s	5⅜c

*Asked.

Linen Prices to Stay High.

In spite of the increased supplies of flax now available in Great Britain, as reported by Scottish papers recently received here, linen prices are not expected to show any falling off for a very long time to come. On the other hand, prices on both fine damasks and crashes are moving upward. It was said yesterday that most of the flax now available abroad, admittedly of poor quality, was of the kind used for making tow yarns. This naturally does not help makers of fine linens any, while one of the leading British crash manufacturers recently quoted prices ranging a cent to 2½ cents a yard over the last previous figures sent out. Business on this side of the Atlantic is very good for Spring, wholesalers reporting orders far ahead of last year's. Some picking up in the demand for colored dress linens from retailers is reported, but it is not yet known what consumers will have to say about them. For merchants who can afford to carry these goods a while, if necessary, they are said to represent a good "buy" at present prices.

To Protect Diamond Purchasers.

Because of the steady increase of advertisements in various publications concerning prices at which diamonds can be sold by the carat, or part of the carat, which are contended to be misleading to the public, a conference will be held this morning between Charles T. Evans, President of the American National Retail Jewelers' Association, and other representatives of local retail associations, wholesalers, and representatives of the Good and Welfare Committee of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade to take up the matter at once and devise a plan for preventing the continuance of this kind of publicity. In some of the announcements complained of it is said that the stones in question are "perfect cut," "blue-white," &c., and that they are offered at anywhere from $75 to $95 a carat. Publishers of journals accepting these advertisements have already been appealed to by jewelry trade bodies to investigate them before acceptance.

Bed Clothing Is Very Scarce.

Women who are planning to give embroidered bed coverings as Christmas gifts this year are advised to visit their favorite stores at once if they do not want to be disappointed. Leading lines of these goods have been sold up at wholesale for several weeks, and the chances are strong that, due to bleachery delays and a marked lack of workers, a good part of the merchandise on order will not be delivered in time to sell over the counter before Christmas. Plain goods, both sheets and pillow cases, are very scarce. Several hundred thousand dollars' worth of merchandise due for delivery before Jan. 1 will be delayed indefinitely, it is claimed, and much of it may not be shipped at all. In one case yesterday it was said that goods were still owed on orders taken in November, 1915. One of the leading manufacturing concerns was recently forced to call in its salesmen considerably ahead of time because its product was oversold.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

A Number of Decisions in Reappraisement Proceedings.

Decisions yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers were confined to rulings by the Reappraisement Division. A question of values was raised in a case involving importations of mohair dress goods from Heymann & Alexander, Bradford. The New York importers were not satisfied with the higher values put on the goods by the appraising officials, and appealed to a single General Appraiser for a review. That officer approved the advances made by the lower officials, and an appeal followed to Board 3. Judges Hay and Fischer, who considered the evidence, affirmed the imposition of the higher duties.

A question of the inclusion of a royalty in the dutiable value of books shipped to New York by McBride, Nast & Co., London, was before Judge Fischer for decision. It was apparent that at the trial of the case, counsel had made reference to a decision made earlier by the board in a protest filed by the Adams Express Company. Judge Fischer in his decision said that the facts in the case at bar differed materially from the facts disclosed by the report in the express company's case. It was true, he said, that the books in that case consisted of unbound copies as did those now before him, but the royalty on the books in that case was made dependent on the sale of bound copies at retail in the United States, while in the present case the royalty was a part of the wholesale purchase in unbound condition, just as they were imported. In the present case, the General Appraiser said, the invoice and testimony showed that the royalty was part of the wholesale price. He accordingly held it should be included in the appraised value, thus sustaining the action of the officials below.

The same General Appraiser approved heavy advances made by the Appraiser of the Port on oxide of iron entered here in July last. The commodity was entered at the Custom House as having a value of £20.10.0, and was advanced to £27.10.0 per ton. The New York representatives of the Derby Oxide and Color Company of Birmingham, the shippers, endeavored to secure a reversal of the advanced value but failed.

Judge McClelland had before him a protest by Springfield, Mass., importers who claimed that the Appraiser erred in raising values on hosiery needle wire imported in different sizes. The testimony convinced the General Appraiser that the entered values should be sustained. The Appraiser was accordingly reversed.

Aboras & Co., Vera Cruz, shipped straw hats to New York, which the Appraiser held to be undervalued. He raised the entered values, and after hearing the evidence submitted by the importers, Judge McClelland denied relief and affirmed the Appraiser.

CUSTOMS MEN TO MEET.

Uniform Classifying and Appraising to be Discussed.

Customs officers from all ports of the United States will gather in this city at the end of the present week to attend the annual conference to be held at the Custom House, beginning next Monday. It is expected that the visiting officials will be addressed at the opening session by Andrew J. Peters, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Frank Halstead, Chief of the Customs Division of the department, and Collector Malone.

The classes of officials to be present include Collectors, Appraisers, Surveyors, Naval Officers, Special Agents, and officers who may be acting in these grades. The object of the conference is the attainment of uniformity in the classification and appraisement of imported merchandise at the several ports. Since the holding of the conference last year, customs officers have been preparing questions to be laid before the approaching convention for discussion. Members of the Customs Efficiency Board met yesterday at the Custom House and began to canvass the queries with a view to preparing the more important issues for presentation to the conference.

After the formal opening next Monday, the Collectors will continue their sessions at the Custom House, while the appraising officials will adjourn to the Federal Public Stores, Washington and Christopher Streets, where quarters have been reserved for their meetings. The conferences will last the best part of the week.

B. N. Busch Sued for $15,783.

Briton N. Busch, who was Stock Exchange member of the firm of H. B. Hollins & Co. when it failed in 1914, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by H. Content & Co. to recover a balance of $15,783 due on a trading account. The complaint alleges that the defendant owed $20,031 on transactions in 1915 and 1916, and that the plaintiff sold 2,500 shares of World Film stock, which brought $4,921, and reduced the indebtedness to $15,525.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

The transfer of an upper Fifth Avenue block to Mrs. Mary Lily Flagler, widow of Henry M. Flagler, and a Forty-ninth Street sale between Park and Madison Avenues were the chief features of interest in the realty market yesterday. Mrs. Flagler took title to the block front, 201.11 by 100, between Ninety-sixth and Ninety-seventh Streets, subject to a mortgage of $707,000. It was transferred by John Russell Pope, who bought the property over two years ago. The deed, according to the record, bore the date of Aug. 30, 1914, showing that Mrs. Flagler took title at that time.

In Forty-ninth Street the four-story dwelling at 44 East, which was to have been sold at auction today by Joseph P. Day, was sold by him at private sale for the estate of Charles Solellac. It covers a plot 21.6 by 100.5. Louise Jacob, the owner of adjoining property, was the buyer.

Private Dwelling Deals.

Robert B. Potter and F. T. Breeze have resold 248 Central Park West, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100 feet, adjoining the south corner of Eighty-fifth Street. The sellers acquired the property for $30,000 at auction last August.

F. Moris and T. Tesse have purchased from F. O. McLaughlin 266 West Fifteenth Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 24 by 86.6.

Tenement Sale.

Bronx Sales.

Nicholas Lopard sold for the Lopard Building Corporation, Inc., a plot 66 by 145, on the west side of Clinton Avenue, 66 feet north of 181st Street, to an investor; also the business property at 861 Freeman Street, a three-story building with three stores, to a client, for investment.

Stanton M. Palmer obtained from Johannes Person an option to purchase 1,725 Popham Avenue, a one-story garage, 25 by 100.

Brooklyn.

Tutino & Cerney have sold for William J. Wells, Jr., to a client for investment, the three-story brick store and dwelling 5,407 Fifth Avenue on a lot 18 by 90.

I. Salzberg sold for the Ellis Assets Corporation to T. Rubin a plot 40 by 100 feet, on the northeasterly side of Forty-eighth Street, 400 feet east of Sixteenth Avenue.

R. A. Schlesing sold for Berthol Zippel the six-family brick tenement house 464 Harmon Street, on a lot 35 by 100, to Anna G. Krudner for investment; also sold for Arthur Kolgen the two-family house at 1,877 Palmetto Street to Alice Lotherington.

Edouard C. Panitz sold for Henry Rockmore a plot 36 by 100 feet, on the west side of Eldert's lane, 440 feet north of Atlantic Avenue. A one-family dwelling is included in the sale, plans for which are being prepared by Mr. Rockmore for Henry Rusch.

Long Island.

Charles O'Donohue of Manhattan purchased from Joseph Geoghegan his home at Huntington, L. I. The property contains seven acres and is situated on the east side of Huntington Harbor near the Yacht Club. There is a large modern dwelling on the property and the grounds are highly developed. Daniel M. Gerard negotiated the sale.

Bramwell Davis sold at Bayside, L. I., for Edgar L. Fulmer, builder, to John J. Molony of Manhattan, the new residence on the east side of Third Street, 140 feet north of Lamartine Avenue.

The Aberhelm Realty Company has purchased twenty-eight buildings and plots on the Mickle estate development at Bayside, L. I., from Fannie A. Neyes. The sale was made subject to mortgages aggregating $175,000.

Fisk Estate at Elberon Sold.

The country estate at Elberon, N. J., known as "Miraflores," consisting of eighteen acres and a three-story residence and outbuildings, has been sold by Joseph P. Day for the Riverside Company, a holding company of the interests of Harvey E. Fisk, Pliny Fisk, and Wilbur C. Fisk. The property was held at $150,000.

Big Firm of Waist Manufacturers to Move from Restricted Zone.

Hollow & Perlow, one of the largest manufacturers of silk waists in the city, who moved uptown when the northward movement of trade begun several years ago, have declared their allegiance to the "Save New York Movement," and will move out of the restricted zone. This firm, which employs a large force, has subleased its loft at 63 West Thirty-eighth Street running through to Thirty-ninth Street and will move to new quarters at 151 West Twenty-fifth Street next month. D. Parlow of the firm said yesterday, "We are in hearty sympathy with the 'Save New York Movement,' and believe that this wonderful business section of New York City should not be marred or depreciated by the manufacturing industry. Success to the movement, which should be supported by every manufacturer who has the interest of the trade at heart, even if they do entail a sacrifice of choice location."

Commercial Leases.

Huberth & Huberth have leased in the American-Circle Building the store 1,826 Broadway, running through to 2 Central Park West, to the Ben Hur Motor Company, to be used for showroom purposes.

Wertheim & Clear leased for Mrs. Johanna Samson for a long term the four-story business building 118 West Forty-eighth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The building will be remodeled into stores on the first and second floors and non-housekeeping apartments on the two upper floors. The same firm has sublet the street store, in connection with James A. Dowd, to the Gurn Spring Water Company.

William H. McDonald leased to the Astor Garage Corporation (Martin & Lambert) the seven-story building at 267 Eighty-seventh Street for a term of twenty-one years, at an aggregate rental of $250,000. The lessee operates the Century Garage at 11 West One Hundredth Street. R. T. Groves was associate broker.

The Loton H. Slawson Company leased to the National Silk Dyeing Company, with main offices in Paterson, N. J., the corner store in the building now being erected at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street. The company has had a office in New York at 60 University Place for a number of years.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for Charles J. Schlegel the building 33 Frankfort Street to Pasquale Gaccione for a term of years, and, in connection with A. H. Mathews, the store at 75 Fulton Street to the Standard Asbestos Company.

Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc., have leased the store at 12 West Nineteenth Street to Abraham Siegel.

William A. White & Sons have leased for the Barbour Coffee Company the store and basement 44 Water Street to the Frank P. Wood Company, Inc., for a term of years.

$50,000 Country House Lease.

Mrs. Samuel Hill of Washington, D. C., daughter of the late James J. Hill, has leased about ten acres, with a large country house, from William Rockefeller at Scarborough, N. Y. The property forms a part of Mr. Rockefeller's large estate there. It has been taken unfurnished for a little over three years, at an aggregate lease of about $50,000. The brokers in the transaction were Fish & Marvin, Cocks & Willets, and William A. White & Sons.

Special Auction Today.

Joseph P. Day will conduct a "special sales day" in the Vesey Street Auction Rooms today. The list contains a number of properties in various parts of Manhattan and the Bronx and in Brooklyn.

Builders to Meet Tonight.

The regular monthly meeting of the Builders Association of Manhattan will be held this evening at the Hotel Marseilles, Broadway, corner of 103d Street. Legislation for the perfection of labor laws and general relief from oppressive conditions in the building trades will be the principal topic of discussion.

New Brooklyn Factory.

Shampan & Shampan, architects, have filed plans for a factory building to be erected on a plot of 130 feet by 200 feet, located on the southwest corner of Ingraham Street and Garden Avenue, Brooklyn, for the Greenpoint Metal Covered Door Company, owners.

Real Estate Notes.

The Jere Johnson Company will sell today at the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange, 189 Montague Street, a corner plot of six lots on Cropsey Avenue at the northwest corner of Bay Thirty-first Street, Bensonhurst.

The name of the firm is J. Willet Hall & Co. The principal place of business is in the County of New York. The general nature of the business intended to be transacted is that of brokerage, buying and selling on commission stocks, bonds, investment securities, and such other business as may be properly incidental thereto. The general partner is J. Willet Hall, residing at Great Neck, Nassau County, New York. The special partner is Charles E. Curtis, whose residence is New Haven, Connecticut, temporarily residing at No. 33 West 67th Street, New York City and County. Both of said partners are of full age. The amount of capital which the special partner contributed is $15,000. The said partnership begins on the 17th day of November, 1916, and ends on the 16th day of November, 1917.

Dated November 13th, 1916.
J. WILLET HALL,
CHARLES E. CURTIS.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Western cold wave is advancing eastward and has now overspread the Mississippi Valley and the West Gulf States, and cold weather continues over the Plains States, the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions. Exceptionally low temperatures were again recorded in the Northwest, the lowest readings reported being Sheridan, Wyo., 26 degrees below zero; Lander, Wyo., 24 degrees; Cheyenne and Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., and Havre, Mon., 20 degrees. Freezing temperatures prevail as far south as Central Texas.

Indications Monday pointed to a disturbance over the western Caribbean Sea, which will move northward attended by strong, shifting winds, becoming north gales over the Gulf of Mexico and Southern Florida.

Snow has fallen within the last twenty-four hours in Northern New England, the region of the Great Lakes, the Upper Mississippi Valley, and the Middle Plains States; rain and snow in Texas, and local rains in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the Middle Atlantic States.

Indications are that New England will have rain or snow Tuesday, and probably fair and colder weather on Wednesday. In the Middle Atlantic States rain and colder weather Tuesday will be followed by fair and much colder weather on Wednesday, with a cold wave. In the South Atlantic States there will be rain Tuesday and Wednesday, with colder weather Wednesday, with a cold wave, except in the Florida Peninsula.

In the East Gulf States there will be local rains and much colder weather, with a cold wave Tuesday, and fair and colder on Wednesday. In the Ohio Valley and Tennessee local snows and much colder weather, with a cold wave Tuesday, will be followed by fair and cold weather on Wednesday. In the lake region snow flurries and colder Tuesday will be followed by fair weather on Wednesday.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh and strong east, shifting to north, with rain and snow; Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh, shifting, becoming northwest, with overcast weather and rain; South Atlantic Coast, fresh, shifting, with overcast weather and showers.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Southern New England—Rain, possibly turning to snow Tuesday; colder Tuesday. Wednesday, probably fair and colder.

Northern New England—Snow Tuesday. Wednesday, probably fair and colder.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

ROADS WILL RETURN IDLE COAL CARS

CALLS SITUATION SERIOUS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 13.—C. C. McChord of the Interstate Commerce Commission today received assurances from practically all the large railroad companies in the United States that they had begun the return of all foreign coal cars held on their lines to the owning roads. The return of this equipment was demanded by Commissioner McChord on Saturday, following representations by railroad men that such a measure would provide the quickest means of relieving the coal shortage.

In addition to telegrams from the individual roads announcing their action, the co-operation of the Eastern roads was promised by Charles C. Paulding, B. I. Spock and C. B. Heisserman, counsel respectively for the New York Central, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. Mr. Paulding, speaking for his associates, said:

"I would announce that we consider the situation a very serious one and fully recognize the necessity of prompt and effective action. I wish to state that the Eastern railways are in full accord with the order of the commission for the return of cars to the owning companies at the earliest possible moment, and we pledged the fullest measure of co-operation in carrying it out."

To the various measures advocated by railroad representatives for the prevention of car shortages such as now exist in various parts of the country, a suggestion for the issuance of traffic maps by the Interstate Commerce Commission was made this morning by J. T. Bougher, chief clerk of the Car Record Department of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 13.—The Union Pacific Railroad Company has at present only 25 per cent. of its freight cars available for its own use, the other 75 per cent being in the use of other roads, chiefly those of the East, according to a report filed with the State Railway Commission today. Of 22,000 cars belonging to the company, only 5,652 are available in this State.

CAR SHORTAGE GROWS.

Nearly Doubled in October, Railway Association Reports.

Despite the statements made to a TIMES correspondent last week by coal producers in the anthracite districts and by officials of coal-shipping railroads that there was no serious car shortage, the testimony produced at the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearing in Louisville indicates that such a shortage is the chief cause of the threatened inadequacy of the coal supply. This testimony is corroborated by a statement issued yesterday by the American Railway Association, which shows that on Nov. 1 there was a net shortage of 108,010 freight cars on the railroads of the United States, the largest that has been known since the association began compiling the statistics at the beginning of 1907. On Sept. 1 the shortage was 19,873; on Sept. 30 it was 60,967; during October it almost doubled.

The number of freight cars owned by the railroads of the country increased from a little less than 2,000,000 in 1907 to about 2,450,000 in 1916. From the beginning of 1907 up to last August there was a continuous net surplusage of cars not in use except for one month in 1909, three months in 1912, one month in 1913 and the month of March last year. In 1908 there was at one time a surplusage of more than 413,000 cars, and at no time in that year were there fewer than 100,000 cars idle.

On Aug. 1 last there was a net surplus of 9,762 idle cars, yet immediately after that it disappeared and the supply became increasingly more inadequate for the demand.

A man, who is familiar with the coal business in all its phases, said yesterday:

"A good many of the railroads have followed a custom that is very general—that of getting rid of the contracts calling for a certain quantity of coal each month all the year round, during the Summer months when the need is less and the facilities greater, and catching up on a closer estimate when the bad weather sets in. The Pennsylvania this year laid in a complete supply in the Summer, with the result that it now has its coal cars all available for the service of its patrons, and doesn't need to clog the traffic with its own supplies. Other roads have frequently adopted the opposite course, with the result that just now everybody wants it. As for the coal supply in general—it's like money; there's enough of it for everybody to have plenty if it were only distributed properly.

"Another factor which helps to account for the car shortage is the fact that the railroads in recent years have not had the money to spend for extra equipment that was needed. We hear a good deal about the increase in coal cars, but we don't hear so much about the deterioration which reduces the available number. I could name one road which has bought 8,000 coal cars in the last year, but at the same time 4,800 of its old ones got into such poor condition that they had to be withdrawn from the service."

The Board of Aldermen at its meeting today is expected to approve the request of Mayor Mitchel for permission to purchase coal for the city departments in the open market, with the waiving of standard specifications. There is talk of going direct to the mines, where some city officials profess to understand that coal can be bought for less than $8 a ton.

The increase in the price of coal was given as a reason yesterday for the application of Mrs. Grace Felix Lester to Surrogate Cohalan for an increased allowance from the estate of her husband, William C. Lester, a real estate dealer. His will, by which the widow inherited the income of $160,000, was set aside by the Supreme Court last Spring, and an appeal by the widow is now pending. She and her two children have a house at Good Ground, L. I., and she says that unless the court increases her allowance to permit the payment of outstanding coal bills the house, which is of light construction, will be uninhabitable when cold weather sets in.

EXPLAINS COAL SEIZURE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The action of the Big Four Railroad in seizing 150 carloads of coal for its own use is not based on any authority conferred by the Interstate Commerce Commission, as dispatches have indicated. The commission has no jurisdiction to act in any such matter. The seizure of coal by a railroad for operating its own locomotives and cars rests on an act of Congress enacted June 15, 1866, as a military measure.

Under various decisions of courts construing this law it has been held that the necessity of carrying the mails for the Government, which exercises the rights of sovereignty over all property needed for the maintenance of the Government and the conduct of its functions, furnishes full sanction for the seizure of fuel to operate railroad locomotives in circumstances of scarcity. The persons from whom such fuel supplies may be seized have a basis for a claim for compensation just as they would have if property were seized for military purposes from loyal citizens of the country.

MORE 8-HOUR LAW SUITS.

Roads to Abide by Result of a Test Case.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Company filed a petition in the Federal Court today asking for an injunction against the Adamson eight-hour law.

District Attorney Clyne said this afternoon that the various railroads which have begun these injunction proceedings would abide by the result of a test case to be heard by three Federal Judges, including Landis and Carpenter.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—An action against the operation of the Adamson eight-hour law was filed in the Federal Court today by the Chicago Great Western Railroad Company. The complaint alleges that the law is in violation of contracts existing between the road and the men.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—The Missouri Pacific and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroads filed injunction suits in the Federal District Court today to restrain the carrying out of the Adamson eight-hour law. Judge Dyer ordered the defendants to show cause on Nov. 27 why a preliminary injunction should not be issued.

TO REARGUE LABOR CASES.

Supreme Court Orders Rehearings on Workmen's Compensation Laws.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Reargument was ordered today by the Supreme Court of cases testing the constitutionality of the Washington, New York, New Jersey, and Iowa workmen's compensation laws. No date was set for rehearing, nor was any reason given by the court for the rehearing order.

The court also directed reargument of an Ohio case involving interpretation of the Ohio employers' liability law.

Pensions for Trust Co.'s Employes.

The Philadelphia Trust Company has just made public its forty-seventh annual report for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, together with a description of the employes' pension plan adopted by the Board of Directors. It applies to employes who have been in continuous service for at least twenty years and who have attained the age of 65 or over. The annual pension to be allowed will be at the rate of 2 per cent. of the average annual salary for three years immediately preceding the retirement for each year of service in the company, but the maximum amount paid shall in no case exceed 60 per cent. of such average annual salary, and the minimum shall not be less than 40 per cent.

of the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation, succeeded in getting both sides to agree to arbitrate. The first sitting of the board was yesterday morning.

The demands of the switchmen are for an eight-hour workday, time and a half pay for overtime, and a new schedule of wages, which would be a material increase. At present the switchmen are paid 35 to 40 cents an hour for four classes of work, the night men receiving higher wages than the day men. They demand 47 to 50 cents an hour, the wages to be divided into only two classes: foremen and foremen's helpers.

The six arbitrators making up the board are:

Neutrals—Judge Charles B. Howry of Washington, former Assistant Attorney General of the United States and formerly a member of the Federal Court of Claims; Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks, Director of the Division of Public Affairs at New York University.

Representing the Union—J. B. Connors, Assistant President of the Switchmen's Union, and W. A. Titus, Vice President of the union.

Judge Howry is the Chairman.

S. E. Heberling, International President of the Switchmen's Union, explained the union's demands. He said he thought them moderate in view of the high cost of living, and that the switchman's work was the most hazardous in the railroad business.

Horace Baker, General Manager of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific, who is Chairman of the Special Conference of the Railways and who conducted the questioning for the railroads, presented their side of the case, saying the demands had not been met because the present rates were regarded as fair, and that the cost of maintenance and operation had mounted as well as the cost of living.

Thomas C. Cashen, a switchman employed on the Cleveland Division of the New York Central, was the first witness. He told of the high cost of living in Cleveland, and said that in the Cleveland terminal the switchmen averaged from 194 to 215 hours every two weeks, or about fourteen hours a day on the basis of seven days a week. A large number of men have been quitting this branch of the railroad industry during recent months of their own accord, he said. He admitted that the men had been paid at the regular rate for overtime work.

A. D. Manley of Michigan City, Ind., yard conductor for the Michigan Central, said that the men in his yard had been averaging from eleven to fourteen hours a day for the last six or eight months. Many of the night switchmen had worked more than 200 hours in two weeks, he testified. James A. Flynn, switchman for the Lehigh Valley in Buffalo, said the average time that the men in his yard worked was about twelve hours a day.

The hearing will be continued at 10 o'clock this morning. It was said yesterday that it would probably require between one and two weeks to hear both sides of the case.

New Trolley Service in Queens.

GET $500,000 MORE FOR MEDICAL SCHOOL

Julius Rosenwald Adds to $2,000,000 Rockefeller Gift for University of Chicago.

$12,200,000 NOW IN HAND

Latest Contributor Declares Little Difficulty Will Be Met in Obtaining $15,000,000 Endowment.

A gift of $500,000 toward the endowment fund for the proposed medical department of the University of Chicago was made yesterday by Julius Rosenwald, Chicago merchant and philanthropist. This contribution will form part of the fund which is to be raised by the university in addition to the endowment of $2,000,000 appropriated on Friday by the General Education Board and the Rockefeller Foundation.

It was said that the conditional requirements connected with the Rockefeller Foundation's gift would certainly be met, that the university would soon obtain its share toward the proposed endowment fund of $15,000,000, and that the establishment of the greatest medical educational institution in the country was assured beyond doubt.

Mr. Rosenwald, who arrived here from Chicago on Friday, went to the Rockefeller Institute yesterday morning, at Sixty-sixth Street and Avenue A, accompanied by Mrs. Rosenwald, and announced his contribution to Dr. Abraham Flexner, Assistant Secretary of the General Education Board.

"I have decided that $500,000 could not be applied in a wiser way or to a more practical cause for the benefit of humanity," the donor told Dr. Flexner. Mr. Rosenwald, who is a Trustee of the University of Chicago, had not made known his gift to others than Dr. Abraham Flexner, Frederick T. Gates of the Foundation, and Dr. Simon Flexner, and he was surprised to learn from newspaper reporters last night that the fact that he had made the contribution had been made public. He said that these were the facts in regard to the plans for the college.

Property will be turned over by the university amounting to approximately $9,000,000; the General Education Board and Rockefeller Foundation will give $2,000,000, the university will give a fund of $700,000, now in its possession, and three gifts with the $500,000 contributed by Mr. Rosenwald, leave $2,100,000 yet to be obtained to complete an endowment of $14,300,000. It is expected, however, that the endowment will be $15,000,000, and that it may exceed this sum.

Previous to his departure from Chicago Mr. Rosenwald was notified that he had been appointed one of a committee of seven Trustees of the university to conduct the campaign for getting the additional funds. He said he had not been told who the other members of the committee were.

"One feature of this educational enterprise, which impresses me strongly," Mr. Rosewald said, "has been cited by Dr. Flexner. He feels sure that a school of this magnitude connected with the university would answer every purpose for which our students had to go to Germany in times past. In the course of time American students in this new school will be able to get everything which had to be sought abroad in former years. In other words it is expected to make the new school the equal of any similar institution in Germany or Austria."

Mr. Rosenwald is the President of Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago. He was born in Springfield, Ill., and has been in business since he was 17 years old. In 1912, when he celebrated his fiftieth birthday, he gave $687,500 to charities and educational institutions. Previously he had given $100,000 to obtain a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association for the benefit of his employes and the people of the neighborhood.

Housemaids Strike and Columbia Men Rally to the Emergency.

A situation that would warrant creation of a course in domestic science for the men of Columbia University was brought about yesterday when the forty housemaids employed in the university's three halls—Hadley, Livingston, and Furnald—went on strike. Last night the students spent unhappy hours making up the 800 beds the maids had not finished when the call to quit came.

The women work from 9 o'clock until 3 in the afternoon, for which they receive $2 0a month. On Saturday the dormitory manager, W. E. Lawton, asked several of them to work on Sunday. The maids refused, held a grievance conference with their fellow-workers, and voted to strike for observance of the Sabbath and an increase to $23 a month.

The average net paid circulation of The New York Times, daily and Sunday, for six months ended September 30th, 1916, was 340,904—a circulation which represents in one grouping the largest number of intelligent, discriminating and responsive readers ever recorded by a newspaper.

Dear Mr. Depew:

You have always been that peculiar and highly admirable combination known as a democratic-Republican. You have been prominent in the affairs of the nation and have held great positions of trust, yet you have never held aloof from the people. You have been a good man for America.

So I feel that I can discuss anything with you---even the LORD SALISBURY Cigarette---and I feel that you will regard it seriously for the reason that we are a nation of cigarette smokers, and we annually spend $120,000,000.00 for the pleasure of smoking cigarettes. It's a mighty big industry, Mr. Depew, and like all big industries, it must of necessity bring its products within the reach of the people at large.

The Lord Salisbury cigarette, made and guaranteed by The American Tobacco Company, is the only 100% pure all-Turkish-Tobacco cigarette in the world that sells for as little money as 15c for 20.

Don't you think, Mr. Depew, that such a cigarette at such a price is to be highly commended at a time when the cost of luxuries and necessities is so high and so out of proportion to value?
